D.C. Fund Up To President As Conferees Fail to Agree

Blanton Blocks Move to Set Up Commission for Fiscal Study.

Texan Due to Ask End of Lump Sum

Passage of Continuing Resolutions Appears as Next Step.

By James D. Secrest.

Only intervention by President Roosevelt will save the District from being placed on a bare subsistence basis for the next fiscal year and possibly from losing the entire Federal contribution, it appeared yesterday after House and Senate conferees signed a formal disagreement on the District supply bill.

Passage of contradicting continuing resolutions in both the Senate and the House appeared as the next step early next week in the tug-of-war.

The proposal to set up a commission to determine the proper fiscal relationship between the Federal and District governments was shelved at the conference because Representative Thomas L. Blanton, chairman of the House managers, refused to approve any commission which would not include him as a member.

Federation to Ask Aid.

Meanwhile, Thomas E. Lodge, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, announced yesterday that President Roosevelt, Vice President Garner and Speaker Bankhead would be asked by his group to take a hand in the fight between the House and Senate over the Appropriation Bill.

Enactment by Congress of a continuing resolution instead of a regular appropriation bill will be disastrous to the District, Lodge said. It will mean elimination of $7,000,000 or more in needed public works provided for under the bill, he asserted.

He made his statement at the conclusion of the meeting of a special committee of the federation, held in the District Building.

Joint Resolution.

The Senate has passed a joint resolution, introduced by Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, providing for creation of a fiscal relations commission, and the measure will be before the House when it reconvenes next Monday. However, so long as the House conferees oppose it there is little chance that it will be adopted.

Senator Thomas, who has tried vainly to bring about an agreement with the House managers and has made frequent compromise proposals, yesterday did not attempt to conceal his disappointment over the failure of the conference.

"It's just a question of whether the District is to be ruled by a dictator or by Congress and the President," he said.

House leaders were non-committal as to whether any steps may be taken next week to discharge the present conferees, but it was believed that they would do nothing unless requested to do so by the President.

Blanton Move Expected.

Blanton is expected to seek to push through the House early next week his extraordinary continuing resolution, which knocks out the Federal contribution entirely, deletes character education appropriations, and attaches the limitation on outside work by District employes.

Senate conferees said the resolution will be wholly unacceptable, however, as it constitutes a new appropriation bill rather than a continuing resolution.

Senator Thomas will wait a few days to give the House an opportunity to act before asking the Senate to pass a customary continuing resolution.

Yesterday's conference was held with only three members present. Blanton was the sole representative of the House. He said the House conferees had been insulted by the refusal of the Senate managers, except Thomas, to attend the last parley in the House Appropriations Committee room.

Thomas, Glass Attend.

Senator Thomas and Senator Glass, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, were the other conferees, and Glass carried the proxies of Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, and Keyes (Republican), of New Hampshire.

With the Federal lump-sum payment the only point at issue, Thomas again sought to bring about an agreement by offering to drop to $5,000,000, but Blanton would go no higher than $4,500,000.

The Texan, shouting that he knew more about District taxes than any number of experts, declared he would accept no fiscal relations commission that barred him from membership.

The Thomas resolution would set up a three-man commission, its members to be named by the Speaker of the House, the Vice President and the President, but would bar from membership anyone who, directly or indirectly, owns property

49 'Write-In' Voters Keep Fairfax Mayor

Residents of the town of Fairfax, Va., may not want to be mayor themselves, but 49 of them wrote in the name of Col. Richard R. Farr to continue in office.

Col. Farr, a Republican, has been acting as mayor for several months. He was named by Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the County Circuit Court when Mayor Thomas P. Chapman died. His nearest opponent yesterday was Walter T. Oliver, jr., who received four votes. Several others received one vote each. Farr is a former Assistant United States Attorney General.

For the fourth consecutive time citizens have had to write in the name of their candidate as no one thought enough of the job to file for it. No salary is paid but once in a "blue moon" a fee is received for trial of some minor criminal offense committed within the town limits. The mayor also has charge of running the muninicpal water system and supervising the construction of a $100,000 municipal sewerage system.

Thousands Hail Roosevelt Train En Route South

By the Associated Press.

En route with President Roosevelt to Little Rock, Ark., June 9.—President Roosevelt worked over his Arkansas centennial speech today while his special train rolled by crowded depots in Virginia and Tennessee en route to Little Rock.

He is due in the Arkansas Capital late tomorrow for the first of three speeches in a 4,000-mile tour of Arkansas, Texas and Indiana.

Tomorrow's address at the celebration of Arkansas's 100th anniversary of Statehood is scheduled for 6 p. m. (Central Standard Time.) It will be broadcast over both major radio chains.

Several thousand gathered at the Virginia-Tennessee border city of Bristol shortly after breakfast today to see the President. He did not appear, as he was hard at work on his speech.

Knoxville turned out another throng, where a ten-minute halt was made. The city council, headed by Mayor J. S. Elmore, boarded the special for a call.

Mr. Roosevelt made a brief platform appearance and told the cheering crowd he hoped to return to Knoxville next fall and visit nearby Norris Dam, built by the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The President faced a full program in Arkansas with Mrs. Roosevelt, who will join him at Memphis, Tenn., late tonight. Mrs. Roosevelt inspected a resettlement project in Arkansas, near Memphis, today.

Thomas Demands Action.

Norman Thomas, Socialist nominee for President, last night demanded that President Roosevelt "say and do" something to help abolish "slavery in the cotton fields."

In a telegram sent to Little Rock, where President Roosevelt is to speak at the Arkansas centennial celebration, Thomas said that "word from you is imperatively necessary because of the critical development of the strike in the cotton country."

"You are to speak at the centenary celebration of a State which has not yet abolished slavery in the cotton fields," Thomas said. "It is reported you will support your floor leader, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, for re-election. He has in every way been a supporter of planting interests and refused to help victims of night riding and gross oppression.

"Such benevolence as your Administration may have intended to sharecroppers and agricultural workers has been frustrated by local committees. All who care for liberty and justice to workers wait to learn what you will say and do."

Babcock Out Pending Vote By Members

Conditions Resignation on Convention Ballot in September.

Asks Lodge Heads Not to Act on Recall; Mrs. Heffner Fills Job.

President E. Claude Babcock, of the American Federation of Government Employes, stepped out of office temporarily yesterday to await a vote of confidence by the rank and file membership.

His surprise gesture was admittedly a strategem intended to confound his foes on the executive council who are attempting to have him deposed.

He asked for and obtained a furlough with pay after writing out his resignation "to be effective on acceptance by the convention." The A. F. G. E. convention will open in Detroit September 14, when the bitter fight for Babcock's scalp will be threshed out.

Friendly to Babcock.

From now until the convention the younger of the two Federal workers' unions will be headed by Mrs. Berniece B. Heffner, national secretary, as acting president. She is a member of the executive council minority which is friendly to Babcock's administration, which is nearing the end of its third year.

Seemingly recovered from a heart attack which removed him from Monday's furious session of the executive council in the Hamilton Hotel, Babcock went to his office yesterday and prepared a letter to presidents of all A. F. G. E. lodges.

"The national executive council," it begins, "has demanded my resignation and has requested the lodges to institute recall procedure against me. The recall, if voted would take about all the time between now and the convention; it would also result in many statements harmful to the interests of Government employes and to our federation."

Opposes Recall Vote.

The letter then quotes the notification of provisional resignation, which, said Babcock, has been turned over to the secretary for submission to the Detroit convention.

He urges all lodges to refrain from voting on his recall, as recommended Monday by the hostile executive council, and rather to decide his official fate at the September assembly.

"I believe that the good of the federation requires this course," he said. "The national executive council attempted to suspend me. It had no constitutional authority to do so and did not succeed.

"However, in order that the prestige and facilities of the national office may not be in my hands during recall proceedings, which I believe would be unethical, and because such leave is due me for past service without leave, I am asking the executive council to grant me leave until the convention."

Leave Is Granted.

After the letters had been posted, Babcock went to the Hamilton Hotel for what he termed an unofficial conference of the executive council. At this meeting he made his request for a leave of absence and it was granted.

Babcock's latest, and so far his most crucial, controversy with subordinate rulers of the federation was kindled by his authorship of a pamphlet criticizing the Roosevelt Administration's Government personnel policies.

The majority of the 17-member council assailed the writer for making derogatory statements. In rebuttal, Babcock charged the dissenters were impelled to cry for his dismissal only because they feared that their Government jobs would be imperiled if they allowed the antispoils tirade to go unanswered and its author to escape unpunished.

Victory Hinges on Early Support by New York, Pennsylvania.

Both Groups Delay Caucuses on Stand

The Post's Poll of Presidential Candidates—Page 5.

By Felix Bruner.

A Staff Correspondent.

Cleveland, June 9.—The question of whether the expected nomination of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas as the Republican candidate for President will be made on the first ballot hinged tonight on when the large Pennsylvania and New York delegations will climb onto the bandwagon.

Both these delegations, New York with 90 votes and Pennsylvania with 75, again postponed their caucuses at which polls are expected to be taken. Leaders of both delegations were confident that a majority of their votes would go to the Kansan, but they were not agreed upon when the swing will come.

Independent polls of delegations indicated that with even bare majorities from these States Landon would be assured the nomination on the first ballot. If they hold off, a second ballot may be necessary. A check by The Washington Post indicated that Landon has 416 votes on the first ballot without the two Eastern delegations. A total of 502 is necessary to nominate.

Friends of Landon in the New York delegation estimated his strength there at anywhere from 60 to 75 votes and Pennsylvania Landonites were confident that their delegation would muster at least 50 votes for the Kansan. On the other hand, John Hamilton, Landon campaign manager, was claiming positively only 41 or 42 New York votes. He intimated that some delegations favoring Landon might wish to swing to someone else on the first ballot in order to build him up for the Vice Presidency. Representative Wadsworth, of New York, is a Vice Presidential possibility.

Meanwhile, Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago, Presidential candidate, arrived in the city and immediately went into conference with Senator William E. Borah, another candidate.

Hints Withdrawal.

Col. Knox emerged from the conference with the statement that if the platform being drafted by the resolutions committee did not suit him, he would withdraw. At the same time he indicated he might accept the Vice Presidential nomination should it be offered him.

Knox declined to reply to a question as to whether he believed Landon's nomination was assured. He also refused to discuss his conversation with Borah. The latter remained in his room and declined to be questioned.

Knox insisted that he had not joined a coalition movement against Landon, declaring he knew of no such a movement. Asked whether he would be willing to join such a movement, he said that he was not ready to answer the question. He said he had no plan to withdraw in favor of any other candidate and that he intended to stay in the race if the platform suited him. In event he does find it necessary to withdraw, he said, he had no intention of "taking a walk" from the Republican Party.

Brown Loses in Vote.

Knox said he had no present plans to attend the convention and that he would not appear before the resolutions committee unless invited. The Knox headquarters previously had announced that the Chicago publisher would not come to Cleveland. Knox explained that the reason for the change in plan was because "I got curious." He declined to make any estimate of his expected strength in the convention.

Another "break" for Landon came yesterday with the action of the Ohio delegation in refusing to reelect Walter Brown, of Toledo, President Hoover's Postmaster General, as national committeeman

Cleveland, June 9.—Laden with platform suggestions on every side of every issue from the gold standard to women's rights, a Landon-swayed sub-committee of a Landon-mastered resolutions committee, met at 11 p. m. today to draft what promised to be a Landon platform for the Republican Party.

From a plethora of planks roughhewn for the occasion during four hours of steady hearings, the group was paintakingly fitting short but staunch timber best able to carry the weight of a candidate through a rough-and-tumble campaign.

Directing construction activities was H. M. Langworthy, of Kansas City, Mo., Landon sympathizer elected unanimously to head the resolutions committee at an organization meeting in the afternoon.

Also Heads Sub-committee.

From the afternoon meeting, Langworthy also emerged chairman of a plank-drafting sub-committee of 14 delegates, containing a liberal sprinkling of Landonites and old linesmen.

At midnight, the weary subcommittee deserted the bare halls of the convention auditorium and took over a more comfortable suite at the Cleveland Hotel, where they were prepared to make a night's work of it.

"We haven't got started," said Langworthy.

Tentatively, they have set 1 p. m. tomorrow as the time for their report to the full resolutions committee.

Green "Put on the Spot."

Ringing in their ears as they set to work was a denial by Willam Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that his organization stands for "any candidate or any party."

One of two-score represetnatives of labor, farm, women's and economic organizations to carry their plank proposals to Cleveland, Green was placed squarely "on the spot" before the resolutions committee for his personal indorsement of President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

Green's shouted denial came in answer to questions by Republican committeemen, after he had suggested 19 labor planks for the Republican platform. He repudiated New Deal indorsement in the name of the American Federation of Labor, but refrained from an expression of his own views, which repeatedly have shown sympathy with Roosevelt policies.

Sub-Committee Personnel.

Organization of the resolutions committee for the task ahead came like clockwork—almost as if by prearrangement. Langworthy was the sole nominee for chairman; nor was there any opposition for the offices of vice chairman and secretary, to which former Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, and J. Reuben Clark, jr., former Assistant Secretary of State and one-time Ambassador to Mexico, were chosen, respectively.

The plank-drafting sub-committee was named with equal smoothness. It includes Langworthy, chairman; Bingham, Clark, Edward S. Shattuck, of Los Angeles, Calif.; James E. Goodrich, of Winchester, Ind.; Don L. Berry, of Indianola, Cleveland, June 9.—His two long arms stretched toward the smoke-hung roof far overhead, an earnest, perspiring man stood in the blinding blue spotlight here tonight, striving to whip the Republican Party into a victory frenzy.

Senator Frederick Steiwer, of Oregon, a tall, bulky man in a blue serge suit, smashed ponderously at the New Deal for an hour and 20 minutes before an audience, many of whom squirmed restlessly, yawned and muttered to themselves, but seized three opportunities shout applause.

Steiwer's speech was theik with statistics, packed with facts, an erudite, heavy, outright full attack. The audience came prepared to hoot the New Deal and cheer the Republican Party but Steiwer roared on interminably in a thick voice that missed climax after climax that was apparent only in the written script.

Handclapping at frequent intervals in the first 15 minutes of the address, the gallery audience, nearly filling the auditorium to its quota of 14,000 persons, subsided thereafter into torpor that wasn't broken until they suddenly realized his speech was over.

The audience didn't even applaud references to Valley Forge, Gettysburg, and the Fields of France in 1918, always considered sure fire oratorical stuff. They didn't get a chance. Steiwer, not a trained orator, and unable to inflect his voice with dramatic sklill, slurred over the points ponderously and ineffectively.

The disappointment of the galleryites was keen. It was openly visible in their faces, in their quiet departure from the auditorium they had entered hopefully.

At a high point in the speech, the public system suddenly failed, and Steiwer's words fell dead into the thicky smoky haze of the auditorium. The spectators shouted angrily. Steiwer stopped, flabbergasted, as the cries "louder" roared from the galleries and the floor.

Henry P. Fletcher, national committee chairman, pushed the button signaling the band to start playing, and waved for quiet. Steiwer stood helpless, fumbling his manuscript, and then paced the platform restlessly.

For two minutes and 40 seconds that seemed a humiliating age to the gathered delegates, the system

Three More Voted Capital by Rules Committee for Future Sessions.

By Edward T. Folliard.

A Staff Correspondent.

Cleveland, June 9.—The rules committee of the Republican National Convention late today voted to give the District of Columbia six delegate votes in future conventions.

Had there been six delegates at this convention there would not now be a contest before the credentials committee.

At present there are three delegates from the District. According to practice, they consist of a white man, a white woman and a colored man.

The Dstrict of Columbia has two contesting delegations here tonight. One is headed by Edward F. Colladay, national committeeman, and the other by Leo A. Rover, former district attorney.

The two factions are here as a result of the small representation given the District.

Colladay expressed a desire to come here not only as national committeeman but as a delegate.

For that reason, the Rover group fought him and the result was two conventions in the District. Each faction sent a delegation here. Which one will be seated will be settled by the credentials committee tonight.

Miss Mildred Reeves, former secretary of the late Speaker Longworth and a delegate from the District of Columbia, appeared before the rules committee. She pointed out that the Democrats already have allowed six delegates to attend their national convention.

The national committee, at a meeting last Friday, agreed to place the Colladay delegates and alternates on the temporary roll of the convention.

Westerners Open Battle for Silver

Cleveland, June 9 (AP).—The expected drive by Western States for recognition of silver in the Republican Party platform began today behind the scenes of its convention.

Utah, Idaho and Montana members of the convention resolutions committee conferred with delegates and mining men of the States and agreed to press for adoption of a plank which would read:

"We demand the return of the control of uor monetary system to the Congress and favor stabilization of money and exchange upon an international basis. We favor a currency system with a metallic base as opposed to a so-called managed currency, and we favor the use of both historic metals, gold and silver in such currency system."

Committee members attending the session were former Senator [illegible] of Idaho; J. Reuben Clark, former United States Ambassador to Mexico, Utah, and M. S. Gunn, of Montana.

Cleveland, June 9.—Smashing into the New Deal with both fists, Senator Frederick Steiwer, of Oregon, in his keynote speech to the Republican National Convention tonight called on Democrats and Republicans alike to mobilize to drive the Roosevelt Administration from Washington.

In a first class, rabble-rousing, stump speech the Republican keynoter laid down a sharp indictment against President Roosevelt on every major measure he has sponsored, except social security and the stock market control legislation.

And as a capstone, Senator Steiwer characterized the New Deal as a combination of "trick formulas and sharp practices," and accused the President of attempting to foist on America the decadent political and economic systems of Europe.

Mr. Roosevelt, he said, during the four months before his inaugural had been "a President-elect without a conscience," refusing to cooperate with "a President who had a conscience," with the March, 1933, banking crisis as the result.

Calls Foes "Leeches."

He likened the New Dealers to "the leeches of old," declaring "they have bled a patient who was already suffering from loss of blood."

"For more than three long years," asserted the keynoter, "we have had a government without political morality. I propose to show you that government endowed with conscience will bring up a prosperity not built on promise and pretense, but built with the bricks and mortar of fundamental principles.

"This prosperity will not be measured with crooked lines and crooked trick phrases of unconstitutional legislation, but by lines that square with the rules of honesty and morality."

And turning to more specific things, the Oregonian in staccato sentences, flayed the New Deal for wasteful spending, endangering the national stability by piling up debt, flaunting the Constitution, maladministration of the relief program, efforts to regiment industry and agriculture, monetary experimentation and the Hull reciprocal tariff program.

In a solemn warning, Senator Steiwer held before the convention and the country the specter of a disastrous currency inflation or back-breaking taxation as the New Deal legacy to the Nation.

And in a final burst of oratory, the keynoter demanded to know: "Will America live or die?" and he answered his question by asserting that "America will live, because the people are firmly resolved that our Nation shall not die" and he called on all the dead of America's wars as testimony of the strength inherent in the country.

Lacking outstanding oratorical ability, Senator Steiwer obviously was embarrased when half way through his speech the loudspeaking system in the convention went dead, forcing him to stop for over two minutes while the defect was remedied. Some few minutes later a huge Klieg lamp which played a beam of light on Senator Steiwer went berserk. Its rapidly blinking rays gave the speaker a fantastic appearance on the rostrum as he struggled to hold the attention of his audience.

The convention delegates and alternates in general appeared to like the speech and their keynoter, even though the 10,000 or more spectators did not display intense enthusiasm. The various delegates frequently jumped to their feet to cheer the Oregonian's words, and when he concluded they gave him a resounding ovation which lasted several minutes.

The first truly full—throated outburst of yells came Senator Steiwer came to the defense of the administration of former President Herbert Hoover by declaring that the March, 1933, debacle was caused "when a President - elect

Composer of 'Dardanella' Dies From Injury in Fight Over 25c

By the Associated Press.

Hamilton, Ohio, June 9.—Johnny Black, who gained fame and fortune in 1919 by writing the song hit, "Dardanella," died today of injuries received in an argument over 25 cents change.

The estimated $12,000 he realized in royalties from "Dardanella" had been spent long ago and friends said Black died a poor man. His roadhouse, the Dardanella Club, had not been a profitable venture, they said.

None of the numerous other songs that Black wrote attained the popularity of "Dardanella." After the royalties started coming in he joined an entertainment troupe and toured Europe.

Police investigating Black's death sought two men and their women companions. Louis Huber, a waiter at the roadhouse, told police that as the four persons left the Dardanella Club Friday morning, one of the men questioned the change Black had given him.

"Come outside and I'll take the 25 cents out of your hide," Huber said one of the men told Black.

Black went out. As the three men reached the sidewalk one of the strangers hit Black on the right eye, knocking him down, his head striking the sidewalk. The party drove away, leaving Black unconscious. Huber said a physician was not called because Black recovered consciousness an hour later.

Black returned to the roadhouse Saturday, but late Sunday he relapsed into a coma and was taken to a hospital, where he died.

New York, June 9 (AP).—"Dardanella," the song that everybody swayed to in 1919, coined more than $1,000,000, but the million is gone, said Fred Fisher today.

Fisher wrote the lyric and finished off the composition, he said, that Johnny Black, who died today, brought him in its basic form.

The piece sold 6,000,000 records and 1,600,000 pieces of sheet music, Fisher estimated.

"Johnny got only about $12,000 out of the whole thing. He brought the original melody to me. I finished it up and published it. But Johnny sold all his rights to it before it became a hit," Fisher said.

"Me? I made $1,000,000. I haven't got it now, though. Just seemed to slip away until it was no more."

Austria Proposes Pact With Berlin

Vienna, June 9 (AP).—Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg offered tonight to enter an understanding with Germany provided Austria's freedom and independence are unqualifiedly safeguarded.

Addressing 100,000 members of the patriotic organization "Fatherland Front" Schuschnigg warned Nazis and Socialists, however against talking revolution, because "the country is strong enough to fight it."

He enjoined his hearers to forget Austria's old borders and think of the new fatherland.

Apparently referring to Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, recently removed as vice chancellor by Schuschnigg, the speaker asserted one qualified general gets better results than five conflicting first-rate generals. Von Starhemberg did not attend the rally.

When Schuschnigg mounted the rostrum Monarchists' cries of "Hoch Hapsburg!" were heard.

Prince Georges School Expels 4 Who Refused to Salute Flag

The Prince Georges County School Board yesterday expelled the four children of August A. Lutke from the Oxon Hill, Md., school for refusing to salute the American flag.

County officials said they believed the ruling was the first of its kind in the history of Marylar.d.

The disciplinary measure, which does not affect the two older daughters attending high school, provides that the elementary members of the "Jehovah's Witnesses" sect may complete the present school term, which ends next week.

They also will be given the option of returning to school next fall if "they agree to comply with the intent of the school law of the State of Maryland."

However, Fred, 12; Louise, 10; Walter, 8, and Esther, 7, who said they were acting on their own volition in refusing to salute the flag, declared "they had no intention of accepting the school board's alternative.

Mrs. Lutke, who has consistently held that she would see her children expelled rather than have them "place the flag above God," said:

"Certainly I am not going to compel them to salute the flag."

A similar sentiment was voiced by Lutke as he received the news at his desk in the Postoffice Department, where he is employed as a clerk. He said:

"They will serve their God, regardless of what the school board or anyone else does."

Both parents said they had formulated no plans for the future, and would withhold any statement along that line until they received the official notice.

It is expected, though, that they will place the young pupils, all of whom stand at the head of their classes, in a District school.

Here they may also, sooner or later, be confronted with the same problem, which has brought members of the "Jehovah's Witnesses" sect into conflict with school authorities in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio and California.

The nearby Maryland school board reached its decision at Upper Marlboro late yesterday afternoon. The officials were visted

Old Guard Surprisingly Shows No Resentment, Says Observer.

By Felix Morley.
Editor of The Post.

Cleveland, June 9.—Beneath its calm and even decorous exterior, the Republican National Convention is torn by an issue of very great political, social and legal importance. The struggle is not the less acute because a fortnight ago none anticipated that the delegates would need to concern themselves with the question of a constitutional amendment.

Now an unexpected decision of far-reaching significance is demanded by the decision of the Supreme Court invalidating the New York law which sought to fix minimum wages for women workers.

In view of the positive position on States' rights which the convention has already assumed, this Supreme Court decision logically calls for an official Republican declaration. It would seem hypocritical to emphasize the desirability of State, as opposed to Federal action, in the field of social legislation while ignoring a final judicial decree which leaves the States hamstrung in an important part of that field.

Several Drafts Submitted.

Consequently, several drafts definitely validating minimum wage legislation for women workers have been submitted to the platform committee. Since more than a dozen States have legislation of this character, all of it menaced by the Supreme Court action on June 1, the interest among the delegations is widespread.

Gov. Landon, to whom consistency is the proverbial jewel, is strongly sympathetic to the idea of a constitutional amendment, if necessary, freeing the States from limitations on their sovereign powers in this respect.

Indeed, he is believed by many to have had the safeguarding of State social legislation in mind in his speech last night at Lawrence, Kans. He there referred to the necessity of overthrowing "economic dictatorship in all fields of honorable endeavor if we are to escape the shackles of bureaucracy in governmental life."

On the other hand there are, at the convention, spots of strong opposition to any "tampering with the Constitution," regardless of whether such a course seems to be called for by the logic of the States' rights position.

Old Guard Unresentful.

One might expect that such opposition would center in the shattered trenches of the Old Guard. In that quarter there are logicians who would easily find it possible to reconcile an academic approval of States' rights with a very practical support of the Supreme Court's power to declare State minimum wage legislation unconstitutional.

But one of the interesting anomalies in the situation is that the Old Guard is showing no resentment toward the proposed constitutional amendment plank. The New York delegation, indeed, is largely behind William Allen White's endeavor to bring this declaration into being. Perhaps that is because the members are shrewd enough to see the political implications involved.

Today these facts were brought home to the dullest observer by the news that Senator Ashurst, in Washington yesterday, had offered a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment under which Congress would "have power to make laws to regulate agriculture, commerce, industry and labor."

Poses Issue Clearly.

While it is doubted that the White House gave advance approval to the Ashurst resolution, this has none the less served to pose the issue clearly. As the Republicans wrangle over a declaration designed to forward State authority, a leading Democratic Senator moves to place the requisite power for minimum wage, and a huge field of other legislation, unreservedly in the hands of Congress. It would certainly seem that when the Republican Party opposes the latter course it should favor the former.

This, however, is not the opinion of Senator Borah, whose viewpoint on constitutional questions is taken seriously even by the many who smile broadly when he is referred to as a champion of liberal opinion. Mr. Borah yesterday made plain his distinct lack of enthusiasm for any constitutional amendment which "would open the whole relationship between the two sovereignties" of State and Federal government. Referring to the division of Supreme Court opinion in the New York minimum wage law case, he said that "I am not in favor of changing the Constitution every time there is a five-to-four decision."

Proponents of the proposed constitutional amendment declaration resent Mr. Borah's attitude.

They regard the situation which has arisen as one almost ideally designed to show that the Republican Party does not regard the Constitution as sacrosanct when amendment is clearly desirable to forward a concrete and practical reform. They believe that some declaration is essential to show that the States' right trend is more than lip service to appraise, they point to the fact that the Republican Party submitted to the States the thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth amendments.

They feel that the outcome of the issue is likely to decide the November votes of a large number of sincere Jeffersonian Democrats who dislike the New Deal and most of its works, but who wish to be shown "a better 'ole" before they actually desert it at the ballot box.

Over and above these considerations the lawyers who advocate an amendment declaration believe that such a stand is desirable in the interests of good government. They disagree with President Roosevelt's assertion that the Supreme Court decision left a "no man's land," with authority in an important legislative field possessed by neither the Federal nor the State government.

They disagree with Borah's assertion that such an amendment would confuse the relationship of the two sovereignties. They feel that this is not a matter of political expediency, but of governmental clarification.

Same Outcome Argued.

In the words of one legal authority, who feels that this issue is of an importance second to none before the convention:

"There is now no constitutional lack of authority for the States to proceed with legislation in this field as local conditions render desirable. It is essentially a matter of definitely removing what seems to be a prohibition to the exercise of their normal authority."

It is conceded that the New York case was not presented in the manner best calculated to uphold the constitutionality of the State law in question. But those who have carefully studied the majority opinion of the court are inclined to believe that whatever form taken by the argument, precedent would have probably led to the same outcome. Therefore, it is argued that to expect a different result in another similar case, as Senator Borah suggests, is to expect the court to vary its opinions primarily to suit the social consciousness of the time.

It is seldom that the turn of events brings an issue demanding such concentrated thought, and such searching judgment in decision before the distracted attention of a nominating convention. And the probably conclusive outcome in this case is not rendered easier by the presence in Cleveland of a small but vehement lobby of the National Woman's Party. This is delighted by the Supreme Court decision, on the assumption that absence of minimum wage laws for women workers is somehow a significant gain for the cause of sex equality.

Politics and People

G. O. P. Needs Borah's Showmanship; Yawns Mark Opening of Convention.

By Franklyn Waltman

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 9.—At last there appears to be a place in the Republican Party for Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho. Neither the liberals nor the Tories in the party have shunned the Idahoan in the past because of his enigmatic conduct and his contradictory political principles.

WALTMAN.

But the Republicans need the Idahoan very badly—they need him to put on their political shows for them. It is a place which the lion of Idaho undoubtedly would enjoy—since he simply bubbles with pleasure when staging a show and manipulating the spotlight—and it is a place in which he could make a truly valuable contribution to the party.

If anything has been evident since the Republicans took over the City of Cleveland, it is that they lack the art of showmanship. They do not seem to know the first rudiments of the art of Barnum, which is, of course, to get and then to hold people's attention. Those in charge of this convention simply do not know how to do it.

Nothing could have been more dismal and gloomy than the opening session of the twenty-first Republican National Convention. Not only did the opening session fail to fill the available seats for spectators—there are not more than 12,000 of them—but many of those who came left before the session ended, while others sat in the galleries yawning behind their hands or reading their newspapers.

Here, if we are to believe some Republicans, is the most momentous Republican convention since the party came into existence on the eve of the Civil War—a convention whose keynote is that America must be saved by driving from the Washington Citadel false philosophers, reckless experimenters, sharpsters and political quacks who now are imperiling the Republic.

And here is that convention starting off as a boresome, dull and drab affair, with less life in it than a meeting of a Kiwanis club or the ladies' auxiliary of the village church. By actual count within a space of three minutes nine spectators yawned during that first session.

It is no wonder they yawned. Republican National Committee Chairman Henry P. Fletcher called the meeting to order as solemnly as he would attend a funeral. A band at the other end of the auditorium struck up "America" and the delegates—not all of them—feebly sang the first verse. The usual prayer followed.

For a minute it looked like those present might have some fun when the official photographer commanded all to "look to the back of the hall." Suddenly he realized he was standing at the front of the auditorium and quickly reversed his instructions.

"Just like Republicans to look backward when they should be looking forward," asserted a New Dealer in the press stands.

This was followed by a dreary speech in a monotonous voice from the Mayor of Cleveland, marked by the usual puffs for Cleveland and an effort to get some national advertising for the Great Lakes Exposition which opens here later this month.

By this time most of the delegates had lost interest in the proceedings—the spectators never did become interested. A look of expectancy, however, appeared on many faces when Chairman Fletcher announced we would pause for an entertainment number. He presented a Negro quartet, decked out in white trousers and bright blue shirts.

They started to sing "Working on the Railroad" in such a slow, dragging tune that the delegates went back to their conversation. If the Republican high command had any humor, one would have suspected something subtle about that performance—that it intended to represent WPA workers "working on the railroad." And after that came nothing but a series of routine motions organizing the convention. There was only a splattering of applause when Senator Frederick Steiwer was elected temporary chairman and keynoter.

The officials of the Republican Party contend that the only reason for the noon session was that it was specified in the "call." Since the "call' was issued, it was decided to hold the keynote address until an evening session in order to get the maximum radio audience.

The idea to put Senator Steiwer on the air at night was inspired by President Roosevelt's night appearance before Congress to deliver his message last January—a month after the Republican call for a convention was adopted. Of course, if the Steiwer speech had been delivered at the opening session he would have stirred up enthusiasm, as he did tonight with his fighting words and phrases.

But why did the Republican high command permit the first session to become a dud, which chilled everyone? Certainly, they at least could have imported a beautiful opera singer to lead the singing of America. They could have put on an orator for a few minutes to bring down tumultuous applause. Senator Borah could have pepped up that meeting. Watch how Jim Farley handles the first session of his convention at Philadelphia.

In all fairness, it should be said, the lethargy displayed in the convention hall today was not solely the fault of those who arranged the program. Part of the responsibility rests on the delegates themselves. They have lacked enthusiasm ever since they have been here. For instance: There is just one band so far at this convention—a local band of 50 pieces hired by the Landon headquarters to march through hotel lobbies playing. "O, Susanna." Imagine just one band at a national political convention.

Most of the delegates here are suffering from an inferiority and defeatist complex. The "country boys" from Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma loudly contend that Gov. Alf M. Landon will not only be nominated but elected to the Presidency. But the remainder of the delegates—with a few exceptions—spend their time going around asking one another and the political writers whether they think President Roosevelt can be defeated.

Many of these lads, keymen in the Republican machines back home, are starting the campaign with the feeling that they are going into a hopeless battle. The first task of the Republican nominee will be to put some fight into his party. Most of them now are as limp as dishrags.

46th Annual Reunion Held By Confedrates.

Shreveport, La., June 9 (AP).—The men who followed Lee and Jackson to battle in the 'sixties, meeting here for their forty-sixth annual reunion, insisted today they would continue to meet until there was only one of them left.

Shreveport, then the capital of Louisiana, was the last Confederate fort to drop the Confederate flag, on June 11, 1865. The remnant of the Confederate army today dedicated Fort Smith Memorial Park, which marks the site of one of the forts Gen. Kirby Smith built to defend the city.

Rising Tide for States' Rights Offers Vital Issue for Women

By Agnes E. Meyer.

Cleveland, June 9.—No development in this Republican convention is more important to women than the spontaneous demand for a return to States' rights which has swept over the delegates like a mounting storm.

Any analysis of the position of woman in the social structure calls attention sharply to the fact that her chief contributions to governmental procedure must always be of a local character. It is only the occasional woman who can hope to function effectively in the Federal administration. The great bulk of our feminine population always will be tied to the home and, therefore, it is only in their immediate environment that they can influence the country's social and political development. For this reason, if not for the larger one that local government is the keystone of our democratic structure, women will do well to study the Republican platform in its relationship to their own activities and to the welfare of women and children in general.

Recent trends of Government have endangered local control of all the protective measures that are closest to women's hearts—the provisions for welfare work of all sorts, for the unemployed, the aged, the destitute, the under privileged child, as well as the established educational and recreational programs which have been wholly built up as local functions.

Local Units Vital.

It is hard to conceive, for example, how so large and intelligent a group as the League of Women Voters can fail to recognize that such power as it has for good is intimately bound up with the maintenance of local autonomy, since the league is built up on State units and all of its best social contributions have been made through its local State and county divisions.

Furthermore, nobody knows better than the women of this country how much easier it is to control the public purse when local responsibility and an intimate knowledge of local needs determine expenditures. If men have an economic objection to the profligacy and waste which now obtain in every locality, women add to that a moral distaste for the influence which such laxness introduced not only in the life of the community but also in the atmosphere of their own homes.

Court Ruling a Factor.

If any doubt were left in the feminine mind as to the wisdom of State control of social measures, such hesitation would be dispelled by the last Supreme Court decision on the New York minimum wage law.

Nothing has defined more clearly the mood of the Republican delegates gathered here in Cleveland than their well-nigh unanimous determination to find means for restoring such protection for women, or, if all else fails, to demand a constitutional amendment that will restore to the States the right to establish such legislation.

No better arrangement for the autonomy of the individual States could be found than this, since radically different conditions in different parts of the country clearly rule out the possibility of a uniform Federal measure.

The appearence of this issue immediately before the convention is another example of "Landon luck," for Landon is the embodiment of militant State's rights and therefore of the need which every delegate suddenly envisages as his own discovery. A leader who will at the same time defend the Supreme Court and yet maintain in the face of its last decision that State's rights and a minimum of economic protection for women must prevail fits into the Republican picture as the hero of the hour. From every aspect that is vital to woman's status and vital to her ability to play an important role in the country's future, Landon stands out as the candidate for whom women will fight with that tenacity which only women can feel when the people and the principles they love most are at stake.

U. S. Farm Credit Scored by Banker

Seattle, June 9 (AP).—I. J. Roberts, assistant cashier of the Riggs National Bank, Washington, told the American Institute of Banking today that agencies of the Farm Credit Administration "have seriously affected country banks, by reducing available loans and making it necessary to find an outlet for their funds in investments, particularly Government securities."

"This has so reduced the income of many of the smaller banks that many of them could not exist if it were not for the charges they are now compelled to collect for services rendered free to customers in the past," he said.

Russell G. Smith, cashier of the Bank of America National Trust & Savings Association, San Francisco, said it was "a new thing to see banks advertising for loans and particularly loans of the kind not formerly eligible for rediscount at the Federal Reserve Bank."

"This change in lending policy is bringing the banks closer to the needs of the people," he said.

Organization Committee Nearly Fails to Function

Cleveland, June 9 (AP).—A meeting of the Republicans' permanent organization committee almost failed to get underway today for want of a chairman.

After a few rounds of applause, stamping and threats by several delegates to return to their hotels, however, Delegate Lew Miller, of Springfield, Ohio, stepped up, banged his fist on the table and called the meeting to order. Happy at the solution of their troubles, the other committee members quickly elected him chairman.

Steiwer Calls for Two-Party Drive to Defeat the New Deal

Senator Assails All Roosevelt's Laws Save Two

President Was 'Without Conscience' in 1933, Oregonian Says.

without a conscience refused for four months to co-operate with a President who had a conscience, resulting in a bank crisis and a panic of fear and fright."

The loud outburst of yells and hurrahs at the reference served to remind that tomorrow night Hoover will address the convention from the spot where Steiwer stood tonight. Observers wondered how much applause he will receive and whether the speech he makes will have any effect in shaping the conclusions reached by this convention.

Vague on Proposals.

On the constructive side, the address was vague and general, except for the contention that if the Republicans were restored to power they would correct all the evils which the keynoter maintained had flowed from the New Deal.

But in one respect Senator Steiwer made a definite and specific proposal. That was when he pleaded that the doors of opportunity in the United States should be kept open for all Americans. In that regard he assailed the Roosevelt thesis favoring "high costs of production with the resultant high prices which prevent people from buying."

As a gesture to Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, the keynoter declared that the "fixing of prices by monopolies and combines picks the pocket of the buying public."

"Here," he shouted, "is a worthy issue against the blundering fantasies of the New Deal. It is the cause of economic justice. I urge this cause upon the ground that protection of the weak is the highest function of government. It will be possible for the small business man to develop his enterprise and for the wage earner to enjoy more of the wealth which he creates."

These references brought only feeble applause, compared to the outburst which came at the reference to President Roosevelt's refusal to co-operate with Hoover after the 1932 election and the even greater outburst of cheering which came when Steiwer asserted that "when a Chief Executive finds unconstitutional concentration of power in himself, he should exercise his constitutional power to recommend that Congress take back its authority. This wholesome recommendation will be made in January, by an oath-keeping Republican President."

Democrats Ignored.

There was not a single reference throughout the Steiwer speech to the Democratic Party. His entire attack was heaped on President Roosevelt and the New Deal. He appealed for the support of all persons who opposed that regime, irrespective of party allegiance—and on one occasion Steiwer credited "the two great political parties" with advances made between 1910 and 1929 in this country.

The sharpest part of his address was aimed at New Deal spending. He asserted that "there could be no better testimony of the strength of the American system and to the character of the American people than that it has been able to sustain the orgy of the New Deal."

"The people," he added, "have created wealth faster than a profligate government could squander it."

Near the conclusion of his address, Steiwer undertook to compare the Treasury financial operations since the New Deal started with President Roosevelt's statement early in 1933 that "for three long years the Federal Government has been on the road to bankruptcy."

Again and again Steiwer repeated the phrase "for three long years," as he cited how under Roosevelt deficits, expenditures and debt had mounted. As he repeated the phrase the convention delegates joined him in refrain, yelling in loud tones the phrase: "For three long years."

Attack Is Surprise.

The severity of Steiwer's attack on the Hull reciprocal tariff program caused surprise. He indicted that program on the ground that agreements were made in secret, over our domestic economy" and that it "establishes a dictatorship that "it clothes the New Deal with authority to reward one section of the country at the expense of another."

"For the sake of our people," he asserted, "we must realize that the Administration's wishful hope to rescue the world at our expense has injured American industries and agriculture and added to unemployment, destitution and want. The combined effort of reckless and uninformed trade agreements plus the Administration's monetary policies are fast putting our Nation under foreign control Although we were a creditor Nation, we are in fact probably now a debtor Nation. And the New Dealers have not found it out."

But, as has been mentioned, these references brought only feeble applause.

The noon session, opening the convention, was a dull and listless affair, which failed even to draw a full house. Rows on top of rows of empty seats in the balconies, when Chairman Fletcher first started pounding his gavel, added to the gloomy atmosphere which stretched over the huge auditorium. Many spectators left long before the routine business was completed.

Preliminaries over, Chairman Fletcher sped the meeting through its routine program. The "call for the convention" was read by George B. De Keim, secretary of Fletcher rattled off a motion to elect the national committee, Chairman Senator Steiwer as temporary chairman, which was carried. He named a committee to escort the Oregonian to the platform at the night meeting.

Moves Officers' Election.

Charles Francis Adams, former Secretary of the Navy and a delegate from Massachusetts, moved the election of the slate of temporary officers proposed by the arrangements committee. The major figures were:

Secretary—La Fayette B. Gleason, of New York.

Chief Assistant Secretary—Charles M. Harger, of Kansas.

Sergeant at arms—Robert E. O'Connor, of West Virginia.

Parliamentarian—John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut.

Official reporter—George L. Hart, of Washington.

Chief doorkeeper—Eden T. Brekke, of Illinois.

Chaplains—The Rev. A. J. McCartney, of Washington; Bishop Ernest Lynn, of Illinois; Bishop Joseph Schrembs, of Ohio, and Rabbi Louis Wolsey, of Pennsylvania.

In addition, there was a host of assistant secretaries, reading clerks, tally clerks and assistant sergeants at arms.

Knox Demands Lucid Platform Of Convention

Cleveland, June 9.—A demand that the Republican Party take "a clear, courageous and unequivocal position" on the major platform issues was made in a statement tonight by Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago. He said the party's platform position "may well determine whether or not I am still a candidate for the nomination."

"If the Republican Party should adopt a platform which seeks by the use of weasel words to please all factions by wording the planks in such a way that each man may read and interpret them to suit himself, then I want to say right now that I am the wrong man to carry the banner," he declared.

Knox demanded that there be "no pussyfooting" on the currency plank.

"Apparently there are some who favor the adoption of a plank which would mean as little as President Roosevelt's sound currency to be preserved at all hazards," he said.

"A sound currency to me means this: A currency convertible into gold at a rate subject to change by Congress only. This does not mean going back to the old parity. It probably means fixing the parity at something like the present rate. But this can only be finally determined when all the present off-gold countries return to gold and fix their parities."

Knox said he would repeal the President's power to devalue the dollar.

He said he favored a constitutional amendment giving the States authority in the wages and hours field "if careful study shows that such power is not already vested in them." He asked that any farm plank recognize "that fundamentally the American farmer has a right to the American market."

3 Hurt as Storm Sweeps 2 States

Des Moines, Iowa, June 9 (AP).—Wind, hail and rain swept along an 800-mile path across Nebraska and Iowa today, leaving widespread damage.

Three persons were injured, two critically, in highway accidents. A Des Moines man was burned when he touched an electric wire. Another was hurt when the wind blew him into the path of an automobile.

The wind unroofed a factory building and a street car barn here, toppled a radio tower from the Register and Tribune Building, and disrupted street car service for two hours.

At Council Bluffs, Iowa, the front of a lumber company was blown away. Near Kearney, Nebr., wind wrecked a farmstead, and at Valley, Nebr., it tore up an Omaha school's R. O. T. C. camp.

At Atlantic, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. R. Westcott, of San Marine, Calif., suffered critical injuries when Westcott drove into a truck during a blinding rainstorm at Davenport. Verne Lucas, 40, was struck by an automobile as he rode through the gale on his bicycle.

Rochester, Minn., June 9 (AP).—Mayo Clinic physicians said today Breckinridge Long, United States Ambassador to Italy, was "progressing satisfactorily" following an abdominal operation Saturday.

Landon's Hope on First Ballot

from that State. Ohio has a favorite son in the person of Robert Taft, son of the former President, but it was reported that Brown had been having difficulty preventing the delegation from making an immediate break to Landon. When the break does come, the Kansas Governor is expected to receive 30 or more of the State's 48 votes.

Brown's defeat marks the passing of another Old Guard leader. It was accomplished only after a bitter struggle. On the third ballot taken in the State's caucus Frank F. Taggart, Massillon merchant and banker, received 27 votes, a bare majority. Brown was given 21 votes and the other five were scattered. Taggart is reported to be favorable to Landon.

In connection with the postponement of the Pennsylvania caucus, former Senator David Reed declared that "we don't want to give ourselves away now, because it is too soon."

Some opponents of Landon saw comfort in the delay by New York and Pennsylvania to hop on the bandwagon, hoping that there would be a swing in sentiment. There was nothing in the situation, however, to indicate that this hope was justified. In fact, there were indications that the Landon strength was piling up.

Hamilton continued to claim only that his candidate would receive "quite a bit" more than 400 votes on the first ballot. He said that he had conferred today with a number of New York leaders and that for this reason he had increased his estimate from his original estimate of 20 to 25 votes from that State on the first ballot.

Upon his arrival Knox and his supporters took over large areas of a downtown hotel and posted about the lobby and elsewhere the biggest signs and the biggest pictures in town. His organization began showing its first real signs of life.

Hamilton completed plans for placing Landon in nomination. He finished his nominating speech and announced the names of six delegates who will second the nomination. Among them will be a distant cousin of President Roosevelt, Mrs. Corrine Alsop, of Connecticut. Others who will make seconding speeches include Mrs. Albert T. Simms, of New Mexico (formerly Mrs. Ruth Hanna); Casper G. Brown, of Massachusetts; Charles J. Moynihan, of Colorado; Henry Depping, of Missouri, and H. W. Howard, of Mississippi.

The Illinois delegation was reported split, with 20 votes for Borah and 37 for Knox. There was no indication of where the Knox vote would go should the Chicagoan carry out his threat to withdraw. In the Landon column were such States as Massachusetts, Indiana (with the exception, possibly, of a few votes), Missouri, New Jersey, Connecticut, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia.

Borah's only strength, apparently, is coming from his home State of Idaho, Illinois, Oregon, Wisconsin and possibly some of the votes of Minnesota, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

The remainder of the 1,003 votes in the convention are accounted for by delegations with favorite sons and by delegations and parts of delegations who have not indicated how they expect to vote.

G. O. P. Picks Youngest Committeewoman, 26.

Cleveland, June 9 (AP).—Mrs. Roy Wates, a little, soft-spoken lady of 26, came up from Birmingham, Ala., to the national convention to be elected the youngest national committeewoman who has ever held office.

She has only had the right to vote for five years, but her organizing work for Young Republicans in six Southern States won her wide recognition.

Republicans Told 'Morality' Must Replace New Deal 'Orgy'

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, June 9.—The text of the keynote speech by Senator Steiwer, of Oregon, to the Republican National Convention tonight follows:

We meet tonight as the convention of a great and honorable political party. We do not meet as partisans, but as patriotic Americans, solemnly determined to proceed in the American way to launch a campaign to restore America to the American People.

Our purpose here is not only to adopt a Republican platform and to nominate a Republican President—a deeper and thoroughly American purpose is to start the drive to put an American deal into the place now usurped by a self-styled "New Deal."

In this service to our country we invite the aid and counsel of all Americans, regardless of political party. There are no party lines when human liberty is at stake. In this crisis, the issues are above all party differences. The duty of the united patriots of all parties is to restore to the American people their political and economic freedom and to provide them with a competent government founded on conviction and conscience.

It can be done. But it will not be done if we permit ourselves to be deceived by the defeatist talk of our enemies. The Nation knows by this time that the Administration is equipped with a monstrous, reckless propaganda machine operated with the taxpayers' money to advance its own ends.

No matter who the choice of this convention, and no matter what the platform, this machine will be set in operation. In the face of our advances in the campaign, we will hear the false cry that our efforts have fallen flat.

These falsehoods will be recognized and rightly resented by the people. The people will make the world know that this Nation cannot be bluffed and cannot be bought.

Political morality must be restored.

For more than three long years we have had a Government without political morality. I propose to show you that Government, endowed with conscience, will bring us a prosperity not built on promise and pretense, but built with the bricks and mortar of fundamental principles.

This prosperity will not be measured with the crooked lines and crooked, trick phrases of unconstitutional legislation, but by lines that square with the rules of honesty and morality.

When this convention shall have finished its labors, we shall offer the country a candidate with a sense of duty, and a platform that binds his conscience to guarantee to America that the Nation shall not be again deceived by political adventurers who have perverted the most sacred fundamentals of our Government.

We propose to carry forward the lamp of American progress; the lamp which has been dimmed by the depression and which the New Deal has tried to extinguish. We propose to show those who have waited for more than three long years for a real job how that job is to be obtained. We propose to show further to those who have jobs how those jobs can be protected against the ravages of the collapse which is inevitable under the New Deal. The 10,000,000 unemployed shall at last get the consideration which they deserve—and, with it, the privilege of honest work. They must be permitted to work again as free men and not languish as vote-slaves, nor as slaves of the dole.

We propose to show the 40,000,000 now in gainful employment that economic freedom depends upon adherence to a system under which their pay envelopes will not shrink, and under which their life insurance policies and savings bank deposits will be protected. If this great group of Americans will assert their heritage as Americans, they need never again fear a debacle such as we had in March, 1933, when a President-elect, without a conscience, refused for four months to cooperate with a President who had a conscience, resulting in a bank crisis and a panic of fear and fright. This Nation deserves a government by conscience. In order that its free institutions may be maintained, we have a right to insist upon a President who puts the interest of the people above considerations of personal politics.

fundamental to the prosperity of the Nation, and farm income must be kept in balance with industrial income.

5. Ours is an economy of profit and loss. It cannot thrive without both. Law or regulation to guard against the losses inevitable in competition freezes industry and prevents progress.

6. Government regimentation of business works to destroy business. Business—half-slave, half-free—cannot pay adequate wages or adequate profits and cannot adequately serve the consumer. The direct competition of Government in business uses the money of all the people to destroy the property of a part of the people.

7. A dollar primarily belongs to the man who earns it. Taxation is a seizure of purchasing power from the hands of its owner. Taxation to support a vast bureaucracy billets bureaucrats on every family and curtails the ability of that family to provide for itself.

8. Under the American system, it is the business of Government to govern according to the will of people as expressed in the laws. No one can excuse the bureauscrats' use of taxpayers money to write laws and to buy propaganda in order to force these same views on the people.

9. Our Nation owes to our people the duty to take advantage of our fortunate geographical position and to avoid all foreign entanglements.

Real Liberalism.

Are these views liberal or are they conservative? I must answer by asking what the word "liberal" means. If it means jumping up and down and not getting anywhere, the principles are not liberal. If liberal means pressing forward on the facts and promising only what can be performed, then the principles are liberal. Whether liberal or conservative, these are among the principles by which the spectacular progress of this Nation has been achieved.

Let us review the record of the New Deal in the light of these principles. At the Jackson dinner in Washington, the New Deal candidate asserted that the basic issue in this campaign is the retention of popular Government. We agree. But we do not agree that the people's Government is retained under a system headed by a New Deal Caesar. An Administration in which substantially all power is concentrated in one branch is not in keeping with the principles of popular Government. The contrary is true. The New Deal and its candidate are alike destructive of the basic essentials of popular Government. You and I know, and all should know, that the security of our liberties and economic opportunities demands that the Constitutional balance of the American Government shall be restored.

The Price of Bureaucracy.

Centralization of power is the Siamese Twin of bureaucracy. Expensive and arbitrary, its supreme evil is greed for money and power. History shows that centralized autocracy invariably seeks to build itself greater and stronger on the ruins of the people's liberties. It reaches for control of the education of children and the formation of thought, and finally all human rights, including religious freedom, must yield to its tyranny.

When a chief executive finds unconstitutional concentration of power in himself, he should exercise his constitutional power to recommend that Congress take back its authority. This wholesome recommendation will be made in January, by an oath-keeping Republican President.

Wicked Practices.

The New Deal has driven a wedge between what it calls the "under privileged" and the businessman, the professional man and the producer. To strengthen its political hold, it has adopted the un-American attitude of setting class against class. It asserts that it has driven the "money changers" from the temple. Where are these money changers? They are still in the temple. For the present Administration, by its tax bills, has tried to abolish thrift in business and to put every concern, big or little, into the hands of money lenders. Indeed the only business successfully fostered by this Administration has been the debt business. That has prospered.

enduring; that our duty to the 10,000,000 unemployed has not been met; and furthermore, that the power of the Federal Government to provide for those who are destitute has been frittered away until the Nation itself has become destitute.

We remember that the relief load is greater than it was before Congress provided the President with a blank check for nearly $5,000,000,000 of our people's money.

No informed person will credit any permanent improvement to New Deal policy. On its record it stands convicted of the crime of retarding recovery. In many foreign nations, where there is no New Deal, improvement has been more marked than in the United States. Yet America is the most virile Nation of the world, and possesses the greatest natural resources and the finest spirit of enterprise. It should have led the world in recovery, instead of lagging in twentieth place. No hypocritical pretense will acquit the New Deal on this count.

The failure of the New Deal cannot be attributed to Republican obstruction. In the beginning of its Administration, Republicans in Congress forgot politics in their desire to co-operate. The suffering caused by depression affected all in authority regardless of party. In my own case I threw aside partisan considerations and voted for some of the temporary measures to meet the emergency. In varying degrees we subordinated our personal and partisan views to support the national program.

At a later time we were forced to conclude that the Administration's design was to convert these temporary stop-gap laws into permanent policy and thus remodel the whole life of the Nation. This design was without mandate from the country and is contrary to every American conviction against autocratic Federal authority. We who voted to aid are most surely justified in our efforts to arouse understanding of the fact that the Administration has committed the unpardonable sin in seeking to convert its temporary, emergency program into permanent policy, and the further fact that it has not proved itself competent to administer the authority which it so eagerly acquired.

Recovery Deliberately Retarded.

This is the only Administration in our history which has deliberately impaired private credit, destroyed confidence and intimidated capital. The prudent, everywhere, abstain from risk which is aggravated by policies that harass and destroy. No one would advocate reform ahead of recovery except the reformers who can experiment and exploit only when the people are in distress.

In the fear that if the country recovers it will not take any more of their reforms, they have manufactured turmoil and disorder. The patient needs a competent physician, not these quacks of confusion. Pointing the finger of promise toward abundance, the New Deal has aimed its policies of performance in exactly the opposite direction. If Noah, in anticipation of the flood, had installed an irrigation system instead of building the ark, his mistake would have been no worse than have been the New Deal economic blunders.

was provided in the Constitution itself. But the present Administration, not trusting the people, in whom alone reposes this power, has attempted to effect changes by devious procedures that amount to nullification.

At no time has the New Deal been frank enough to reveal its real purpose by submitting a proposal for constitutional amendment. The Administration has shown preference for change by indirect means. In this they are entitled only to the people's condemnation. The menace to our American system lies not in amendment by due and regular procedure, but in its nullification by indirection. A perversion of democratic principles is reflected in the assumption of New Deal autocracy that it should exercise greater powers and that it, and not the people, should determine the extent of such power.

Another way to gain our American stride is to reduce forthwith the size of the Federal Government and to stop its wasteful spending. We point to our record of past performance. Fifteen years ago the Republican Party met a fiscal situation not unlike that which confronts the country today. Our Nation was deep in debt and taxes. Government bonds were 10 or 12 points below par. Millions were unemployed. The budget system was installed and enforced. Taxes were cut, debts were reduced and Government bonds went to par and stayed there. During the 12 years of Republican Administration taxes were reduced five times. What we have done once we will do again.

Above all else, is the need for the old-fashioned idea of thrift. No government can borrow itself rich, or spend itself prosperous. In private affairs we succeed only by the practice of sensible economy. Those who practice extravagance invite destruction. This Nation, for a time, forgot the necessity for economy. We have learned it again. The Administration has demonstrated that it is unable to obtain even a semblance of prosperity except by buying it, and its purchases are on a basis so vast and so impractical that they ultimately would destroy America. By midsummer the amount of their spending will equal the value of all the farm land and all the farm buildings in the United States, and the New Deal harvest is yet to come

By July 1 the present Administration will have increased the national debt more than $14,000,000,000, and has announced that, before a balanced budget can be obtained, there will be a further increase of several additional billions. I warn you that if America is to survive, debt expansion must be ended.

A resolute and uncompromising purpose to secure a balanced budget and honest assurances of reduction in debt are essential to restoration of public confidence. Then the business world will know there will be no further devaluation of the dollar; that we will no longer stand at the brink of inflation; that there will be no further repudiation of public obligations, and that there will be no additional exactions by the tax collector. These essential assurances will start in motion the wheels of industry.

Taxes That Destroy.

An hypocrisy which the New Deal seeks to foist upon the people is the belief that the rich pay the bill. But inasmuch as 62 cents out of every dollar coming into the United States Treasury is derived from concealed or indirect taxes, it is plain that the common people pay the lion's share. The taxes which impoverish are the sales taxes and other exactions which are concealed in the cost of living, and which increase the price of food and clothing. When you purchase gasoline, is it possible that the big oil company pays the sales tax, or is it posted over the gas pump and taken out of the pocket of the little man who buys the gas?

Behind the barrage of vainglorious boasting by the Administration propagandists of their service to the people is the brutal truth that the burden of supporting Federal extravagance is added to the cost of maintaining human life. It becomes a tyrannical exaction upon every man, every woman and every child, including the average man, the underprivileged and even the forgotten man. Under this Administration average wages have increased about 8 per cent while the cost of living has increased approximately 20 per cent. Every one of our 40,000,000 toilers are also payers, and they and their sons and daughters will keep on paying long after we have ousted the spendthrifts. Today the wage earner is working at least one day a week solely to pay the cost of Government.

selves over the division of the wealth already created.

There is nothing liberal in such a theory. On the contrary it is in the most sordid sense reactionary. It shows an utter lack of faith in the people and would cause them to lose faith in themselves. It assumes that the day of magnificent attainment is ended, and everywhere that its baleful clutch lays hand on society it freezes the status of men, women and children.

It is the Old World concept upon which castes are founded. This devastating philosophy restrains every good impulse and slams the door of opportunity in the face of every man who dares to aspire.

Americans can boast that heretofore, following every depression, our people have found the impetus to reorganize for greater attainment. They have declined to regard the country as bankrupt and the Government as a receiver. They have been free to plan the progress which has made America great. We must make known our purpose: That we will renounce this alien viewpoint, and we here and now proclaim the truth that America is yet free to build, to create and to prosper. We will again force recognition of the one great fact: that the most priceless privilege of citizenship under the American Flag is the right to seek and obtain merited reward, unhampered, unrestrained and unafraid.

And now I ask the simple question—Will America live or die? And I answer that America will live, because the people are firmly resolved that our Nation shall not die. When have we ever tested the full measure of the people's strength? Not in 1778, save by the soldiers whose bloodstained tracks were left in the snow at Valley Forge. Not in 1863, except by those who dared to charge and those who dared to stand at Gettysburg. Nor was it tested in full in 1918, except by those who dared to die on the fields of France.

The full measure and depth of a great people's will is unknown, even to themselves. The secret lies hidden in the omnipotent mind of the Creator of all courage and all resolution. To him let our prayers be offered that an aroused America, cast out all doubt, will vindicate the faith of the fathers. We shall not falter, but in new-found strength will hold high, in the splendor of a bright dawn, the banner of a Nation's liberties.

Trick Formulas Found Worthless In the Present Economic Setup

Our economic system.

A primary function of our Government is to keep open the way to employment at wages which will provide an increasingly higher standard of living.

How can we achieve this objective? Not by trick formulas and sharp practices. They have all been tried and found worthless, for they have only made worse the disease they set out to cure. That could not be otherwise, for this Administration has never diagnosed the disease they said they could cure. Like the leeches of old, they have bled a patient who was already suffering from loss of blood.

Let us see how we as a Nation earn our living. In 1930 the percentage of our people engaged in agriculture was about 22 and in industry was about 32. The other 46 per cent gainfully employed were in the service occupations and dependent upon the two great pillars, agriculture and industry.

If the workers and the owners in agriculture and in industry can mutually exchange man hours of labor on a proper level, their capacity to consume is boundless. The servicing of their wants brings into profitable employment the great army who do not produce goods, but who produce services, and who are as necessary as those who produce goods. Automobiles would not be of much use without gas stations.

The principle of balance to which I have referred extends throughout the American system of economics. The ideals of both the great political parties have always had to do with finding ways and means to make that system work more perfectly. Our parties have differed as to these ways and means, but never until March, 1933, has an Administration elected to preserve and develop the American system tried, by the autocratic use of its Executive power, to abolish the very system that it is sworn to conserve. And no administration has ever before pretended that destruction was reform.

Our system has not worked perfectly, but it has provided more for the man who works than has any other system the world has ever known, and the chief reason for the present unemployment in this country is the blocking of the progress of the American system by trying out plans and ideas borrowed from the poverty economics of Europe, and resorted to by this Administration in a frantic effort to catch the applause of the people. We propose to restore the balance that makes jobs.

The American system, as administered by the two great political parties between 1910 and 1929, brought the average annual earnings of wage and salaried workers in industry actually employed from $670 to $1,520 a year. The same period saw the average annual gross agricultural income per person actually employed raised from $750 to $1,570 a year. Or, to put it another way, in 1910 it took a year's work to buy an automobile, but in 1929 it took only half a year's work. In consequence, where in 1910 we had less than 500,000 passenger cars, in 1929 we had more than 23,000,000.

That is the period which the New Dealers contemptuously refer to as the Era of Tooth and Claw. There could be no better testimony of the strength of the American system and to the character of the American people than that it has been able to sustain the orgy of the New Deal. The people have created wealth faster than a profligate Government could squander it.

What are the principles of the American system which must be put in force if we are to recover from the New Deal? Here is a simple statement of some of them:

1. Our Government must provide an honest money and banking system which will permit the free and uninterrupted exchange of wealth and will not be subject to the sinister control of any group. Whether the group be politicians in Washington or speculators in Wall Street the consequences to the public are the same. The money system must not be any man's toy.

2. Our Government is a vast business enterprise. But it is not run as a business. Had the people understood the relation of Government finance to the national wealth and to the income and outgo of the people, there would have been no New Deal.

3. Foreign trade may create either an asset or a liability. If we import goods which could be made or grown at home, we deprive American workers or farmers of the opportunity to earn livelihoods, and break down the American standards of living and thus compel a dependence upon foreign sources of supply. Such dependence cripples us in peace and renders us helpless in war. In effect, there is no difference between receiving goods made by pauper labor and receiving the pauper labor itself.

4. Agriculture's prosperity is

New Deal Spoilsmen Ruthless; Coddling of Aliens Stirs Unrest

It promised to preserve the merit system in Government service, yet every day brings an accretion of New Deal spoilsmen to the Federal pay roll. Fine public servants have been ruthlessly replaced by favorites, and the Government today is literally the worst, most conscienceless employer in the land.

The New Deal pretends it would protect American interests, yet harbors aliens who are not entitled to remain in America, but are permitted to remain and who compete with the American working man, increasing the cost of our struggle against crime and adding to our relief burden. It coddles agitators and encourages the purveyors of unrest at a time when the Nation needs a firm and dignified leadership. Not content to employ professors and theorists as economic advisers, the New Deal has placed the affairs of government in their hands. It depends on bookworms for practical experience and on hookworms for energy. It renounced the purposes and ideals of the great party whose name it bears, and threw away the opportunity for service which that party long had sought.

The New Deal propagandists boast of its humanitarian purpose and support this boast by pointing to Federal aid of those in distress. Such aid was, and is, an obvious duty of a civilized nation. But the irony of it is that the Administration made only one gesture of permanent character toward fulfilling its pledge to balance the Federal budget.

That was an act to reduce compensation and to withhold hospitalization from the disabled veterans of our wars, while at the same time the New Deal planned lavish spending for other purposes. In order to trap Congressional support for its bill, it pretended that it would deal justly with the veterans and that it would continue a program of genuine economy. The poor and the maimed who suffered the Administration's ingratitude are far from convinced that it was actuated by humanitarian purposes.

Their program of aid to the distressed is further condemned for its abuse of great national purpose in order to serve the venal desires of New Deal politicians. This had been characterized as the "poison of politics in the bread of relief." Reform in the methods of relief will result in more relief to the destitute at less cost to the taxpayer.

The Republican Party will not turn its back on those in distress, but it will make sure that public funds voted to feed hungry mouths will be used for that purpose and will not be employed for the enrichment of political straphangers. The money provided for work relief is not the personal gift of any politician, but is the money of the people of the United States. Every consideration of decency in politics condemns the politician who would make private or partisan use of the distribution of the people's money. If the Salvation Army had used its good works to build a political organization—as was done by the New Deal army—it could have claimed the whole world—not merely the 48 States claimed by Farley.

Bad Bargain.

New Deal politicians tell us that prosperity has been returned through their efforts. The improvement that has come has been largely purchased at the expense of the public treasury, and we have paid for more prosperity than we have received. Improvement purchased on credit is a dear luxury, uncertain to this generation—unjust to the next. When national resources and credit are exhausted, the Nation will find itself face to face with these unpleasant facts: That purchased business activity is not

Plight of Agriculture Cited As New Deal Deceit of Farmer

What has the Administration done to agriculture? After three long years of complete control of every branch of the Federal Government, they have failed to provide a permanent farm program. Farm income in 1935, including the Government checks, was $3,000,000 less than in the "twenties."

They made worse the triple A program by maladministration—by making food costly and scarce. When the law was held invalid they wholly ignored the Supreme Court and shifted hysterically to a stop-gap measure called the soil conservation act. Under this act they continue temporarily the regulation of production which has been held unconstitutional. This makeshift is a manifest effort to deceive the farmer. The fact is the Administration has no program, and when this act is also held unconstitutional an impotent New Deal will be floundering helplessly together with the farmer whom they seek to deceive.

Our producers, entitled to complete possession of the American market, have seen that market delivered to aliens. The agricultural area removed from production in our country is estimated at 36,000,000 acres, and it is further estimated that the increased importations of agricultural products into our country require for their production about the same number of acres. As our home markets were being invaded by foreign producers, our farmers were, at the same time, losing a portion of their markets in foreign lands.

Our great domestic markets should be restored to the farmer—in full. The problem of surpluses which glut the domestic market must be solved. We should consider the case of export crops where tariff protection is ineffective. The scientific development of industrial uses for the products of agriculture opens a wide field which has been blocked by the present Administration.

Trade Bargaining Rampant.

The greatest help for agriculture would be a National administration which would rebuild the great American market by policies assuring the re-employment of the 10,000,000 unemployed. The farm problem must and will be met, without violation of the Constitution, without regimentation, without burdensome taxes, and without any program of curtailment of ruthless destruction of food needed in a hungry world.

One of the fundamentals of established national policy is tariff protection of efficient American production. America does not propose to destroy the opportunity of our citizens by giving up this protection. There is always need for reform. But what has the incumbent Administration done in connection with its pledge for such reform? It enacted in 1934 the reciprocal trade agreement act.

This law permits agreements to be made in secret, and without consultation with the American interests affected, and without fair opportunity to protect those interests. It establishes a dictatorship over our domestic economy.

It clothes the New Deal with authority to reward one section of the country at the expense of another. It enables these politicians to determine which community shall be promoted and which shall be destroyed by exposure to foreign competition. Without giving the people, or the people's representatives in the Senate, opportunity to express any opinion, it permits inexperienced visionaries in the New Deal to destroy opportunity which our people need and should be permitted to enjoy.

Of course, such a system fails to accomplish expansions in our foreign trade, which was the declared purpose of this law. It has increased the sale in our markets of goods produced by aliens which our producers should have supplied.

Agreements have been negotiated right and left with shrewd foreign traders who have reduced rates on articles which they desired to import into their countries, whereas the Administration's pretended "good neighbor" policy has resulted in American reductions of duty in agricultural, dairy and forest products, of which we already had a surplus.

The net result is a downward revision of the tariff which has seriously impaired our American system of protection. For the sake of our people, we must realize that the Administration's wishful hope to rescue the world at our expense has injured American industries and agriculture and added to unemployment, destitution and want.

The combined effort of reckless and uninformed trade agreements plus the Administration's monetary policies are fast putting our Nation under foreign control. The devaluation of the dollar, combined with the purchase of gold at $35 an ounce, has given to foreigners in gold-standard countries a bargain rate on America.

They have sold us gold to the extent of nearly $3,000,000,000. With the proceeds the foreigners have bought our securities, have taken back their own defaulted securities at a discount and, although we were a creditor nation, we are in fact probably now a debtor nation. And the New Dealers have not found it out.

The Way Out.

To preserve our country we must get int. the American stride again. One way to do it is to rid every administrative post of the political opportunists who now distort the policies of our Government. Our basic law was framed by far-seeing patriots who sought improvement by every honorable means.

To permit change and expansion, opportunity for amendment

President's Tactics to Lull Youth Into Security Likened to Soviet

The New Deal candidate in his Baltimore speech of April, employed the tactics of the Soviet Union when he said that flaming youth had become a flaming question; that the best that had been done for youth before the depression was not good enough then, and is not good enough today. This is one way of saying that youth had been fettered and mistreated in a society controlled by adults. He insinuates that fathers and mothers lack pride in their sons and that parents and grandparents are indifferent to the future of those who bear their name.

To this insult I answer that no supposed handicap suffered by youth prior to the depression can compare with the loss sustained when youth is compelled by the false economies of the New Deal to exchange their American opportunity, to which they are entitled, for enrollment in a Federal camp at $20 per month. Nor can this supposed handicap compare with the cruel slavery caused by the inheritance of New Deal debt. New Deal extravagance is bending the back of the people with an unfair burden and has condemned all the babies of the entire Natioh to be rocked in cradles decorated by debt.

If I appraise correctly the high character of American women, they will not wait for the leadership of men in rising to the defense of the homes of this Nation. They will accept their responsibility to the children in those homes. They will repudiate the New Deal at the ballot box.

In 1933, in a message to Congress, the President used these words:

"For three long years the Federal Government has been on the road toward bankruptcy."

And then he said:

"Thus we shall have piled up an accumulated deficit of $5,000,000,000."

That was the accumulation of four years. Let us consider the accumulation of the last three long years. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1934, the deficit was approximately $4,000,000,000. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1935, it was in excess of $3,500,000,000. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, and eliminating any requirement for the payment of the soldiers' bonus, the deficit is between $3,500,000,000 and $4,000,000,000. For three long years the deficits have exceeded those which the President denounced. For three long years we have continued on the road toward bankruptcy. Instead of an accumulated deficit of $5,000,000,000 in four years, we have a deficit of approximately $11,000,000,000 in three years—but they are three very long years.

New Deal Speculation Must End To Halt Tyranny Over Millions

During the same period the Government spending has gone up. Listen to the astounding totals—for three long years: For the fiscal year 1933, approximately $5,000,000,000; for 1934, $7,000,000,000; for 1935, $7,400,000,000; for 1936, $7,600,000,000 and the estimate of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, is in excess of $8,250,000,000.

I ask this question—for how long a period has the Federal deficit exceeded that which the President denounced? For three long years? For how long a period has the Federal spending been kept above the $7,000,000,000 line? For three long years. For how long a period has the Chief Executive called upon the Congress to pass a new tax bill increasing the tax burden upon a helpless Nation? For three long years. For how long have we lived under the evil trinity of increased deficit, increased debt and increased taxes? For three long years.

We will end its tyranny when we rid our Government of the New Deal speculators who have speculated for three long years. They have speculated with the billions of the people's money just as the gamblers of Wall Street speculated with the millions belonging to those same people.

Keep the Doors Open.

Without doubt the greatest need in the life of most of us is that the doors of opportunity be held open that we may pay the obligations which we have assumed. It is the plain duty of a just Government to guarantee that those doors shall remain open. If we take stock of our situation, what do we find? First, a people loaded with debt and lacking for essential credit. Second, an Administration which has permitted industries to write their own codes into law, has permitted the fixing of prices and has failed to enforce antitrust laws.

It advocates high costs of production with the resultant high prices which prevent people from buying. Its theory destroys the purchasing power of the people and results in under-consumption. It is the theory of scarcity. Labor will be employed and private debts will be paid only if the people are permitted and encouraged to produce. The Nation needs new wealth, which will be had only through an economy based on fair prices, free competition and more efficient and cheaper distribution. Fixing of prices by monopolies and combines picks the pocket of the buying public.

Here is a worthy issue against the blundering fantasies of the New Deal. It is the cause of economic justice. I urge this cause upon the ground that protection of the weak is the highest function of government. It will make it possible for the small business man to develop his enterprise and for the wage earner to enjoy more of the wealth which he creates.

This discussion leads to the ultimate issue of this momentous campaign. I have talked of the public debt, but over and above debt is the blighting effect of the burden of tax which the New Deal lays upon the backs of the people. Over and above this burden is the threat of inflation which lurks in our path a darker danger—the certainty that this road leads only to collapse, and to the tragic end of democratic institutions. The Nation must choose. We can stand exposed to this chaos or we can preserve for ourselves and for our children a righteous order of free opportunity.

Is the American achievement only a memory of a great age, to be meditated upon by a decadent Nation? That is the theory of the Old World. It is the viewpoint of those who are in the President's councils. This European theory presupposes that we will create no additional wealth, and that we are justified in a fight among ourselves over the division of the wealth already created.

There is nothing liberal in such a theory. On the contrary it is in the most sordid sense reactionary. It shows an utter lack of faith in the people and would cause them to lose faith in themselves. It assumes that the day of magnificent attainment is ended, and everywhere that its baleful clutch lays hand on society it freezes the status of men, women and children.

It is the Old World concept upon which castes are founded. This devastating philosophy restrains every good impulse and slams the door of opportunity in the face of every man who dares to aspire.

Americans can boast that heretofore, following every depression, our people have found the impetus to reorganize for greater attainment. They have declined to regard the country as bankrupt and the Government as a receiver. They have been free to plan the progress which has made America great. We must make known our purpose: That we will renounce this alien viewpoint, and we here and now proclaim the truth that America is yet free to build, to create and to prosper. We will again force recognition of the one great fact: that the most priceless privilege of citizenship under the American Flag is the right to seek and obtain merited reward, unhampered, unrestrained and unafraid.

And now I ask the simple question—Will America live or die? And I answer that America will live, because the people are firmly resolved that our Nation shall not die. When have we ever tested the full measure of the people's strength? Not in 1778, save by the soldiers whose bloodstained tracks were left in the snow at Valley Forge. Not in 1863, except by those who dared to charge and those who dared to stand at Gettysburg. Nor was it tested in full in 1918, except by those who dared to die on the fields of France.

The full measure and depth of a great people's will is unknown, even to themselves. The secret lies hidden in the omnipotent mind of the Creator of all courage and all resolution. To him let our prayers be offered that an aroused America, cast out all doubt, will vindicate the faith of the fathers. We shall not falter, but in new-found strength will hold high, in the splendor of a bright dawn, the banner of a Nation's liberties.

Applause Dial Gives Victory To Vandenberg

was off, and it was three minutes before Steiwer, in an unnerved voice, started off again.

Hall Fills Rapidly.

The session got under way at 8:45 p. m. The hall had filled rapidly after waiting all day for fireworks that had been withheld from the dull brief morning meeting.

Senator Vandenberg had received a huge spontaneous ovation from the convention as he stood on the rear of the platform to pose for pictures, waving his straw hat at the crowd.

On the side of one of the broadcasting booths by the stage there is a long indicator marked with degrees, which serve as an applause thermometer, measuring the decibels of sound above a certain pitch. It doesn't light up on hand-clapping, but voices raised loudly above a set pitch shoot its streak of light high. It seemed significant that the brief demonstration for Senator Vandenberg received a higher rating on the thermometer, which the press section watched all night, than any point but two in the Steiwer speech.

The one really happy incident in his address came after he had repeatedly used the words "for three long years." When he came to a peroration in which he reiterated these words again and again, the audience began to shout in chorus with him, and this aroused the high-spot hilarity of the evening.

The convention show thus far had disappointed reporters, all set with brave and purple words to describe the rebirth of the G. O. P. A Ziegfeld or a Max Reinhardt, it appeared tonight, is even more of a Republican need than a candidate or a platform. There hasn't been an evidence yet of showmanship. A good hot swing band, a chorus of George White beauties doing their "boondoggling" number from the last "Scandals," and, above all, a speaker who can make words crackle and phrases ring, who can arouse the party from its sleeping sickness—those are Republican needs from the average man's angle.

Early Session a Rehearsal.

The morning session had been a reeharsal. Here's how it went:

Sharply at 11:41 a. m., 41 minutes after the opening time, Chairman Fletcher actually began to rap his gavel. The score was as follows: Three raps, no attention; three more raps, no attention; 4-0, 3-0, 3-0, 4-0, 5-0, and then Fletcher got mad and rapped 21 times hard, and got some attention.

Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, of Washington, prayed for guidance. The audience, standing, sang "America."

Near The Post staff's seats, hard by the convention's platform, were a crew of London correspondents, Sir Wilmott Lewis, of the London Times; Sir Percival Phillips, of the Daily Telegraph, and James Bone, of the Manchester Guardian. All gravely singing the words of "God Save the King" to the music.

League Consideration Not Opposed by Chile

By the Associated Press.

The Chilean Embassy last night asserted that its government did not object to the consideration of proposals for the formation of a League of American Nations and of an inter-American Court of Justice at the forthcoming All-American Peace Conference in Buenos Aires.

In a statement the embassy said its government's recent memorandum concerning composition of the conference's agenda "expressed only some ideas on the matter, and the Chilean Embassy in Washington wishes to make it clear that the Chilean Government did not object to due discussion and consideration being given to those topics at the Buenos Aires conference."

Cleveland Pickpockets Get Convention Haul.

Cleveland, June 9 (AP).—Pickpockets preyed upon visitors to the Republican National Convention in crowded hotel lobbies today.

Victims who complained to police and the amounts they claimed they lost were:

Wallace R. Levett, of Melrose, Mass., $75; William J. Bleese, of St. Louis, $25, and Alex Montgomery, of Solway, Ky., $80.

Authorities have assigned special squads of plain clothesmen to protect the convention crowd from deft, if lawless, fingers.

Labor Supports No Candidate, Green Asserts

Iowa; William Allen White, of Emporia, Kans.; Sam W. Reynolds, of Omaha, Nebr.; George H. Moses, of Concord, ... H.; former Senator Walter E. Edge, of Venter, N. J.; M. Y. Cooper, of Cincinnati, Ohio; former Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh; Orville Bullington, of Wichita Falls, Tex., and John Taber, of New York.

A compromise between candidates put forward for the responsible post by the Far West and the East, Langworthy was the unanimous choice of the committee. No other names were put in nomination. Former Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, who for 20 years has represented his State on the committee, was elected vice chairman, and J. Reuben Clark, jr., former Assistant Secretary of State and one time Ambassador to Mexico, was chosen secretary.

Undergoes Rigid Grilling.

The Labor Federation leader was rigorously cross-questioned by delegates, as he finished his prepared manuscript, not only on labor's reputed New Deal leanings, but on his constitutional views and labor's minimum wage position. He evoked a three-minute demonstration of handclapping when he declared against Federal or State regulation of the wages of men, after vigorously expressing himself in favor of similar "protection" for women and children.

Round of Applause Ensues.

Then shouts of "You're wrong" greeted his declaration for "the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no law shall be declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court except by not less than two-thirds vote of its members."

"I know some of you don't like it," Green said, "but I hope you will put it in your platform anyway."

Robert B. Dresser, of Rhode Island, bluntly asked Green why he favored minimum wage for women and children and not for men.

"Simply because working men are not yet ready to surrender themselves to the Government," he shouted.

A roar of applause drowned out the speaker.

"We believe that's dictatorship and Fascism," he went on.

It was a question by L. W. Robinson, of South Dakota, believed to have been aimed not only at a speech by Green interpreted as espousing Roosevelt's re-election, but at the pro-New Deal Labor Non-Partisan League as well, which opened the way for the brisk examination. Robinson said the question of labor's partisanship was certain to come up in committee discussions, and it was only fair that Green explain.

Partisanship Denied.

Green's face turned beet red, and he hesitated a moment. Then he said:

"The American Federation of Labor is committed to a strictly non-partisan policy. It is a policy of a half century, and was reaffirmed at the Atlantic City convention. We bind into a common brotherhood men of different political and religious views, and stand unfalteringly for the right of a man to vote or worship as he wishes.

"The federation has made no statement in favor of any candidate or party. What individual members may have said reflects merely what they as individuals believe. The federation at no time has taken a partisan stand."

One by one the representatives of the great farm organizations, the National Woman's Party, the Economists National Committee on Monetary Policy, the National Peace Conference, Republican figures in Congress, and others, appeared before the group which will frame the platform on which the Republican Party will carry its case to the country. They were accorded a maximum of 7 minutes each to speak, but in a few instances their time was extended.

Fish Voices Complaint.

Echoes of Senator Borah's bitter attack on foreign relations and other planks reputedly drafted by "controlling forces" in the convention, were heard when Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., New York Republican Liberal and Borah supporter, complained that neither the Idahoan nor himself, ranking minority members, respectively, of the Senate Foreign Affairs and the House Foreign Relations Committee, had been consulted.

Fish said he wanted to "substantiate" what Borah already had said.

"I do not know who wrote those planks," the New Yorker said. "But I know Borah had nothing to do with them. And I know I had nothing to do with them. I believe your representatives in Congress should have something to say in the matter."

Fish asked that the platform make clear that America does not favor entry into the League, war sanctions or foreign commitments of any kind.

"We should say plainly that we do not propose to enter into any foreign blood feuds or boundary disputes—that we favor millions for defense, but not one dollar to send our soldiers across the seas to fight other people's battles," he declared.

For Wage Regulation.

Fish also declared for a flat declaration in favor of State wage regulation for men, women and children, referring to the Supreme Court's 5-to-4 wage decision as "unfortunate."

"In case of failure of such legislation," he added, "we should ask a constitutional amendment."

The question of a constitutional amendment giving States the power to legislate in the wage field is one of the important matters pending before the resolutions committee. There is a predominance of sentiment in favor of adding the words "if necessary" after any declaration for a constitutional amendment.

"I honestly believe that if we try to evade or ignore this question we will be playing directly into the hands of the Democratic Party," Fish told the group. "If we refuse to act now, I believe it means at least a million votes."

Gold Issue Injected.

The volatile question of a return to the gold standard, an issue over which Republican leaders are at loggerheads, was injected by Walter E. Spahr, speaking for the Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy, of which Edwin W. Kemmerer, of Princeton, is president.

Condemning Democratic monetary policies as "rash experimentation with the people's money," and assailing alleged attempts to usurp Federal Reserve Board powers and "exploit" it politically, Spahr asked reaffirmation of "the Republican Party's advocacy of a gold standard currency and its desire that the United States co-operate with other nations in every reasonable effort to make the gold standard a better standard."

Spokesman for the National Grange and American Farm Bureau Federation laid elaborate farm planks before the committee. Speaking for the former organization, L. J. Tabor asked that reciprocal treaty legislation be rewritten to provide for ratification by the Senate, and repeal of the unconditional most-favored-nation clause. Control of agricultural imports through permits, and elimination of much of the agricultural free list, were among policies favored by the grange.

Adjustment of acreage of given commodities, and intrastate or interstate farm compacts, with Federal allotments and control in interstate commerce for the protection of co-operating States, headed a nine-point platform advanced by Earl Smith, of the American Farm Bureau Federation. Smith also asked a managed currency.

An "equal rights for women" amendment to the Constitution was demanded by Helen Robbins Bitterman, of the National Woman's Party.

She said the amendment should read:

"Men and women shall have equal rights in the United States, and in every place throughout its jurisdiction."

She differs with Green's position that the Constitution should be amended to provide wage regulation for women only, holding that women have worked at a disadvantage in every State making this discrimination.

"If labor legislation is to be written in a way to bring equity and justice, then let us have it not for women only," she said. "Don't protect us. Give us an equal break."

Delegates cheered when Green proposed withdrawal of recognition from Soviet Russia.

Other points in the labor leader's statement declared for a public works relief program to assist the unemployed, a shorter work day and shorter work week, higher wages, collective bargaining, free speech, free press and assembly, and extension of Federal and State "social justice" legislation.

Other planks were submitted as follows:

Former Representative Franklin Fort, of New Jersey—Denunciation of production control, tariff increases on competitive imports, and retirement back into the public domain of unfit lands.

F. X. Eble, former commissioner of customs—Repeal of the reciprocal tariff program.

G.O.P. Reports $220,856 Total For War Chest

Industrial, Social Leaders Listed Among Donors to Party Fund.

By the Associated Press.

Some of the biggest names on the Nation's industrial and social registers appeared in the Republican National Committee's quarterly financial statement filed with the House clerk yesterday, showing a preconvention war chest of $220,856.

That was the cash balance on hand May 31 after deducting expenditures of $571,549 during March, April and May. In that period contributions of $435,152 were reported.

The name of Rockefeller appeared on contributions totaling $16,000. John D. Rockefeller, of New York, gave $5,000, as did John D. Rockefeller, jr., and John D. Rockefeller 3d. Lawrence S. Rockefeller, of New York, gave $1,000.

The Mellons of Pittsburgh contributed $25,000—A. W. Mellon, Paul Mellon, Richard K. Mellon, Mrs. Sarah Mellon Scaife and Mrs. Jennie K. Mellon each giving $5,000.

Landon Amazes Crowd by Going To See Dentist

'Is He Kidding Us?' Ask Newsmen as Governor Keeps Appointment.

By the United Press.

Topeka, Kans., June 9.—Scores of visitors, who came here today to see how a man acts with a Presidential nomination within his grasp, were upset when Gov. Alf M. Landon calmly went out to see a dentist.

Those who had expected to see Landon huddled over a radio bringing news from the Republican convention in Cleveland were unable to find a radio in the executive offices.

Ears tuned to catch any stray pronouncement of history-making import heard only that "it's very hot" and "the news is in Cleveland today." None, however, needed to look at a thermometer to know it was more than 100 degrees in Topeka.

And as for news, many editors believed Landon's nomination was so certain that they were sending reporters and photographers to Topeka to get in ahead of the parade. These eastern newspapermen were incredulous when Landon marched out to the dentist.

"Is he kidding us?" they asked.

"Honest," said Willard Mayberry, the Governor's secretary, "he made the appointment yesterday."

The same imperturable calm was evident among Landon's office force. There was one of the largest mails to open and sort that a Topeka postal force ever had carried.

When Landon returned from the Dentist's office, he joked with the cameramen and posed for pictures with Mayor H. G. Barrett. There were several long distance calls awaiting the Governor, one reportedly from Ogden Mills, of New York.

Landon refused to comment on reports he might accept the invitation of Col. Clarence D. Chamberlain, the famous flier, who is here and has offered to take Landon to Cleveland if he is nominated.

Nice Indicates He Is Fighting For 2d Honors

Maryland Governor Declares East Must Have Man on Ticket.

Cleveland, June 9.—Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland, today admitted in effect that he was a candidate for the Vice Presidential nomination.

Nomically he is a candidate for the nomination for President. A headquarters has been set up for him in the Hotel Statler here. Literature is being passed around. The 16 Maryland delegates have been instructed to vote for Gov. Nice for the nomination for President.

But the chief executive from the Free State today issued a statement which made it clear that he is after the nomination for Vice President. He said:

"I have talked with leaders from a great number of States, and I believe that the Vice Presidential nominee should come from the East.

"Anti-New Deal sentiment in the East is very strong. But I can not believe that it is strong enough to withstand the affront which would naturally result from the selection of both nominees from the West."

YES, VALVE-IN-HEAD WINS AGAIN!

And Buick Builds an Engine Like This for You to Enjoy

THE engines that power the cars in the Indianapolis Memorial Day race are "specials," built for the terrific pace of this classic event rather than for the service the average man gives the average car.

But it is significant that again this year, as for 20 years past, the winning engine is a valve-in-head engine, expressing the same principle that Buick has followed for 30 unbroken years.

Racing engine designers regularly turn to this principle for the reason that, size for size, valve-in-head is more efficient than any other type engine—it holds every international speed record on land, sea or in the air.

And Buick engineers are steadfast in their belief that its extra cost is more than justified by its superior performance, so they build an oil-cushioned valve-in-head straight-eight engine as standard equipment for Buick cars.

That's why in Buick you find this cleaner, simpler, abler, more easily serviced straight-eight—the most satisfying and responsive engine you ever sat behind.

We build such an engine not for its speed alone, though it is obviously capable of all any heedful man would ask.

We build it because no better engine can be built within the scope of present engineering knowledge—and we build it for all Buicks from the SPECIAL, Series 40, starting at *$765, to the Limited, Series 90, at $1945 list at Flint.

Anyone who buys a new car today is entitled to the finest engine modern engineering can produce, and he will find that high-type engine in a Buick.

Extending the Civil Service.

Only an exceptionally stout-hearted optimist or an astute politician would have selected the closing weeks of the present session of Congress to stress the need for improvement of the system by which Government employes are chosen. For three years civil service rules have been subordinated to "political clearance." A search for hidden motives is fully justified when Administration leaders suddenly find an interest in the La Follette-O'Mahoney bill extending the merit system to all classes of postmasters and other exempted agencies not of an emergency character.

Of course, no action is expected at the present session of Congress. The bill is indorsed by Administration leaders, including the Postmaster General, for political effect. Promises that it will be pushed to passage next year may provide a very convenient answer to charges that the spoils system has been restored to favor.

Nevertheless, the outlook for post-election reform is by no means gloomy. Mr. Farley's apparent conversion to the merit system should not be taken too seriously, but it is significant that politicians who have debauched the Federal personnel system are running to cover. Members of Congress know by painful experience that spoils are a doubtful asset to men running for office. For one vote captured by an award of place, many may be lost through the alienation of disappointed applicants. Consequently, self-interest, as well as an aroused public opinion, may induce a good many seasoned politicians to support a reform that would free them from the delicate and dangerous task of apportioning the spoils of office among their constituents.

The present bill not only provides for a far-reaching extension of the merit system; it also strikes at the evils of personal favoritism under civil service. Unfair treatment of subordinates may destroy security of tenure and be as detrimental to efficiency as the preferential treatment characteristic of the spoils system. The La Follette-O'Mahoney measure, therefore, would require every personnel officer to file a sworn statement that he would not be guided by personal or political favoritism in the selection and promotion of employes.

Provisions for bringing exempted Government employes into the classified service by executive order would greatly reduce opposition to a change of policy. At the same time, the danger that incompetent, unqualified political appointees would be covered by a blanket decree of the President would be minimized by requiring certifications of fitness for office and noncompetitive examinations.

In view of the number of new agencies established during the Roosevelt Administration, which will either disappear with the emergency that created them or else be sharply curtailed in scope, it is well to proceed cautiously with plans for an extension of the civil service. The civil service system needs to be improved as well as extended. That job will require careful deliberation on the part of Congress. It cannot possibly be accomplished by hasty gestures at the close of a busy session.

Soldier Of Fortune.

By the author's own admission, John Hays Hammond was the prototype for "Soldiers of Fortune." One glance at the record left by the great mining expert will show the reason. If any man won for himself a career of adventure and high success it was he.

From South Africa's Rand, where Mr. Hammond as an Uitlander invoked the jealous wrath of the Boers and escaped hanging only at the last minute, to the Urals of Eastern Siberia, where he served as advisor to Czar Nicholas, his fortunate star led him. Happily, he had found time to set down the log of his odyssies in two volumes, published last year, so that the country shall not be without a record of the deeds of one of her most successful sons.

Probably Mr. Hammond's life could never be re-lived. The day of armed stage coaches and Apaches will not dawn again. This is not to suggest that no frontiers remain; it is only that they lie in different fields. Instead of seeking gold and more gold, the cry today is for further advances in the realms of science—both practical and social. The rewards may not be so rich when figured in terms of dollars and cents, but these, as Mr. Hammond would have borne witness, are of secondary consequence. The man who "could smell gold a thousand miles away" found his greatest satisfaction, after his engineering accomplishments, in public service—particularly in politics, teaching and boys' club supervision.

Unity At Cleveland.

The difficult preliminaries of the Republican National Convention have been concluded, and the work of selecting candidates and writing a platform is well under way, without the development of a single first-class fight. Some rumblings of disapproval have been heard, chiefly from Senator Borah. But by comparison with G. O. P. conventions in the past the gathering at Cleveland is a veritable love feast.

If this appearance of unity seems strange, it is largely because the public is not yet fully aware of the metamorphosis that has come over the Republican Party since its crushing defeat in 1932. The G. O. P. is still an aggregation of many factions, but these factions have found a common cause. Habitual victory in previous years encouraged disagreements and schisms. Now, defeat and adversity have once more welded divergent groups into united opposition. This trend is not strange; it is almost as common as the changing fortunes of politics.

One other factor helps to account for the relative harmony at Cleveland. The G. O. P. has been jarred out of its traditional position. The New Deal has given it issues that it has never met before. Changed conditions make a new line of attack inevitable. In the novelty of its current problems, old lines of cleavage become less significant.

To some extent this same factor helps to explain the popularity of Gov. Landon. The Kansan is not identified with the Old Guard or with the left wing of the Republican Party. Consequently, his enemies in the ranks of his own party are few. He has rapidly ascended to a position of leadership because of a widespread belief among friends and supporters that he is capable of meeting the particular situation by which the country is now confronted. As a candidate, he will give the G. O. P. an opportunity to break with the past and launch a campaign on the really pertinent issues of 1936.

Only Senator Borah seems to be out of line with this trend, and even he has refused to join any coalition to block the nomination of Gov. Landon. The Senator may provoke a fight if he attempts to defeat the proposed plank calling for a constitutional amendment to permit the enactment of State legislation governing minimum wages. But on most of the issues he has raised there is a disposition to compromise, with the object of preserving the unity of purpose that is now evident.

When the candidates have been chosen and the platform drafted, therefore, it is reasonable to expect that all of the unsuccessful contenders will be found supporting the successful ticket.

China In Travail.

Once again as in 1926 or, to take an earlier instance, as in the 1850s when the Taiping movement was spreading like an uncontrolled forest fire from the Pearl River to the Yangtze, Chinese armies are moving north.

In Taiping days the irruption from the south brought ruin and devastation in its wake on a truly gigantic scale. Scores of cities in the path of the fanatical followers of Hung Sui-tsuen, the "Heavenly Prince," were wiped out and million of lives were lost in the struggle that ensued between the Taipings and the forces summoned by the Manchus to defend the dynasty. And it was only with enormous difficulty and after a full decade of fighting that the movement was finally suppressed.

In comparison, the onward sweep of the Kuomintang armies north from Canton 11 years ago was a distinctly benign affair. As a result of the judicious application of propaganda technique learned from their Russian advisers, the Nationalist armies were able, with little actual fighting, to overcome their enemies. In a few months following their departure from Canton they were astride the Yangtze, in control of the Wuhan cities and Nanking. Soon after that most glittering of all prizes—Shanghai—fell.

But it would strain historical parallels to the breaking point to suggest that the latest military wave sweeping north from Kwangtung and Kwangsi in any real sense resembles the Taiping movement or the Nationalist expedition to the Yantze. Like them, to be sure, it seems possessed of an ideal. At a time when all Chinese conscious of their nationality are embittered against Japan for having robbed their nation of large stretches of territory, the southern war lords probably feel they have nothing to lose and much to gain by raising the banner of anti-Japanism and thus winning the support of all those who have found distasteful the Fabian policies pursued by the Nanking government. But actually to suppose that the Southwestern Political Council is moved primarily by outraged patriotism is to take a very naive view of Chinese politics.

The real goal of the marching southern armies, it can be surmised, is not that region north of the Yellow River, where the Japanese are entrenched in force, but Nanking. And their real object is not the elimination of Japanese influence in China, although this, too, may be desired, but the domination of the central government, whose control of the nation's principal sources of revenue constantly arouses the jealousies of distant and impoverished war lords.

In other words, the creation by the Southwestern Political Council of the "Anti-Japanese National Salvation Forces" simply marks the renewal of the struggle that has gone on between Nanking and its uncertain allies or active opponents from the very moment that the Nationalist regime was established nearly a decade ago. Yet in raising the anti-Japanese issue the southern war lords may stir up a whirlwind by increasing hostility in China and by giving Japan an excuse to put further pressure on the Chinese government.

Bonuses And Business.

Replies to questionnaires sent out by the American Legion prior to passage of the bonus bill indicate that over a quarter of the money received from cashing bonus bonds will go into homes, new and old, and house furnishings. Nearly one-third of the receipts, according to this same estimate, will be devoted to debt repayment—a much larger percentage of the total than was employed for that purpose in 1931, when veterans were permitted to borrow up to 50 per cent of the face value of their certificates.

Cancellation of indebtedness and outlays for home construction will not be immediately reflected in retail trade buying, but either directly or indirectly the bonus money will provide a temporary stimulus to retail business in every part of the country. It would be a great mistake, however, to overrate the importance of these gains. Indeed, if the Government could provide permanent benefits for trade and industry by putting borrowed purchasing power in the hands of the people, it ought not to be content with disbursing a mere $1,700,000,000 to veterans. It should subsidize everybody and urge everybody to spend as he receives. In the latter event, it would not be long before we should be suffering from the effects of uncontrollable inflation, accompanied by rising prices that would rapidly destroy the purchasing power of our dollars.

The fact that some business concerns will profit momentarily from the spending of bonus money does not indicate that business as a whole will benefit in the long run from this kind of artificially created demand for goods. On the contrary, by aggravating the seriousness of the fiscal problem, cash payment of the bonus accentuates uneasiness among business men, discourages investors and tends to retard sound and lasting recovery.

M. Blum's Dilemma.

Hardly had Premier Blum succeeded in bringing some order out of the confused and dangerous industrial situation in France when he was called upon to face a new threat. This time the menace is external in origin.

In a carefully phrased but clearly pointed warning transmitted to the French foreign office by the Italian ambassador at Paris, Premier Mussolini has notified M. Blum that if Italy and France are to remain on friendly terms, if Italy is to continue its membership in the League and not be thrown into the arms of Nazi Germany, the Popular Front government must curb its pro-League and pro-sanctionist ardor.

As indicated in the article appearing on the page opposite, the Italian maneuver is probably nine-tenths bluff, since a German-Italian alliance, while of great potential value to Germany, would injure rather than help Italy. Yet it must be admitted that the threat is well-timed and may succeed.

France is passing through critical days. Striking workers are going back to their plants, but the increased wages they are to receive, the increased governmental costs foreshadowed by the cabinet's plan to embark on ambitious public works and social security programs, may force inflation and thus undermine the stability of the franc. At the same time, Great Britain, whose support France needs in any program of strengthening the League, does not seem able to decide which way it should turn regarding its international policies.

Even so ardently a pro-League and anti-Fascist government as the Popular Front regime will thus be tempted to do nothing at Geneva to offend Italy and, on the contrary, to do everything it can to mollify the Roman government.

There have been instances when a nation shouted "Peace" so loud and long that her riveters at work on battleships couldn't be heard.

From the American Scholar.

The public which patronizes the virtuoso is notoriously unpredictable, capricious, and fickle. The public which comes to concerts because attracted by the music is much more dependable. Once won it is loyal to its favorites.

Leaders like Thomas and the younger Damrosch knew this. They did not merely give their public what it wanted, but tactfully guided its taste, experimenting and broadening, but keeping constantly in touch with the patient. One recalls the remark of Thomas on being told that the public did not like Wagner: "We'll play him until they do."

As for the foreign virtuoso let us hope that he will always be welcome in our musical life—as a guest. The performances of Toscanini have been something so wonderful that this generation of concert-goers will be envied by others to come, just as we look with envy upon the fortunate ones who heard Liszt or Paganini or Lilli Lehmann.

Applauds Mr. Mullen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I know of nothing that has appealed to me more from a point of absolute right than the item of news in your splendid paper of June 8 that Mr. John F. Mullen, the maker of the new primary to govern elections here in the District, under which delegates are elected to the presidential conventions, opposes D. C. Democrat rally delegates. If there was every a mockery under the name of suffrage carried out by two dominant parties here, it was the recent alleged elections for delegates to the two conventions. Both were enough to convict the backers of the same and justify the rejections of both crowds from participation in choosing the candidate for either party.

I am glad Mr. Mullen has sent his protest to the Democratic leaders who will control affairs in Philadelphia this month, and I hope they will debar the misfits, who are unfortunately now at the head of these alleged leaders of the party.

We have 22 legislative districts in the District of Columbia and such districts are to be used to elect delegates to the convention held to elect representatives to the national convention. Was such done at the recent so-called affair that was pulled off here by this so-called Democratic central committee? The answer is an emphatic "No."

It is a disgrace, and I speak as a lifelong Democrat, remembering the days when every election was rightfully called and due notices of the places to ballot. In the last elections of this year there was none held in Georgetown, Tenleytown and many other places.

I sincerely hope Mr. Mullen will keep his protest and personally show the National Democratic Committee the insincerity of the crowd now dominating.

Such action is not much of a boost for real suffrage in the District, and it's such that makes the bona fide residents grab their noses.

Amendment Unnecessary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Congress makes up its mind to assume responsibility for its own legislative acts, as it is required to do under the Constitution of the United States, and its own oath of office, and asserts its regulatory control over the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States, it will then be seen that it was never necessary to even discuss the need of an amendment to that instrument to enable the Federal Government to function in the midst of the present industrial and social complications.

The American people had lived for nearly 200 years under the parliamentary system of Great Britain, where responsibility for legislative acts is assumed, and where its courts are confined to the administration of justice under existing law, and where they cannot question the validity of an act of parliament.

And, as former United States Senator Owens clearly shows, three times the matter of judicial review of acts of Congress was three times voted down by the delegates to the constitutional convention of 1787.

In the creation of the judicial power a limited original jurisdiction was conferred upon the Supreme Court, its appellate jurisdiction fell under Congressional regulation.

Congress should immediately proceed to amend the judicial code and re-determine the character of litigation to be entertained by the Supreme Court on appeal.

Smile Not Fading.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to comment on an article which appeared in your columns on June 2, in which the writer compared the fading smile of the Cheshire cat in "Alice in Wonderland" to the Federal financial "kittie."

No, the smile is not fading; take even the most casual look at business conditions throughout our country and you will see that smile reflected in the faces of merchants whose sales have improved, of farmers who at last are receiving a living income for their produce; of men who are going back to work. Note the increase in our national income, and, as a further dissimilarity, note that the smile is not a meaningless "Chessie Cat" grin, but a smile of indorsement of what our great President has done during the past three years and of serene confidence for what he will do in the next term of office.

So, let us quit the calamity howling, E. K. G., and climb aboard the "smile band wagon" for the greatest era of prosperity our Nation has ever seen. GEORGE B. SMITH.

'Right To Rob.'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of June 4 were headlines about realty bonds bilking millions and firms exploiting investors within the law, etc. This is not news at all. This exploitation of millions of investors and consumers has been going along "within the law" for more than 15 years. When brought to task for their racketeering, they fall back under their constitutional right to rob.

I say turn it over to Landon and the Liberty League. Don't let Borah get a look-in. He might spoil their 15-year-old picture.

The Child Labor Amendment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article in your issue of May 24 regarding the child labor amendment poll is somewhat disturbing to amendment opponents. Noting the widely different results obtained in answer to the two questions submitted, this writer limits his comment on the replies to their indication of apparent unfamiliarity with the implied powers in the amendment, of whose provisions Dr. Gallup only features the age limits. Dr. Gallup's figures on the action by Legislatures are open to question, as are his remarks on the amendment situation in general, which do not necessarily support his conclusions.

The article states that "24 States have ratified the amendment through their Legislatures, and 22 have rejected it," whereas, according to this writer's information, 48 States have acted on the amendment and now stand 24 in favor and 24 opposed. From June 2, 1924, when Congress submitted the amendment to the States, through 1927, during which time the amendment was a live political issue, an active campaign waged by both sides resulted in 5 ratifications and 37 rejections. On this record the child labor amendment was considered a dead issue and relegated to the limbo of ghost amendments that cannot be ratified, but which do not actually die because their text contains no time limitation on ratification. Congress refused to include such a limitation in the child labor amendment.

After 1927, except in the case of one State which reversed its rejection and ratified in 1931, the issue slept until 1933, when a surprise ratification drive, supported by all the power of the Federal Administration, was sprung and swept 14 States into ratification, 12 being reversals of previous rejections. Since then, in 1934, 1935 and 1936, 38 attempts at ratification have resulted in 4 ratifications and 34 defeats or refusals even to consider. Some States have rejected repeatedly as many as five times. The 1933 victories were a flash in the pan, facilitated by the then prevailing tendency to surrender all power and responsibility to the Federal Government.

Dr. Gallup's deductions from the result of the poll invite comment. He says, "It reveals dramatic clashes between the will of the people and State Legislatures in rejecting the amendment, between Republicans and Democrats, farmers and city folk, young people and oldsters." Does it? For example, could any group of States exhibit more partisan, sectional and occupational dissimilarities than those rejecting in 1934, when Texas, Massachusetts, Virginia, Kentucky, South Carolina, Mississippi, New York, Vermont, Rhode Island, Delaware and Louisiana refused to ratify? This year New York, Massachusetts, Mississippi and Rhode Island stand shoulder to shoulder in rejecting the admendment and the legislatures of Virginia, Kentucky, South Carolina, Maryland, Alabama and Vermont declined to yield to pressure for ratification.

Dr. Gallup refers to the poll as the first Nation-wide referendum of the voting populace on the child labor issue. That is a broad use of the term "referendum." On it is based Dr. Gallup's assumption that the people desire the amendment. However, if the people are to be interpreted, the record on which the inference rests must surely include the only real referendum on the child labor amendment, held in Massachusetts in 1924. Under the Massachusetts "Public Opinion Law," the Legislature consulted the voters of the State as to their attitude on the amendment. The result was 697,563 votes for rejection to 241,461 for ratification—a majority of 465,102 against the amendment. The "no" vote was in the majority in every assembly and senatorial district.

The recent action of the New York Legislature is particularly significant. It is the home State of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Postmaster General-Campaign Manager Farley, Secretary of Labor Perkins, Gov. Lehman and Mayor LaGuardia, all ardent amendment supporters. It is on the eve of party conventions, with a national election in the offing and Mr. Roosevelt, the State's favorite son—certainly a bad time for legislators to "clash with the will of the people." Yet, the Assembly, dominated by Republicans trying to capture the next election, and the Senate, dominated by Democrats trying to stay in power, both took identical action to defeat ratification of the amendment.

The obvious explanation of legislators' negative votes is that they know that the amendment would delegate enormous and dangerous power to the Federal Government and inevitably result in a vast bureaucratic set-up in Washington with ramifications into every nook and cranny of the nation; that Federal regimentation would be harmful instead of helpful to American youth. The people's representatives must be voting their convictions, confident that they can justify their votes to their constituents.

At least, so far as regards a large body of opponents, Dr. Gallup is mistaken in supposing that merely a "rewording of the amendment" or lowering of the age limit would satisfy the opposition. Given proof that this humane-appearing measure threatens intrusion by Federal bureaucrats and agents into homes, farms and private premises, interference with parental authority, and a grant to Congress of almost unlimited power over the lives of youth and considerable control over parents, the public in general may be counted upon to oppose the amendment root and branch. What is there in the recent history of Congress and Washington bureaucracy to justify even the faintest hope that the powers conferred by the amendment would be exercised with intelligence and restraint?

Opponents of the child labor amendment are not advocates of child labor—they are opponents of extension of Federal power into the homes and schools of the land—they are believers in local power and responsibility in matters of local concern—they do not believe that Utopia can be enacted by the Federal Congress or created by regulations concocted by a Federal bureau. Olympic Gliding

The announcement of a new sport to be seen in the Olympic Games of 1936 is taken from an English version of the official gazette of the directing committee.

THE protocol of the Olympic Games provides for two special presentations in the sporting program, one of which is to be a form of sport not practiced in the host nation and the other a national sport which is not included in the regular program of competition.

For the presentation of a sport unknown in Germany, baseball was chosen, and teams from the United States of America and Japan have been invited; and as a representative national sport, gliding was selected by the German organizing committee.

Tuesday, August 4, has been set aside for this special presentation, since this date comes early in the games and there will be few conflicting sporting competitions. It will thus be possible for most of the spectators who have arrived for the early competitions to be present at the demonstration.

The only conflicting events during this time will be some of the preliminary elimination competitions in the track events, the preliminary matches in free-style wrestling, the shooting competition at Wannsee, and the foils fencing contests in the Sport Forum.

One of the Berlin aviation fields will be selected for the gliding demonstration. The active participants will be conveyed from the Olympic Village to the field in special omnibuses, and every means of communication in Berlin will be at the disposal of the spectators.

The German Air Sport Federation will have charge of the demonstration, which will be arranged in such a manner as to give everyone an adequate conception of the German sport of gliding, and an introduction to the art of motorless flying.

The program will consist not only of a demonstration of the simple starting and training methods, but will also include examples of the highest type of flying. The spectators will first become acquainted with the various methods of starting the gliding planes; they will see gliders towed into the air by means of regular aeroplanes, and will then witness a demonstration of flying which in its perfection of execution could scarcely be equaled by a motorized aeroplane.

After swooping and curving over the heads of the spectators, the glider pilots will land their craft carefully and securely on the spot arranged for them. At present we can merely hope that the weather will be favorable and that the warm sunshine will provide the rising air currents so necessary for perfect gliding.

At the special request of the German gliding enthusiasts, the International Olympic Committee at its convention in Oslo during the spring of 1935 granted them permission to invite foreign gliders to bring their craft to the land in which the sport of gliding was born and to participate in the demonstration. Following the program on August 4, the German Air Sport Federation plans to invite its foreign guests during the second week of the Berlin games to a gliding competition in the Rhoen.

In connection with this international competition on the Wasserkuppe the various sectional groups of the Air Sport Federation will hold their annual national Rhoen gliding competition. Since special railway excursion reductions of 60 per cent will be granted during the period of the Olympic games, it will be possible for the visitors to the games to travel during the second week to the high Rhoen hills and to be present at a great gliding competition.

The German organizing committee feels that in preparing for this national demonstration it has fulfilled its mission, since it will provide the opportunity for the outstanding sportsmen and sporting leaders of the world to become acquainted with a new form of sport which is growing in popularity year by year.

Thousands of sport enthusiasts from 50 different nations as well as numerous press representaitves will see—many of them for the first time—how a huge, artificial bird swoops and curves in gigantic circles against the blue heaven. They will observe how the craft surge forward as though propelled by an invisible force, soar onwards, engage in a program of "stunt flying," and then come to earth as easily and securely as though propelled by a motor.

The German gliders will not be able to win gold or silver medals of victory for their fatherland because many nations in the world have never heard of the marvel of motorless flying. But when the German gliding pilots and their foreign sporting comrades present their best performances, their achievements will be no less deserving of praise than those of their compatriots in other fields of sport.

They are pathfinders leading the way to the realization of one of the oldest dreams of mankind, since they are combating wind and weather in the mighty conquest of the air, and as gallant sportsmen, their performances are achieved in the true Olympic spirit, "For the glory of sport and the honor of the fatherland."

Fair Enough

Dreary Kansans.

Cleveland.

There is something about a Kansan—any Kansan—trying to be a devil of a fellow which suggests a Y. M. C. A. man drinking one beer after another and singing a medicated version of "Frankie and Johnnie" in a roadside hamburger stand at half-past ten at night to assist in the Annual Drive for Funds. The tradition, the heredity and the environment of the Kansan are all against convivialit , and he smiles only with a distinct effort of the muscles. The Kansas strain includes much New England blood, which makes for austerity, and it was no mere figure of speech when Gov. Alf Landon was described as the Kansas Coolidge. There is a good deal of Coolidge in the composite Kansas temperament.

It is a dreary spectacle, therefore, when Kansans come to a national political convention to nominate a favorite son for the Presidency of the United States. Political conventions are low and sordid events infested by lobbyists, country lawyers who want to be Attorney General or Federal prosecutor, broken down journalists who would turn the crank for Pontius Pilate and a great mass of petty local busybodies eager to be noticed and hoping to attach themselves to the public pay roll somehow if they manage to boot their horse home in November. Although the hotel lobbies at convention time do contain many well-meaning enthusiasts who think they are working for their principles and fighting to save the United States from some fearsome thing which they have seen pictured in the cartoons, these people are only the protective coloration of the men who run the show.

You can look around the lobbies in Cleveland today and see some of the most loathsome characters that American politics has ever produced. There is the old statesman, for example, who ran with the Ku Klux Klan and the dry dictatorship and never cast an honest vote or entertained a principle in all his life, telling dirty stories to a group of reporters in the shade of the potted palms. There is the man who circulated handbills showing the President's wife under escort of some Negro military cadets. There is a former United States Senator who was counsel for a celebrated racketeer in a long and successful and, to him, profitable fight to prevent a swindler coming to trial. There are notorious drunken dries of the prohibition era and, of course, a scattering representation of the Ohio Harding gang, whose ranks, fortunately, are thinning now but, unfortunately, not thinning fast enough.

Amid these conditions the Kansans are conducting the campaign of Gov. Alf Landon, a Kansan, which is a description in itself— a dry in his heart, a horny-handed man of wealth, a Coolidge by temperament and mediocrity's appeal to mediocrity. The Kansans pin artificial sunflowers on the shuffling file of curious Americans who visit their headquarters, and they go to considerable pains to prove that Gov. Landon is both a typical Kansan and a good fellow, which is a contradiction of terms. Kansas wasn't settled by good fellows, and the breed has been consistent to this day.

This is not to suggest that the Kansas politician is innocent of the wiles and tricks of the Wall Street dude or the New Deal Democrat. Payrolls, jobs and commissions are as attractive to him as to anyone in the Roosevelt Administration, and Kansas doubtless would show the country something new. He didn't come to Cleveland to save the country, and his motives are generally the same as those of James A. Farley, who could walk through the present assemblage right now waving a sheaf of jobs and walk off with the whole show, leaving the Grand Old Party without a quorum.

Kansans simply haven't the knack. They have been trained to drink in secret and eat cloves or gargle listerine afterward. At home they still retain the old prohibition practice of ordering near beer and fortifying the same with a strong splash of alcohol or jake. When it came to selecting a campaign song for their man Landon they hit upon Stephen Foster's Negro doggerel, "Oh, Susanna," an incoherent jabber which sounds like clever satire on the whole succession of hillbilly numbers and spirituals which swept the country, per radio, a few years ago. They are appealing to the worst and cheapest in the electorate in incompetent fashion, like a chaplain trying to be one of the boys when the American Legion bursts into "Hinky Dinky, Parley Voo." They still say "dang" for "damn' and "heck for "hell."

But if Landon himself were here and if he were to look over the crowd and say that he respected their intelligence and their motives he would have to be put down for a liar. He is too intelligent for that. He knows what conventions are.

I don't know but that this would be a good time for a candidate to come out and tell the electorate what his motives are and what he thinks of them. Landon is a hundred-to-one shot, anyway, and his chances wouldn't be much the worse for a frank expression of the honest belief which every Presidential candidate has lied down in his speeches since the republic began. This is Alf Landon's chance to admit that if elected he would immediately start campaigning for re-election and buying his second term with the public money. And though he doubtless would be licked, he could become a historic American rather than just an incidental loser in a bad Republican year by telling the citizens that they are a dumb, emotional, ignorant lot, swayed by slogans, ballyhoo, bands and editorials, who haven't had the intelligence to elect more than three first class Presidents, including Washington.

But he won't. He will order highballs and pour them in the sink when somebody is looking and sit up singing "Oh, Susanna," to prove that he is just like them in the hope that they will think that they are just like him.

Another Bluff?

By Barnet Nover.

THREE DAYS after the Popular Front government came into being in France with Leon Blum, an ardent anti-Fascist, as Premier and Yvon Delbos, a strong supporter of the League of Nations, as Foreign Minister, Vittorio Cerutti, the Duce's Ambassador at Paris, made a call at the Quai d'Orsay. He was brief and, so far the elliptical language of diplomacy permits, to the point.

"Italy," he said, "hopes France will not assume an atitude at Geneva which would create an impossible situation for Italian honor."

The implications are clear. If France refuses to abandon sanctions against Italy—if, on the contrary, it definitely takes a stand at the next League meeting in favor of their continuation, Italy will leave the League. What is more, it will be forced to ally itself with that nation, which, above all others, France distrusts and fears—Germany.

This warning will not be lost on the present rulers of the Third Republic. More than by anything else the Popular Front is held together by a hatred of fascism of every variety, Italian among others. Its constituent elements, Radical Socialists, Socialists and Communists, favor the strengthening of the League. But before they are partisans of this or that political creed the men who compose the present government are Frenchmen and as Frenchmen are naturally averse to doing anything which, directly or indirectly, would strengthen the Third Reich.

Mussolini's threat, therefore, places the Popular Front regime on the horns of a dilemma. They do not want to weaken the League. But at the same time they do not want to throw Italy into the arms of Germany. Probably they would not hesitate one moment to drop Italy were they certain that Great Britain would join France in a common front. But they are not. The British have not yet made up their minds just what they ought to do.

Duce's Bludgeon Described As Fake.

IN HIS EFFORT to smash the sanctionist front before sanctions smash Italy, as they may very well do if sufficiently prolonged, Mussolini by invoking the threat of a German-Italian alliance has a powerful weapon in his hands. It happens to be a bludgeon made of papier-mache painted to look like iron. But what counts is that in the false light of fear many believe that it is made of iron.

Ever since the end of the World War the sleep of French statesmen has been troubled by that same "nightmare of coalitions," which more than a generation ago used to plague Bismarck. From the Treaty of Rappallo, in 1922, to the Locarno Pact, of 1925, they continually conjured up the image of a Russo-German colossus astride Europe. Later as Moscow's friendship with Berlin cooled the old ogre was replaced in their fevered imaginations by a new. They saw a union of dictatorships stretching from the Baltic to the Mediterranean with Hitler and Mussolini and their satellites joining hands against the peaceful, satisfied democracies of the West. And when Fuehrer and Duce met in Venice in the spring of 1934 they saw their worst fears on the verge of realization. Nor were they disabused by the curious sequel that followed the meeting of the dictators; by the Munich radio attacks on the Dollfus government and the Nazi putsch in Vienna in the summer of 1934.

Pierre Laval's mission to Rome in January, 1935, in which Mussolini was presumably guaranteed a free hand in Ethiopia by France, the establishment of the Stresa front in the spring of 1935 and, most recently, the Hoare-Laval plan for the settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian problem by rewarding Italy for its aggression show how preoccupied French and to a lesser extent British statesmanship has been with the problem of keeping Mussolini from hurling himself into the arms of Hitler.

But is such a possibility to be taken seriously? Aside from the satisfaction of throwing a scare into his former partners of the Stresa front has Mussolini anything to gain by joining with Germany?

Italy Has All To Lose By Alliance With Nazis.

A REALISTIC VIEW of the situation shows that Italy really has little to gain and a great deal to lose by an alliance with the Third Reich, even if Germany, as its part of a bargain, would agree to keep its hands off Austria, permitting that unhappy country to remain a buffer between the Brownshirt and Blackshirt dictatorships.

For the fact of the matter is that in this alliance, as in all others there would have to be, in Talleyrand's phrase, a horse and a rider, with Germany, by virtue of its inherently greater strength, inevitably the rider. To win an ally along France's southern border at a moment when it is rapidly engaged in blocking France's path in the west by an ambitious program of fortifications on the Rhineland and is straining every nerve to complete its rearmament program, the Third Reich could well afford to postpone the absorption of Austria, even as to prevent complete encirclement it made peace with Poland.

But once the rearmament program had been completed and the way paved for the execution of the ambitious program of territorial expansion envisaged in "Mein Kampf," the pledges regarding Austria could obviously be treated as were the pledges embodied in the Locarno treaty regarding the maintenance of the unfortified Rhine zone. Mussolini himself is well aware how easily solemn obligations can become mere scraps of paper.

Once Austria had been absorbed Germany's frontier would reach to the Brenner Pass. South of that pass, in southern Tyrol, there are around 200,000 inhabitants of Austrian origin and German speech whom the Nazis would certainly regard as belonging by rights to greater Germany. But even if the status quo is maintained along that new German-Italian frontier Italy could hardly view the enlargement of the Third Reich with equanimity. For as Germany became increasingly powerful Italy's position as a great power would in the world of diplomacy, where everything is relative, grow weaker. And with Germany astride the Danube, its economic penetration of the Balkans, which Italy has sought to make an Italian sphere of influence, would go on apace. Even with Austria independent that process is now going on.

As a realist, Mussolini no doubt knows how evil for Italy the consequences of a German-Italian alliance would be. But as a bluff it has its possibilities. Democracies are notoriously timorous. The Duce bluffed Great Britain into inaction in the summer of 1935. He bluffed France into forgetting its old intense loyalties to the League and collective action. Another bluff may work again. Nothing succeeds like success.

Appreciation Of Age

By William Lyon Phelps.

Mary Louise Catlin

In 1928 Mary Louise Catlin (Mrs. Charles T. Catlin), of Brooklyn, who was then 86 years old, sent me her meditations on old age; and they seem to me so excellent in rereading them today that I wish to share them with my friends. They are the result of experience, of observation, of thought and of a good life.

• • • •

Suggested by my younger friends who persistently write or say to me "86 years young"—trite and tiresome repetition of a saying which in the beginning was clever and original but has become a platitude and is most uncomplimentary, intimating a period of second childhood and inexperienced youth.

Old age, as it can be and often is, while dependent as is childhood, is without its unreasonableness.

Old age is sympathetic and understanding of youth, because it has experienced its enthusiasm and impatience.

Old age realizes the responsibilities and burdens of middle life, for it has carried them. It knows its problems, some of which have been solved—some in the broader outlook which comes from larger experience have proved unnecessary.

A sense of proportions comes—the separation between essentials and nonessentials; a clear perception of values and realities; a discernment of character and a juster estimate of human limitations.

Insight takes the place of failing sight. Some message can be heard from the unseen when imperfect hearing shuts one off from intercourse with friends.

Memory becomes infinitely precious. The long range of experience obliterates the trivial and emphasizes the essential. The question of "What shall we eat, what shall we drink and wherewithal shall we be clothed?" becomes of minor importance.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

A Man Who-o-o-o.

Cleveland, Ohio.—The Forgotten Men are holding their convention here this week. They want a new deal, but under their own auspices.

• • • •

One of the surprises of the convention is that you can find so many Americans to come out openly and admit they are Republicans, thus cutting themselves off from PWA money.

• • • •

The Republican convention, as a matter of fact, represents the only large group of registered voters in the country not shifting trees, resurfacing bathing beaches or building streamline dog houses on Government money.

• • • •

• • • •

It's the strangest Republican National Convention in history. The G. O. P. is actually behaving as if chastened, penitent and anxious to lead a better life.

• • • •

The party that developed prosperity to a point where it bit the developer is in a tough spot where it must condemn the state of affairs in the country today without seeming too hot for the state of affairs as they existed before.

• • • •

The Republicans used to meet and discuss high-grade investments, limousine lines, the ten best ways to prepare peacock steaks, sleep through the regular orthodox speeches, nominate some obscure gentleman who wouldn't look too ridiculous in Indian headgear and then retire to await confirmation of the returns.

• • • •

The nomination was generally a big surprise to the country and a bigger surprise to the nominee.

• • • •

This week a candidate whose chief claim to the office is that the people seem to want him will probably be nominated, and the inescapable fact that he is an independent thinker with positive views of his own will not be used against him.

• • • •

Senator Borah will throw out the first brawl, using the one over one system, and will have the best radio voice in the hall, but all he will get will be the usual applause cards and fan mail.

• • • •

The G. O. P.'s best bet will be its emphasis on the fact it is the party of Abraham Lincoln, the statesman who never regarded the splitting of a rail as a Federal emergency project.

• • • •

Calvin Coolidge was nominated in this same convention hall out here in Cleveland. But that was away back before anybody dreamed that the public would resent the idea of a man being frugal.

• • • •

The only real battle will be over the Vice Presidency. There's always been a keen fight for that. It assures a man of four years of complete rest, a trip abroad and a decoration by the Japanese government.

Premier Blum's Problem.

Premier Blum is promising the French a New Deal. With special attention to the Forgotten Manikins?

We understand that among the Paris rioters were the famous souvenir postcard sellers, who want the 40-hour week.

Cleveland is full of candidates, all of whom are reported living on chow mein. They are taking seriously Mr. Mencken's contention that the Republicans could pick a Chinaman and lick Roosevelt.

Rear Admiral Byrd will devote the rest of his life to promoting world peace. In other words, he will never talk back to traffic policemen, express an opinion on the New Deal or officiate at a Miss America contest.

The weakfishing at Peconia Bay, despite the ballyhoo to the contrary, is decidedly punk. The fish are running the smallest in years, and when you read those stories of fishermen getting 150 to a boat you must bear in mind that there must be about 25 fishermen per boat.

"O, Susanna!" is to be the theme song of the Landonites. The Landon supporters are out to do something for the Forgotten Melodies.

50,000 Employes To Get Increases

Approximately 50,000 employes of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. at East Pittsburgh, Pa., will receive substantial increases in wages and salaries under a new "profit sharing" plan being worked out by the company, according to Richard L. Gridley, financial editor of the Pittsburgh Press.

Whenever Westinghouse profits exceed $600,000 monthly, Gridley stated, employes will begin sharing in proportion with the profits.

On the basis of the first quarter earnings of the company this year all wages and salaries would be increased by 10 per cent. The company's average earnings in each of the first three months of this year were $1,244,151.

Boys Club Drive Reaches $60,000

The drive to raise funds for Police Boys' Clubs for athletic facilities passed the $60,000 mark yesterday, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, reported.

Receipts turned in yesterday amounted to $969, bringing the grand total to $60,485.00. Maj. Brown said the campaign would be continued until every citizen in Washington has an opportunity to contribute.

The Second Precinct still leads the police districts with a total of $6,643. Its nearest rival is the First, with $3,505.

Tax on Profits Wins in Favor Of House Unit

Conferees May End Study Today, Confer With Senate Group.

By the Associated Press.

Perspiring House conferees on the controversial tax bill started working toward an agreement with the Senate on tax legislation yesterday, with indications the House provisions as favored by the Administration might predominate.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, of the House Ways and Meahs Committee, said the conferees spent most of the day studying the 289 amendments which the Senate attached to the measure after it passed the House.

He added that comparisons between the House and Senate versions having been made, the House conferees probably would be ready to meet today with the Senate committeemen.

While the tax conferees labored over the principal stumbling block to adjournment of this session of Congress, Capitol Hill for the most part marked time and kept an eye on proceedings at the Republican National Convention at Cleveland.

Conferees Delay Meeting.

Conferees on the $2,430,829 deficiency-relief appropriations bill did not meet yesterday on that measure, which, with the tax bill, constitutes the principal business to be cleared up by Congress when it meets again Monday after a week's adjournment.

The only other measures of importance which remain to be disposed of include the Robinson-Patman chain store regulatory bill and the antilobby measure, but leaders promised there would be no particular difficulty with either.

In addition to those two measures, the House probably will act on the Guffey-Vinson coal price stability bill, a substitute for the Guffey coal act, which was invalidated by the Supreme Court.

Leaders are aiming at adjournment by June 29.

Chief Point at Issue.

The chief point at issue in the battered tax bill is the difference between the Senate's flat 7 per cent levy on undistributed corporate profits, as against the House's graduated levy ranging up to 42½ per cent, which more nearly represents President Roosevelt's views.

The Administration has been insistent upon the higher levy as outlined in the House provisions, but strong oppositioin developed on the Senate side.

It was understood, however, that leaders of the Senate fight against the higher graduate levy are about convinced they are fighting a losing battle and are ready to compromise and go along with the House provision.

At the same time hints on the nature of a compromise bill pointed to possible addition of new brackets in the schedule on graduated corporate taxes.

Compromise Predicted.

Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, a Senate conferee who has foregone a trip to Texas with President Roosevelt in order to remain in Washington and work on the tax bill, said there would be a compromise.

"We are going to have a report soon and I believe there will be new brackets, but the 15 per cent flat tax on net corporate revenues will be retained," Connally said.

The House bill repeals the flat corporation tax on revenues, but some conferees believed they might concede to the Senate on that point.

Asked whether it was likely that the principles of the Black-La Follette amendment to the Senate bill was likely to prevail, Connally said: "That is a broad question. They had only two brackets. I think there will be more graduations."

Black's Proposal.

The proposal offered by Senator Black (Democrat), of Alabama, and La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, provided for retention of the present levy of 12½ per cent on corporate incomes, with exemptions on the first $15,000 or adjusted net income to protect small corporations.

In addition to the present corporation tax, they would impose no adidtional tax upon the first 20 per cent of corporate adjusted income, but would impose a 20 per cent tax on that part of the undistributed adjusted net income in excess of 20 per cent and less than 40 per cent of such income.

The Black-La Follette proposal also includes a 30 per cent tax on the remainder of the undistributed net income.

Connally predicted an agreement would be reached early next week if not before, although the conferees have generally agreed that none of the highly controversial points will be taken up this week due to absence of Republican members of the conference committee at the Cleveland convention.

100 Rural Women To Tour Maryland

The rural life of Maryland will be studied first-hand today by 100 overseas and Canadian delegates to the recent Triennial Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World, who will be conducted on a tour, with representative Maryland women as hostesses.

Leaving the Willard Hotel at 10 a. m., the group will make its first stop at Rockville to visit the Darby Farm, where thousands of turkeys are raised for the winter and holiday markets.

Their trip will take them to Germantown, Buck Lodge, Neelsville, Gaithersburg and Sandy Sprin. Itinerary of the jaunt has been arranged by Miss Mary Meek Atkeson and Mrs. Eric Englund, of Rockville.

Sylvan Theater Series To Open Next Tuesday

The first of the 1936 series of summer festivals will be held in the National Sylvan Theateh next Tuesday, according ot plans announced yesterday by Mrs. E. K. Peeples, director of the Community Center Department, and C. Marshall Finnan, parks director.

Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "The Gondoliers," will be the first offering of the series. It will be sung by the Estelle Wentworth opera group and will be preceded by a half-hour concert by the Civic Orchestra.

Babson Urges Citizens to Save As Hedge Against Fascist Rule

Noted Economist Issues War Warning; Expects Prosperity to Continue at Least Two Years; Says He Will Vote Republican.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 9.—Roger W. Babson, investment statistician, warned today that as "a hedge against a Fascist government in the United States, I advise having a small nest egg in good Canadian securities which should be left in Canada in care of a Montreal bank."

Speaking before the Executives' Club, Babson further warned his listeners that "as a hedge against the United States itself becoming involved in war I advise having money invested in real estate and companies located in the central portion of this country rather than in certain large cities. Irrespective of all neutrality resolutions, the United States would inevitably become involved in any war in which England is involved."

He predicted a bull market for about two years and "another period of prosperity even though it may be short."

Babson urged for education of young people in a line in which "their skill will be needed, whatever form of government may come and whether or not we become involved in another great war."

Babson said he was an optimist "at least for the next two years" and was "bullish on real estate, although I also expect firmer commodity prices, higher stock prices, larger retail sales and more employment."

He said "many of my friends are pessimistic because present indications are President Roosevelt will be re-elected." Babson said he would vote Republican and that the Republicans probably would gain 50 to 100 seats in the House and some in the Senate. He predicted the defeat, in 1940, of the party that wins next November.

Of conditions five or ten years hence, Babson said: "Unless some the Nation, the country must some revolutionary new industry sweeps day pay for New Deal experiments with either much hevaier taxes or printing press currency.

"In the meantime, credit inflation is inevitable. This means a higher cots of living, increased labor troubles and further political unrest.

"The basic investments are still health, children and land. Hence a man's first expenditure should be a small home and vegetable garden which would feed his family in an emergency. Do the work in it yourself with your family's help. The next best investment is a good library of books, furniture, rugs, pictures and so forth of permanent value."

He advised diversification in investment, even if only small funds were available.

Gonzaga Student Honors Announced

Full scholarships to Gonzaga High School yesterday were awarded to Walter Brinks, St. Aloysius School; John Hammett, Holy Comforter School, and Frederick Rice and Raymond Fitzgibbons, both of Sacred Heart School, winners of competitive examinations held last Saturday.

The examinations, taken by 287 boys, were open to all graduates of parochial and public schools in the city. The Rev. P. J. Clarke, S. J., president of Gonzaga, who made the awards, announced the following as winners of half scholarships.

John Noone, Holy Name School; Francis Litz, St. Joseph's; Ralph O'Brien, Nativity; Robert Yetter, St. Martin's; Jerome Tareton, St. Peter's; Jack Walsh, St. Gabriel's; Joseph Saunders, St. Martin's; Allen Garland, St. Gabriel's; Richard Gott, St. Michael's; William Nicholls, St. Aloysius; Cleveland Barry, St. Charles; Alfred Grigg, Sacred Heart; Jack Birdsell, St. Paul's Academy; Charles Redman, Blessed Sacrament School, and John Howley, Nativity School.

Capital Residents Invited to Institute

Washington men and women yesterday were invited to patricipate in the summer institute for social progress at Wellesley University by Mrs. Harold Hynds, of the Kennedy-Warren Apartments, one of the District members of the institute's national committee.

Subject for the lectures, forums and discusions of the institute, which will be held on the campus at Wellesley Mass., July 4 to 18, will be "The Economic Issues Behind the Campaign Headlines."

The conference will be led by Dr. Colston E. Warne, Amherst College economist. He will be assisted by Max Lerner, editor of The Nation; Ordway Tread, of Columbia University; Alfred D. Sheffield, of Swarthmore College, and Barbara Frances Wooton, British economist.

Former Roomer Returned in Theft

Steven G. Bullebosh, 27, described by police as a "rooming house robber," was returned to Washington from Greensburg, Pa., on a charge of grand larceny yesterday, Inspector Bernard Thompson, chief of detectives, announced last night.

According to police, Bullebosh stole a $2,000 watch from Gilbert L. Dice, of the 2400 block of Fourth street northeast, at whose house he had obtained a room.

He is alleged to have sold the works here, and then to have disposed of the case in Greensburg, where he lives. Police traced the case because of its special fraternal insignia and jewelry.

Forty crippled children of Weightman School, who couldn't get to school two weeks ago because bus transportation was temporarily discontinued, won't need those buses this afternoon.

They are going on a boat ride down the Potomac as guests of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and when they get back members of the chamber will take them home in private cars. The party will be in charge of Mrs. Beulah Drake, principal, and A. I. Sheehan, of the junior chamber.

Zionists Plan Services.

Memorial services for Dr. Nahun Sokolow, noted Zionist leader, who recently died in London, will be held in the main auditorium of the Jewish Community Center June 23 at 8:15 p. m., with Rabbi Solomon Metz and Dr. Abram Goldberg as principal speakers. The affair is sponsored by the combined Zionist organizations of the city. A. L. Shalowitz is chairman of arrangements.

Dr. Ballou Will Speak.

Making his last address of the current school year, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, will speak before members of the Powell Junior High School P.-T. A. tonight. Dr. Ballou will discuss the character education program in the District public schools. Mrs. E. R. Seal has charge of the meeting.

Business Men Laud Lump Sum Battle

The Columbia Heights Business Men's Association last night voted to commend the Senate District Committee's fight to keep the Federal contribution to the District at the $5,700,000 figure set by the Budget Bureau.

A committee of four was appointed to request the Public Utilities Commission to rescind an order rerouting Takoma Park cars down Georgia avenue instead of Fourteenth street. The group will work with similar ones from the Takoma Park and Brightwood Citizens Associations.

B. J. Werner, president of the Mount Pleasant Citizens Association, asked the business men to consider a possible site for a police boys club. Harold A. Emery, senior vice commander of the Lincoln Post, American Legion, asked the group's support in obtaining free swimming in the East Potomac Park Pool under construction.

Church Pastor Will Be Honored

The Rev. Patrick E. Conroy, pastor of St. Anthony's Church, will be honored at testimonial dinner given by the men of his parish tonight in the Willard Hotel.

The Rev. John White, of New York, a principal speaker, will be among several church dignitaries

Woodrow Wilson High Gives Play Tomorrow

Woodrow Wilson High School players will present the school's first public dramatic production tomorrow night. It will be "The Trysting Place," by Booth Tarkington.

In the cast are Mary Richards, George Fussell, Mary Dyer, Peter Noel, Arthur Hummel and John Hechinger. The Boys and Girls Glee Clubs will augment the program, and solos will be offered by William Rose, Martha Milburn, Dorothy Gurnee and Eugene Young.

Honored by Fraternity.

Gibson T. Hutchison, 3606 Veazey street northwest, junior in the School of Mechanical Engineering, Drexel Institute of Technology, Philadelphia, has been elected to the Blue Key National Honorary Fraternity, it was announced yesterday.

Arlington Buys Six-Acre Tract For New School

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Cla. 809. Clarendon, Va.

Purchase of six acres in South Fillmore street, near Columbia pike in Arlington, as the site for the new junior high school was announced by the county school board at a special meeting last night. Cost of the land was said to be approximately $15,000.

The school, to be erected with a $250,000 bond issue authorized by taxpayers last month, will provide for 700 students and will greatly relieve overcrowded conditions at Washington-Lee High School, Ballston.

Plans for the structure, as prepared by State Architect Raymond V. Long, call for a colonial type building of brick and concrete, fireproof throughout, and containing 21 classrooms, library, two shops, gymnasium, auditorium and cafeteria.

The fourteenth graduation at St. Charles' Catholic School of Clarendon will be held at the church tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. The class of 26 is the largest since the school opened.

Exercises will open with invocation by the Rev. John A. Curran. An addres will be delivered by Mgr. Connelly, of Baltimore.

Those who will receive their diplomas are Celeste Bowers, Kathleen Mullen, Carolyn Wells, Doris Hall, Josephine Becker, Lucille Brewer, Madelyne Ganbino, Catherine Burrows, Elizabeth Brewer, Agnes Zimmerman, Vera Halliday, Vivian Halliday, Margaret Miller, Paul Johnson, Robert Carroll, Cleveland Barry, Evelyn Morris, Katherine Dowden, Doris Lee, William O'Brien, Donald Buscher, Paul Sullivan, Lewis Bailey, Fred Ashton, Robert Mattare and John Morre.

After reconsidering his refusal to pay $7.50 a week to his wife as ordered by the court when given a hearing last Friday before County Judge B. M. Hedrick on a charge of nonsupport, Welhelmus Philipoom was released yesterday.

The court suspended his sentence of one year on the State roads with the understanding that Philipoom pay to Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, county superintendent of Public Welfare, $7.50 each week to support his wife and child.

The Young Democratic Club, of Arlington County, at its meeting held at the Lee Tavern Monday night, unanimously indorsed the movement for a recreational center for the youth of the county as advocated by George M. Yeatman, chairman of the of the county board.

Yeatman, addressing the club, declared that the time has arrived when something must be done to provide recreational facilities for the yong men and women of the county.

The executive committee announced appointment of A. E. Fitz Hugh as first vice president, filling vacancy caused by resignation of Stewart Richardson, and Gertrude Richardson as second vice president, filling vacancy caused by death of Leon Turnburke.

Publicity—Smith Rucker, chairman; Mildred Preston, vice chairman; Evelyn M. Jones, Arthur M. Dawson and Maynard M. Carlisle.

Voting, campaign and rally—James J. Scott, chairman; Alice M. Garber, vice chairman; Clarence Yeatman, Cecile Scott and Howard B. Fields.

Graduation exercises will be held at Hoffman-Ballston Colored Senior High School at 8:15 tonight.

The invocation will be made by the Rev. James E. Green, and addresses by Wilbur Washington and Mrs. Mary H. Plummer. The diplomas will be presented by Fletcher Kemp, county superintendent of schools.

Paper Brings Best Price in County's History; WPA Potomac Drive Project Approved by Board; Zoning Hearings Set.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
9213 Clark Avenue, Silver Spring, Md.
Telephone, SHepherd 2363.

Montgomery County bonds and certificates of indebtedness brought the best price in the history of the county yesterday. The Hamilton National Bank of Washington purchased a $250,000 issue of 90-day tax anticipation certificates at par with an interest rate of $1.90. Four bids were made.

John Nuveen & Co., of Chicago, purchased the $194,000 issue of refunding bonds at par and agreed to pay all expenses of preparation and delivery as follows: 97,000 in bonds maturing from 1941 to 1951 at 2¾, and the remaining $97,000 maturing from 1946 to 1951 at 3¼. The bonds are to refund all bond issues coming due in the next six months.

The commissioners were unable to complete the annual tax levy yesterday. They are paring estimates in an effort to keep the rate of $1.50 per 100 now in effect. Preliminary estimates indicate an increase of 5 cents in the tax rate.

Approve WPA Project.

The commissioners yesterday approved a Works Progress Administration project to repair Potomac drive in Brookmont, which was damage din the recent flood, at a cost of $3,200, of which the county will pay $630 for material.

Residents of Connecticut avenue in Kensington presented a petition with 100 names asking that a policeman be assigned to that section prevent fast driving which they claim is endangering the lives of children.

A letter was recevied from the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association of Washington, protesting against continuation of the dump on East-West highway near Sixteenth street. The letter stated that fires from the dump have nearly reached their section and smoke invade their section from the dump.

The following zoning cases were acted upon by the commissioners yesterday:

Petition of R. A. Lutes for reclassification of lots 1 to 9, Gilbert's addition of Takoma Park, from residential A to residential B, approved.

Petition of Peter Fritz for rezoning of the Log Cabin Inn on Georgia avenue extended at Wheaton from residential A to commercial D, denied upon recommendation of the Maryland National Park and Planning Commission.

Hearings were set as follows:

Application of Frank C. Davis for rezoning of the north 100 feet of the Villa Roma tract on Rockville pike from Residential A to Sommercial D except for a setback of 50 feet from the Rickville pike; hearing to be held July 13 at 8 p. m. in Rockville Courthouse.

Petition for rezoning of part of Patton tract on East-West highway in Bethesda from Residential A to Commercial D; hearing to be held July 17, at 7 p. m., at Bethesda County Building.

Petition of R. L. McCary for reclassification from Residential A to Residential B of lots 35 to 38, block 54, Gilbert's Addition to Takoma Park; hearing July 24 at 7 p. m. at Silver Spring County Building.

Discontinuance of the office of supervisor of county aid was urged in a resolution adopted by the Woman's Democratic Club of Leland at a meeting in Chevy Chase. The resolution contended that the office should be abolished or made a part-time position since the Department of Welfare has been abolished.

The club adopted a resolution favoring increase in the scale of salaries paid county school teachers more comparable with those paid in Washington.

Mrs. Phillip J. Fischer was elected president. Other officers elected are Mrs. John Edwards, Mrs. John H. Werner and Miss Olivia Knight, vice presidents; Mrs. Catherine Callan, recording secretary; Mrs. Bevan Sharpless, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Louis Boswell, treasurer, and Mrs. Frances Stone, member at large.

Kenneth W. Simpson was elected president at the annual meeting of the Kensington Volunteer Fire Department. Ralph Burdette was named chief for a second time. Waltary; K. Kenneth Culver, treasurer; ter L. Lewis was elected vice president; W. Raymond Hughes, secre-Maynard L. Hawkins, assistant chief.

Mrs. Louise E. Ferguson, of Washington, has been selected by the board of trustees of the Silver tion of librarian. Mrs. Ferguson is Spring Public Library for the posia graduate of an accredited library school and was one of ten applicants. The office pays a salary of $1,500 yearly and begins July 1. Funds for the salary are provided for in this year's tax levy.

D. C. Nurses Report 15,115 Visits in May

The field staff of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society made 15,115 visits last month, it was reported yesterday to the season's last meeting of the board of directors by the acting director, Inez L. Cadel. Charity cases numbered 75 per cent of the total.

The receipt of $1,500 from the George M. Kober estate was reported by Harold N. Marsh, vice chairman of the finance committee. The meeting was held at headquarters office in the Albee Building.

Committee chairmen reporting were Mrs. R. M. Kauffmann, nursing committee; Mrs. Charles B. Crawford, supply, and Mrs. Charles F. Wilson, publicity. Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of the Supreme Court Justice, and president of the society, presided.

School Expels 4 Who Refused To Salute Flag

during the day by members of the Marlboro American Legion Post, who urged that respect of the flag be made a paramount factor.

On the basis of findings set forth by Waldo Burnside, attorney to the board, the following letter to Lutke was made public through County School Superintendent Nicholas Orem:

"I have been instructed by the board of education of Prince Georges County to notify you that your children will be refused enrollment in the Oxon Hill or other schools in Prince Georges County after September 1 next, unless they agree to comply with the intent of that section of the school law of the State of Maryland reading as follows:

'It shall be the duty of boards of education to prepare for the use of the public schools of the State a program providing for the salute to the flag, and such other patriotic exercises from time to time as may be deemed by them to be expedient, and, under such regulations and instruction as may best meet the various requirements of the different grades in such schools.'

"All to the end that the love of liberty and democracy, signified in the devotion of all true and patriotic Americans to their flag and to their country, shall be instilled in the hearts and minds of the youth of America."

Francis Lutke, 13, and Ruth Lutke, 14, the two high school students, later said they had never been required to salute the flag.

Freeman to Preach.

The Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington will visit the chapel of the Redeemer, Glen Echo, Md., at 7:30 p. m. today to administer the Rite of Confirmation. Bishop Freeman will also preach the sermon.

Write-In Vote Elects Col. Farr Fairfax Mayor

Will Begin Elective Term Sept. 1; 5 Members of Council Named.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 243, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Alexandria 43-F-31.

Col. Richard R. Farr, present mayor of the town of Fairfax, was chosen to succeed himself yesterday, when 49 qualified voters of the town wrote in his name on the election ballot. Col. Farr, a Republican and former assistant United States Attorney General, was appointed mayor by Judge Walter T. McCarthy of the county circuit court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mayor Thomas P. Chapman.

This is the fourth time in succession that the voters have had to select their mayor by writing his name on the ballot, as none of the residents wonted the job enough to file their candidacy.

Col. Farr's first elective term will start on September 1.

The voters also were compelled to write the names of five councilmen as only one filed for office. The present members were re-elected. They are O. B. Campbll, S. F. Cooper, Edgar Littleton, Henry Ludwig, James E. Nickell and A. R. Sherwood.

Many other residents had their names written on the ballot for council. Allan Williams led the list of 45 names with 21 votes. A total of 80 out of the possible 240 votes were cast yesterday.

Vienna Mayor Defeated.

The other three municipal elections in Fairfax County were uneventful except in the Town of Vienna, where the present mayor was defeated and the names of three persons written on the ballot for councilmen. These three were among the leaders when the results were counted. A total of 105 votes out of the 190 qualified were cost.

There were already nine names on the ballot for councilman when the names of A. E. Smoot, Dr. Sigmund Newman and William D. Dixon were written in by the voters.

The Vienna results were: For mayor, Edgar T. Bennett, 39; Joseph T. J. Davis, 62, and R. E. Faulkner, 3. For town council, E. L. Reid, 75; Wiilliam D. Dixon, 64; C. E. Burner, 64; W. W. Louk, 60; C. Arthur Thompson, 56; L. L. Freeman, 55; Dr. Sigmund Newman, 54; Alton Money 53; A. E. Smoot 52; Joseph Berry 50; C. A. Faulkner, 11, and C. C. Hitt, 5.

Under the law the Vienna council shall be composed of not less than three and not more than nine members. The practice has been for the nine candidates receiving the largest number of votes to meet soon after the election and decide the number to take office. This has usually been the five highest. The new council will take office September 1.

Only 48 Go to Polls.

Falls Church voters were apparently satisfied with the candidates, as only 48 voters took time to go to the polls yesterday. One of the ballots cast was void and the balance were cast for L. P. Daniel for mayor. He was unopposed and this will make his third consecutive term. The councilmen re-elected were Benjamin F. Elliott and Thomas F. Probey. Clark Crossman was elected to succeed William S. Brown, who was not a candidate.

Veteran Mayor J. M. Fulmer of Clifton, was defeated by J. B. Cross. The voters of the small town also were compelled to write in the names of their choice for all town offices as no one took time to file his candidacy.

Council Slashes Tax Rate 20c At Hyattsville

Levy on Realty Cut From 45 to 25 Cents as Mayor Breaks Tie.

With a surplus of $10,000 in the town treasury, the Hyattsville town council voted early yesterday to reduce the municipal tax rate from 45 to 25 cents per $100 on estate.

This will include the 5-cent fire tax, the rate of which will not be altered.

Mayor H. T. Willis cast the deciding vote for reduction shortly after midnight, bresking a 4-4 tie. Half the council had contended the $10,000 surplus should not be tampered with.

The 25-cent rate is expected to reduce this surplus by next July 1, to $6,500. The 45-cent rate netted a total revenue of $42,000, while the new tax is expected to yield only $34,000.

Hyattsville will be aided, however, by the fact that there is a $400,000 increase in the town's assessable property value.

At the Monday night-Tuesday morning meeting the council also voted to allow the street lights to remain on all night. Heretofore the have been turned off at 1:30 a. m.

The officials increased the appropriation for the town library from $1,650 to $1,800.

Resettlement Administration officials said yesterday that the establishment of Greenbelt, near Berwyn Heights, Md., would result in a "substantial improvement in the fiscal affairs of Prince Georges County."

The Government men based their forecast on a study of taxation problems which they have recently completed.

Private sales of adjoining tracts of land, they declared, have recently shown a 100 per cent increase in price. The increase was said to more than equal the present tax valuation of lands purchased by the Government.

When the Greenbelt project is completed it will be turned over to a corporation. This will place on the county tax list approximately $4,500,000 worth of taxable property, resulting in a net increase of county tax valuations of more than $4,160,000.

At the 1935 county tax rate, this valuation will yield more than $52,000 per year in taxes, they said.

"Such a sum is fully sufficient to cover all costs for schools and other county services which the new community will require."

Prince Georges County received an increase of $11,547.92 for liquor licenses durin gthe month of May, Brice Bowie, clerk of the Circuit Court, told the county commissioners yesterday.

Income from licenses to sell ice was said to be $450.

Retreat Order ReportedGiven Nanking Army

By the United Press.

Nanking, June 9.—The huge, well-equipped Cantonese army, numbering 200,000 men continued its march northward tonight, threatening to plunge China into war with Japan or civil war between the Canton and Nanking forces.

It was reported the Canton, or southwestern, army occupied the city of Hengchow, in Hunan Province, on the road to Lake Tungting, around which the Nanking, or central, government reportedly concentrated 12 divisions to halt the advance.

Apparently as a last resort to avert a clash pending the outcome of negotiations between central and southwestern officials, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, military leader of the Nanking government, was said to have ordered his troops to retreat.

Pessimism over the situation increased. Officials implicitly admitted that penetration of Hunan Province, under the central government's control, makes avoidance of civil war increasingly difficult. Hengchow is less than 10 miles south of Changshu, capital of Hunan.

Conference Arranged.

Chiang Kai-shek has invited Marshal Li Tsung-Jen and Chan Tsi-tong, southwestern military leaders, to Nanking to discuss Canton's anti-Japanese policy and the demands of Canton war lords for military action to prevent further encroachment in North China, newspapers reported.

It was understood Li and Chan are seriously considering accepting Chiang's invitation, possibly with a view of mapping out a united campaign against Japan.

Meanwhile, preparations were made here for the forthcoming emergency session of the central control and executive committees to reply to the Southwest's demands for war against Japan.

British to Evacuate.

Shanghai (Wednesday), June 10 (AP).—British authorities ordered women missionaries evacuated today from the Hingyang area of Hunan Province, said to have been occupied by advancing troops of the Canton (South China) government.

(Hunan lies immediately north of Kwangsi and Kwangtung provinces, which make up the Canton government, and is affiliated with the Nanking national government. Canton apparently is seeking to force Nanking into a joint war against Japan.)

Conciliator Move.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Nanking government, who yesterday said there would be no war against Japan and no civil war, today made a conciliatory move in an effort to smooth over the South China crisis. He wired Canton in reply to it manifesto demanding a war against Japan that he hoped the South "realized the seriousness of its action."

The Domei (Japanese) News Agency said in a dispatch from Canton the Japanese consul general there warned Gen. Chen Chi-Tang, commander in chief of the Kwangtung army against "unduly exciting popular feeling against Japan."

"Any untoward incident involving the Japanese will result in serious repercussions," the Japanese official was quoted.

(A Hongkong dispatch said recruiting in the south continued in the campaign against Japanese "aggression" and the strength of armies there was estimated at 600,000 men.)

Cherry Trees Show Ill Effect of Flood

Forty Japanese cherry trees fringing the Tidal Basin are just beginning to show the ill effects of the spring flood, and it is doubtful whether they will survive, Parks Superintendent C. Marshall Finnan said yesterday.

Engineers are engaged in estimating the cost of drain tiles which would be installed about the roots of the trees to allow water to flow off more rapidly, Finnan asserted.

Blum Demands Deputies Enact His Labor Bills

French Premier Presses for 'New Deal' as Strikes Continue.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 9.—Leon Blum, declaring, "Every hour counts," demanded action on his labor new deal to cure a lingering strike fever today.

The tall Socialist premier took his bills for a compulsory 40-hour week, paid vacations, collective labor contracts and pension cut relief from cabinet to Chamber of Deputies.

He acted as coal mine and new provincial strikes prolonged French industrial worries and as the combined efforts of government and labor leaders failed to start a vast army of "folded arms" strikers back to work in big numbers.

Tonight the ministry of the interior announced the arrest of a number of agitators who were accused of carrying arms and attempting to influence strikers. Earlier, left wing deputies decided to "ask explanations" from the interior minister, Roger Salengro, about "rumors that troops and mobile guards have been concentrated in the capital."

Committee Plea Met.

The deputies responded to Blum's appeal by granting his request for a 33-member special committee to expedite the legislation, which may be finally passed next week.

Also introduced was a bill to give the government control of the Bank of France.

A trickle of returning strikers, responding to a government-won employer agreement on wages and hours, gave the Paris industrial area something of its normal aspect.

But the fourteenth day of the great strikes saw a dozen Socialists injured in a fight with recalcitrant Communists at a Valencinnes munitions plant between 150,000 and 195,000 miners holding out in northern coal diggings, and scattered walkouts elsewhere.

Markets Uneasy.

New York, June 9 (AP).—Foreign exchange markets today gave fresh evidence of general anxiety over the future status of the European gold bloc currencies which were forced to yield more than their gains of Monday.

The French franc was forced below the gold export point and new engagements for shipment to New York of $5,050,000 in gold were arranged. International bankers here said that sales of the franc and purchases of sterling were being actively transacted in Paris.

Long Island R. R. Told To Cut Fare to 2 Cents

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 9 (AP).—The Long Island Railroad was directed today by Supreme Court Justice George H. Furman to reduce its passenger rate within the city limits of New York to 2 cents a mile, effective immediately.

The court denied an application by the railroad, owned by the Pennsylvania, for a stay of the temporary injunction it granted last Thursday restraining the road, which carries thousands of commuters daily, from charging a fare in excess of 2 cents.

The Long Island has been charging 3 cents a mile despite the recent order of the Interstate Commerce Commission to all Eastern railroads to reduce fares to 2 cents a mile. The Long Island contended its business is interstate and therefore not subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal regulatory body.

War Among Moros Threatened Over Death of Sultan of Sulu

Son-in-Law Attempts to Gain Rule as Question of Succession Stirs Philippine Tribesmen to Unrest.

By the Associated Press.

Manila, June 9.—Dispute over a successor to the childless Sultan of Sulu threatened tonight to embroil 500,000 Moros in a war among themselves.

The 72-year-old ruler, by name and title Hadji Muhamad Jamalu'l Kiram, Sultan of Sulu, Sultan of North Borneo and Judge of Agama, died Sunday night.

Datu (prince) Umbra, husband of the Sultan's adopted daughter, Princess Dayang Dayang, assumed the position of the once-powerful ruler, and immediately collided with opposition from Hadji Butu, counsellor for the Moros.

Butu, who crowned Kiram as Sultan in 1894, announced he would support Datu Rajamuda, only living brother of the deceased ruler, for the sultanate. There will be trouble unless Rajamuda becomes Sultan, he warned.

The hand of Princess Dayang was seen in her husband's assumption of office. For years she handled the aged Sultan's affairs and assisted him in his territorial and monetary claims against the government.

Although James R. Fugate, American Governor of Mindanao, recommended Government recognition of any successor named, the Philippine Bureau of Non-Christian Tribes said this would not be done.

The bureau's theory was that the passing of Kirama, who claimed to be a descendant of the Prophet Mohammed, would permit the assimiliation of the Moros by the Filipinos.

Women figured heavily in the life of Sultan Kiram. Before abolition of polygamy he was reported to have "all the wives he could support." During recent years he was credited with three.

He adopted three nieces as his daughters, including Dayang. Another, the American educated Princess Tarhata, was reputedly the first Moro woman to have bobbed hair. Later she reverted to native ideas and conspired with her husband, Datu Tahil, to rise against the American Governor of Jolo (Sulu).

Missing Schoolgirl Found by Reporter

Washington, Ill., June 9 (AP).—Dorothy Blumenshine, 14-year-old school girl for whom a posse and bloodhounds searched in vain after she disappeared ten days ago, was reunited with her family tonight.

She returned to this little town—which she said she left because it ha dno bright lights or excitement—a few hours after a Chicago reporter found her working as a housemaid in that city, where she had kept her identity hidden while authorities of several counties hunted for her.

The punishment she feared because of the highballs she drank before "passing out" at a party Saturday night, May 30, would not be forthcoming, her father, Dr. Emil Blumenshine, veteranarian, said when he greeted her.

Instead, he whirled her off on an automobile ride with her mother and three brothers.

The family was glad to have her back, but Dorothy "hated" it, she said. She asked Eleanor and Florence Kolek, sisters, who took her to their home in Chicago, to help her persuade her parents to permit her to work there.

Kasper Quadruplets Are Now Month Old

Passaic, N. J., June 9 (AP).—Frances, Frank, Felix and Ferdinand Kasper—better known as the Kasper quadruplets—were a month old today and 4 pounds 9½ ounces heavier than at birth.

Their collective weight was 17 pounds 14½ ounces, as compared with their birth weight of 13 pounds 5 ounces. Dr. Frank Jani, who delivered them May 9, described their condition as "very good."

He said the incubator in which they have lived since birth was operating only about half time now and added they probably would be removed when they weigh 5 pounds each.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, June 9.—Premier Mussolini stirred talk of his successor tonight by naming his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, the world's youngest foreign minister of a major power in a sweeping "changing of the guard."

In the long-expected cabinet shake-up Il Duce gave up his majority holding by surrendering three of his eight portfolios. There are 15 cabinet posts.

Ciano, but 33, becomes the youngest foreign minister in Italy's history. Belief was expressed in diplomatic circles Il Duce would groom his relative for his eventual successor as premier. Ciano is married to Mussolini's daughter, Edda.

The new foreign minister steps up from the cabinet post of minister of propaganda. Ciano took time off form this job during the Ethiopian war to go to Africa, where he won a medal of valor for his leadership of the "desperate" air squadron, in which two of Il Duce's sons flew.

Mussolini will still be a busy man, however. In addition to being premier, the other posts he retains are the interior, war, navy and aviation. Thus he has sole control of the nation's armed forces and police.

In making way for Ciano Il Duce accepted the resignation of Fulvio Suvich, undersecretary for foreign affairs for several years. He wrote Cuvich a letter of appreciation "for the collaboration given me during four years" and promised him "a position of high confidence."

Giuseppe Bastianini, ambassador to Poland, was made undersecretary for foreign affairs. He is only 37.

The other appointments were: Diono Alfieri, until today Ciano's undersecretary, minister of press and propaganda; Ferruccio Lantini, minister of corporations, and Alessandro Lessona, minister of colonies, Lessona being moved up from undersecretary.

Count Ciano's diplomatic record includes service as consul general in Shanghai and as an attache of the Italian embassy in the Vatican. His father, Count Constanzo Ciano, is president of the chamber of deputies.

Honored by Fraterinity.

Contract for installation of underground electrical distribution and lighting systems for the adult unit of the District Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Glenn Dale, Md., was awarded by the Commissioners yesterday to the Plymouth Electric Co., of New York City, for $41,450.

Piano Recital Today.

Emma Louise Thompson, director of the Keyboard Club of Roosevelt High School, will present Alice Lewis and Marion Reiley, pianists, in their graduating recital at 3:15 p. m. today. The young musicians have earned their medals of honor under the instruction of Mary Izant Couch.

Maryland M. P. Church to Open Session Today

108th Annual Conference Will Last Six Days at Westminster.

By the Associated Press.

Westminster, Md., June 9.—Dr. Edgar A. Sexsmith will open the 108th annual session of the Maryland conference of the Methodist Protestant Church with devotional services here tomorrow morning.

Dr. Sexsmith is president of the conference, whose session will last until Monday. One of the most important items on the agenda will be the vote on proposed unification of the church with the Methodist Episcopal Church and Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Dr. James H. Straughn, president of the general conference, will offer the prayer, and C. E. Dryden will read the memorial roll. The president and ministers will conduct the Lord's Supper and Dr. John N. Link will preach the sermon.

Election of officers will feature the afternoon meeting. Annual reports will be heard. In the evening, Dr. E. D. Stone, of Baltimore, will lead a song service and Dr. Clovis G. Chappell, of Birmingham, Ala., will speak.

Thursday will be devoted to business meetings and financial reports. Dr. Straughn will speak again. Appointments of ministers will be read at the closing session.

7 Washington Youths Graduated by Purdue

District students who graduated included Charles H. Baker, B. S. in mechanical engineering; Woodrow W. Lee, B. S. in mechanical engineering; Thomas M. Moindoo, B. S. in mechanical engineering; Charles B. F. Gaskins, B. S. in civil engineering; Edward Soo, B. S. in civil engineering; Francis Doyle, B. S. in electrical engineering, and Francis E. Washer, doctor of philosophy.

Elizabeth Hill Honored.

Miss Elizabeth Hill, daughter of Commander and Mrs. Harry K. Hill, of 3600 Porter street northwest, a member of the graduating class of Hood College, Frederick, Md., has received a citation of honor, conferred on seniors who have attained 40 per cent "A's" during her college career. She is a member of the senior class.

Hike Set for Friday.

The Wanderbirds Hiking Club will hold a moonlight trek from the end of the Mount Pleasant car line to the Council Stone recreation area near Pierce Mill, Rock Creek Park, Friday, beginning at 7:30 p. m. Dr. Titus Ulks will give an illustrated lecture on the Canadian Rockies when the hikers reach their destination.

67,000 More In Merit Setup Asked of G.O.P.

Cleveland, June 9.—Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, tonight asked the Republican resolutions committee to include in the party's platform a plank extending the merit system to 67,000 civilian Federal employes.

Steward confined his remarks to a few words, and was applauded vigirously by delegates. He was followed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who also urged extension of the civil service, and by Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, of the National League of Women Voters, who assailed the spoils system.

Emphasizing the non-partisan character of the National Federation of Federal Employes, Steward urged a unanimous expression by the party "for Federal legislation which will place under the merit system, in competitive service, all employes except those in policy-making positions—tenure dependent on efficient work."

"In no other way can Federal activities be carried on in an economical and efficient manner," he told the committee.

High Wages Asked.

Green urged a plank favoring "maintenance of high, decent wage standards for employes of the Federal Government and that civilian employes be equitably and satisfactorily classified under civil service regulations."

"The devotion of labor to civil service and the application of civil service regulations to Government employes, inspires us to earnestly recommend its continuation and progressive extension to all departments of the Government," Green said.

Speaking for the League of Women Voters, Mrs. Bohrer also asked a "merit system in public service" plank.

"The League of Women Voters believes that the spoils system is a vicious institution," she told the committee. "It destroys confidence in government. It corrupts and disrupts political party organization. It is political slavery of the worst kind.

Claims Support of 250,000.

"The political party which will release its public officials from the burden of political patronage will merit the commendation and support of the great mass of voters."

Mrs. Bohrer said her organization had been sounding out public sentiment on this problem for more than a year.

"As a tangible reflection of the increasing public opinion for qualified public personnel, we have ready for presentation to you more than 250,000 cards signed by men and women from 48 States and the District of Columbia, petitioning the political parties to abolish the spoils system and substitute the merit system of appointment to government office," she added.

Church Selected As Meeting Place

A two-year battle for a new meeting place ended last night when the Summit Park Citizens Association voted to meet in East Washington Heights Baptist Church after the summer recess. For the last two years the group has been meeting at the home of Mrs. George H. Marshall, 3703 Bangor street southeast.

A resolution presented by Mrs. Marshall was adopted directing the secretary, Miss Ronnie Cox, to write a letter asking C. Marshall Finnan, director of public parks, to restore hedges and grass in the center parkway on Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

A resolution asking the District Commissioners that grading on Austin street southeast be completed also was adopted. Part of the street has been graded, but recently work was suspended.

Mrs. Horace J. Phelps, former president of the Petworth Women's Culb, spoke on the bill in Congress proposing to turn public swimming pools over to consecsionairs.

Mrs. Anna Coulter Funeral Is Friday

Mrs. Coulter was the wife of Carleton Coulter, and a daughter of Cumberland and Harriet Buchdaughter, Mrs. John K. Robeson, of New York; three sons, Dr. Coulter, Maj. Carleton Coulter, jr., U. S. A., and Philemon B. Coulter, assistant State's attorney in Baltimore. She also leaves two brothers, Brig. Gen. Buchanan Dugan, U. S. A., and C. Nelson Dugan, of Baltimore, and three sisters, the Misses Emily, Mary Coale and Harriet Buchanan Dugan, all of Balitmore.

Police Tribute

Relief Unit Pays Honor to Inspector Burke.

Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, retired chief of detectives, sat once more in his swivel chair at headquarters last night.

Then he went to the squad room, smiling and perhaps thinking of the days before his retirement several months ago.

In the squad room waiting to greet him were the members of the Metropolitan Police Relief Association, which he headed for years.

They had gathered to pay tribute to their former chief and present him with a chest of hand-engraved silver as a testimonial of their devotion and appreciation of his services.

Burke thanked the organization for the gift in a talk in which he dwelt upon the work of the association and its plans for the future.

To a Successful Holdup Is Told in 3 Parts.

A hold-up story in three parts was told to police yesterday by Max Friedman, grocer, at 1601 Kramer street northeast.

Part one—Occurred some time in the past when a colored man who owed Friedman a small bill left the neighborhood.

Part two—11:15 Monday night—the man returned and greeted Friedman, saying that he had moved away. He ordered several dollars worth of groceries, then pointing a gun at Friedman, emptied the cash drawer of $6 and departed.

Part three—Fifteen minutes later he returned and cautioned Friedman not to tell anybody about the hold-up.

Huddleston Loses In Alabama Vote

By the Associated Press.

Birmingham, Ala., June 9.—The veteran Representative George Huddleston, whose New Deal record was a major campaign issue, was defeated today by Luther Patrick, poet-radio entertainer, on the basis of unofficial returns from the Ninth Congressional District Democratic "runoff" primary.

The count from 204 of 236 boxes in the district, comprised of Birmingham and Jefferson County, gave Patrick 18,584; Huddleston 12,893.

Patrick's supporters had vigorously attacked Huddleston's negative votes on the social security and Guffey coal bills. They also criticized his fight against the "death sentence" clause in the Administration utilities holding company bill.

In the only other Congressional "runoff" race, John Sparkman, Huntsville lawyer, in unofficial returns from 108 of 207 boxes, led R. T. Simpson, jr., Florence lawyer, 10,152 to 7,502.

Guards Increased At Syracuse Plant

Syracuse, N. Y., June 9 (AP).—Police guard at the Remington-Rand Co.'s Syracuse plant was increased tonight with the announcement by the company officials that they planned to "import 500 strikebreakers" to step into jobs left vacant by striking employes.

Clair Bellows, a member of the joint protective board, said "Let them bring the strikebreakers in. We can get out 200 pickets for every strikebreaker they hire."

Chief of Police Thomas Carroll promptly declared "we will increase our force at the Remington-Rand plant in view of these developments."

The three-week-old strike started over wages and the discharge of union workers.

Two D. C. Students In Penn State Class

Two Washington students and two from Virginia were among the 763 seniors to receive degrees at the seventy-sixth annual commencement exercises of Pennsylvania State College, it was announced yesterday.

Amelia Brooks, of 3302 Park place northwest, received her B. S. in architecture, and James Harrison Jacobs, of 6000 Thirty-fourth place northwest, received a B. S. in chemistry.

The Virginians are Robert Alan Hilder, of Glencarlyn, who won a degree in animal husbandry, and William Herbert Brown, of Purcellville, who was graduated in agricultural economics.

Quints' Sister, Brother Stricken With Measles

North Bay, Ontario, June 9 (AP).—Ernest and Therese Dionne, brother and sister of the quintuplets, were down with the measles today and the Dionne homestead was under quarantine.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, parents of the children, had to discontinue their daily visits to the Dafoe Nursery, where the quintuplets live.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician to the quintuplets and township health officer, ordered 15 homes in east Ferris Township quarantined. Only two or three of the 70 children in the local school escaped the mild epidemic.

Davis Is Approved For Reserve Post.

By the Associated Press.

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday approved the nomination of Chester Davis, retiring AAA administrator, to an eight-year term on the Federal Reserve Board.

It also approved the appointment of Emil Schram, of Illinois, to the board of directors of the Reconstruction Corporation for two years.

Grace Silver's Funeral Rites Set for Friday

Ex-Principal of Kingsman School Was Native of Washington.

Services will be held at Hysong's funeral home at 2 p. m. Friday for Miss Grace Susan Silvers, 74, former District public school teacher, who died Monday at her home, 3640 Sixteenth street northwest. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Miss Silvers retired in 1925 after 45 years as teacher and principal of local public schools. She was appointed in 1880. In 1912 she was named principal of the Hilton School and remained there until 1922, when she was assigned to head the newly opened Kingsman School. She served at Kingsman until her retirement.

Miss Silvers was a native of Washington. Her father, Henry C. Silvers, was a captain in the Union Army and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Archibald Silvers, a Civil War nurse.

During her years as a teacher, Miss Silvers became well known for the interest she displayed in her pupils. She frequently gave financial aid to those in need. She had for many years been a member of Calvary Baptist Church.

Surviving are two nephews, Ernest O. Paland, of this city, and Otis C. Dorian, of Bethesda.

St. Peter, Minn., June 9 (AP).—Minnesota authorities recaptured today the seventh of the 16 mad felons who escaped from the insane asylum here but reluctantly decided the nine still at large—including four murderers—probably had reached some of the surrounding States.

As reports of attempted robberies of hardware stores and the looting of two garages marked an out-of-State trail for the fugitives, worried officers again urged dealers in firearms in southern Minnesota and nearby Wisconsin and Iowa to hide their stocks to keep the outlaws from obtaining weapons.

National Guard armories were especially cautioned to be alert.

The ninth inmate to be re-taken was William Lannenji, a car thief from St. Louis County, who wandered out of the swamps 6 miles from St. Peter. Like the others previously caught, he was considered by the authorities as one of the "lesser fry."

A widespread alarm was sounded for Lawrence De Vol. Melvin Passolt, State crime bureau chief, predicted De Vol, a former Barker-Karpis trigger man, would try desperately to get a machine gun. He used one once to slay two Minneapolis patrolmen during a $100,000 raid on a bank.

Glacier-Fed Rivers Imperil West Coast

Vancouver, British Columbia, June 9 (AP).—Glacier-fed rivers, swollen by an early thaw, sent new flood crests rolling down the Yukon and British Columbia coasts tonight while a cold wave moved eastward to threaten wheat crops of the Prairie Provinces.

The Columbia River, running bank full, swept into Washington State and virtually isolated Prescott, a mill town near Ranier, Oreg. Vancouver was without direct word from Mayo, small community in northern Yukon territory.

Cruise Is Arranged By D. C. Lawyers

Five hundred members of the District Bar Association will attend the river cruise of the association tomorrow, Edmund M. Toland, general chairman of the committee, announced yesterday. The lawyers will leave Washington on the S. S. Potomac for Quantico, Va., where the day will be spent in swimming, fishing, boating and other sports.

Boxing matches, including a battle royal, have been arranged. Many of the Justices of the United States Court of Appeals and the District Supreme Court are planning to attend, and there will be numerous other guests.

The chairmen of various committees are: Joseph A. Burkart, honorary chairman; Charles E. Ford, vice chairman; Julian I. Richards, tickets; Jerome F. Barnard, entertainment; Austin F. Canfield, invitations; Al Philip Kane, secretary-treasurer; William J. Rowan, reception, and Charles E. Pledger, jr., publicity.

NolanCompany To Face Board In Labor Row

Charge Filed That Motor Dealers Fired Workers Who Spurned 'Union.'

Charges that the Nolan Motor Co., 1111 Eighteenth street northwest, violated the national labor relations act during recent labor disputes, were filed yesterday with the National Labor Relations Board.

At a hearing set for June 22, the board will ask Nolan officials to explain the alleged dismissal of employes who refused to join what was described as an inter-company union—the Nolan Beneficial Association.

A complaint was filed with the board after an investigation of charges by the International Association of Machinists, mechanics union, which has called strikes in 19 shops throughout the city during the past several weeks.

Formal charges were filed with the board by Bennett F. Schauffler, Baltimore regional director. It was alleged that Joseph Acevez, a mechanic, was discharged May 14, and another employe, Bruce Luttrell, was required to perform an "impossible job," forcing him to resign.

Both men, according to charges, refused to sign a company union agreement submitted by their employer. The June 22 hearing will be held at 10 a. m. in the board room of the U. S. Tariff Commission.

David Kaplan, of the International Association of Machinists, indicated yesterday that the Washington Automotive Trade Association would be made a party to the charges, as having allegedly conspired against collective bargaining among auto mechanics here.

Six Democrats Are Re-elected At Alexandria

3 Council Members Were Unopposed; 1,384 Votes Are Cast.

Six Democrat swere re-elected to the Alexandria town council yesterday as a total of of 1,384 votes were cast. Three of them were unopposed.

Charles Burgess, with 280 votes, retained his post in the sixth ward. His rival, R. E. Zimmerman, got 208 votes.

Unopposed were L. C. Barley, in the second ward, with 100 votes; Charles M. Stump, in the third ward, with 58 votes, and Henry O'B. Cooper, in the firth ward, with 65 votes.

The grand jury termed the Pair-of-Dice Inn, located on Rover road near Four-Mile Run, a "public nuisance" in a report submitted to the corporation court Monday. The report was referred to Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan.

Lotus Offers 7 Acts, Dancing As Attractions

By Chanticleer.

There's no letup at the Lotus restaurant, warm weather or no. This week's bill includes seven acts with Bill Strickland and his Capitolians on tap for the dancers. Heading the floor show are the Mia Miles quartet, in adigo and acrobatic numbers, and the Miller Sisters, just back from South America. Margie Green is present again this week and the bill is topped with Ross and Karry. Al Elmer Norton is vacationing, which means that the old maestro, William Strickland himself, comes out from behind those big drums to introduce theartists. But he uses a special mike so that he can stay with the band.

If there's any doubt about the Tom Collins being the people's choice for this time of year, just ask Barmixers Skelton and Webb, at the Mayfair Cafe of All Nations. They prepare as many Tom Collins as all other brewaters put together.

They're still enlarging that garden at Chevy Chase Lake where food is in competition with Lee Fields and his orchestra for the favor of the patrons. Every time a full moon comes up, that garden has to be enlarged!

The S. P. C. M. paid a call at the Dude Ranch this last week and now things are different. The S. P. C. M. is the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Musicians! They just will have their little joke at the Ranch. It seems that Milt Barrett has had to enlarge his band shell once again inasmuch as 15 men were a little cramped as 'twas.

Add spots where the folks are giving the help a run for their money: the Shoreham Terrace cocktail lounge. Grand view from the lounge—red rambler roses, climbing vines and the beauties of the park. Dancing, too.

Josephine (the same chimpanzee mascot at the Maryland Club Gardens) is becoming quite a girl-about-town. Josephine is now reigning over a special table in the garden and personally meets all the guests.

For outdoor dining and dancing include the Russian Roof in your nightly rounds. Music by the Swingcopators and Russian, French and American dinners.

Kitty Simons as added Hawaiian to her singing repertoire. That, of course, has been in the offing for some time, what with Kitty singing nightly with the Paradise Islanders there at the Ambassador's Hi-Hat room.

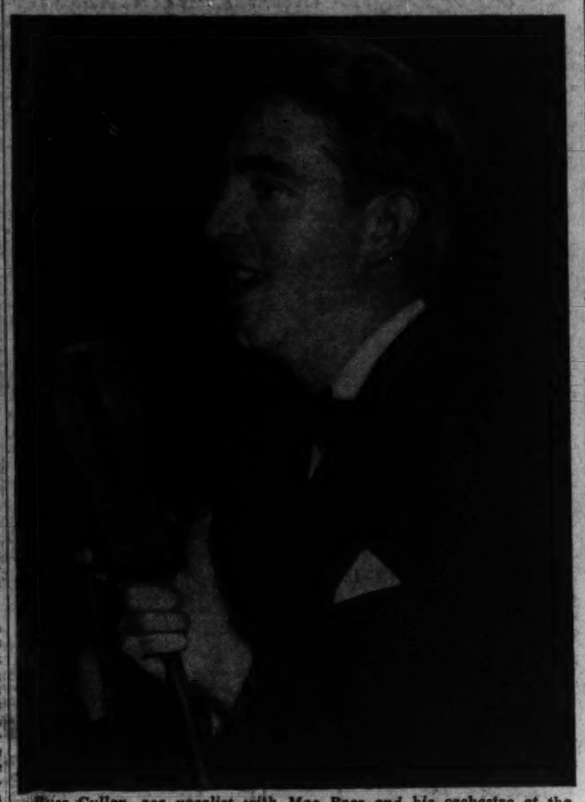
Every once in awhile some one pipes up with the question: does so-andso really play the guitar (or banjo or bass fiddle) or is he just in the band for atmosphere and principally for his singing? It so happens that Marty Rubin, up in the clouds on the Powhatan Roof, really plays the bull fiddle. But its Mr. Rubin's vocalizing tat captivates the customers first and foremost.

Don't overlook the Hamilton's Rainbow Room in your nightly perambulatings. Moe Baer and his orchestra for your dancing. Air-cooled and the summer season is on full blast.

At the Rainbow Room



Russ Cullen, ace vocalist with Moe Baer and his orchestra at the Hamilton Rainbow room, is caught in a candid pose before the band mike.

On the Air Today

The gentlemen who exploit Phillips Lord in a publicity way have sent this desk a few paragraphs of Lord's opinions on the general subject of "radio will try anything once." They add for good measure that he is the producer of "Gang Busters" and "Three Minute Thrills."

"Since radio began," opines Lord, "those incharge of the stations, and later, networks, have gambled with new ideas. Witness the various types of programs offered to listeners over a period of years. Tap dancing, the sound of Niagara Falls, riots in foreign countries, famous trials, the sound of crackling flames in a big Chicago fire, strange noises of haunted houses and many other novelties. The alertness and enthusiasm of everyone connected with radio augurs well for its future."

Lord also includes the agencies which produce programs for commercial sponsors in his sweeping commendation for the broadcast industry which "will try anything once," and right there is where I am inclined to voice a bit of disagreement.

Granted there are numerous innovations appearing from year to year on the air, I could never quite bring myself to say that radio tries anything once—in a commercial way. Yes, we've had everything from the Chicago Stockyard fire of three or four years ago to the arrival of the Queen Mary last month. But those are strictly news or feature broadcasts planned and executed by the networks as sustaining features.

On the other hand, let Mary Jones or Tom Smith (or even a well-established figure such as Phil Lord) swing into the office of an agency charged with producing programs for a commercial account and lay an entirely new and novel program idea on the table—one that fails to fall under the standardized classifications of programs established on the air, and he is invariably greeted with: "But this is entirely too different, too untried, for us to risk our client's money. We're going to stick to the program ideas already proven!"

New York snickered when Maj. Bowes began an amateur hour on the network. Highly paid executives in charge of commercial program production for commercial accounts waited gleefully for the hour to flop. Just as they were summoning up a faint and sad final smile at the end of the major's eminently successful first half-year on the air, along came Belcher and Johnson with their "Vox Pop"—and the commercial gentlemen seized on that innovation as an object of tongue-in-cheek chuckling.

Belcher and Johnson are nearing the close of their first year on the network. And many "wise guys" in the radio industry are now opening up their minds to new ideas. But not since the beginning of commercial radio, as Mr. Lord would have us believe.

One of the healthiest indications that the industry is in truth, shaking off inhibitions and experimenting with the untried is the try-out of WJSV's "Professor Quiz," a Saturday night local production which has taken so well that it seems destined to network presentation before long.

If the sponsors of that show had been in the traditional frame of mind as respects new ideas as has been the rule for a long period in air production, their Washington effort would have been another girl-and-boy singing duo, air serial of "Gertie and Joe" or band and soloist.

By the United Press.

A former Harvard instructor yesterday traced for the Communication Commission's investigation of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. evidence, he said, showed a link between the utility and its subsidiaries and "a large part of the total corporate ewalth of the United States."

He was Dr. N. R. Danielian, who, under questioning of Samuel Becker, special counsel for the investigation, said primary consideration of the company in selecting directors was "not familiarity with the problems of the telephone industry, but men who boast wide interests" in other industries.

Danielian contended directors were selected as a "channel of spreading good will."

Summarizing a study of membership in Chambers of Commerce Boards of Trade, Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and similar clubs, the witness said 35 telephone corporations had spent $4,838,038 for "dues and contributions" in the last ten years.

Danielian said "almost four million dollars" of this had been charged to various operating expenses."

"It appears," he testified, "that the telephone subscriber has paid the major part of these dues and contributions."

Danielian testified this expenditure was a fixed "policy" to open new avenues of "propagating" the Bell System point of view, particularly with respect to rate cases and litigation. Another series of charts introduced purported to show that directors and officers were on important councils of 69 universities and colleges.

Danielian said ten telephone officers or directors had important places at Harvard. He said 22 of the educational institutions had two or more of the telephone directors as officials of their controlling bodies.

He said also that 23 officers and directors of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. also were officers or directors in other corporations having assets aggregating over $30,000,000,000.

The Federal Diary

By Betty Read.

"Diplomas," the popular name among Government employes for the official papers signed by the President for advance in rank, will come through shortly for three members of the Patent Office.

The new job for Floyd J. Porter, of New York, who was recently appointed chief examiner of the United States Patent Office and a member of the Board of Appeals, will make him one of the ranking me nin the service, an eminence he has reached by advancing step by step through the ranks during his 30 years service. His most recent position was examiner-in-chief of Division 56, dealing with patents in the chemical and electro-chemical field. The other advancements are to assistant commissioners for Justin W. Macklin, of Cleveland, and Henry Van Arsdale, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Macklin succeeds Richord Spencer, who resigned in February to practice law in Chicago. Van Arsdale takes the place left vacant through the death of Byran M. Battey in April. Porter's place was formerly filled by Frank C. Skinner, who retired in March, 1933.

Porter keeps a voting residence ni Ithica, N. Y., his home town, where he attended Cornell University, graduating in 1905. Later he studied law, so he would know all the intricacies of his job from the legal view point, at George Washington University and the National Law School.

He claims two professions—law and chemistry—and as an attorney is a member of the District Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals.

"Time was when as chemist or scientist we could define most of the things that came to us for patents," he said, "but today, with the remarkable advances of science, there is a positive definition for almost nothing. An element was the old stand by in chemistry as something that could not be further divided.

"Today, we have many patents based on the theory of dividing an element."

The oath of office for the new appointees will be administered by Commissioner Conway P. Coe some time next week.

Underwood & Underwood.

FLOYD J. PORTER.

The Agriculture Department shares the distinction with the Navy Department of being the only two Government departments to take up the idea of providing model housing for their employes. The rent and housing committee of the Welfare Association of the Agricultural Department had found homes for 3,000 of its people, but it has a great scheme in mind which has not even reached the stage weher it can be put on paper. It is still in the committee - discussion - stage, but Dr. Frederick Howe, head of the project, says the plans are definite for the private construction of a large apartment house within easy access of the department, to be insured by FHA.

"The idea hardly can be called a well formulated plan as yet," said Dr. Howe, "for it has not reached the stage where we know what the apartments will cost or where they will be.

"But we have had numerous conferences on the matter and are definitely pledged to go through with the idea. We want to use our combined resources in this buying venture so as to provide reasonable living quarters."

Dr. Howe said the apartments would not be for those of the department exclusively, but employes would be given preference over other Government employes or interested outsiders.

The Navy Department, he said, has a somewhat similar scheme.

Civil Service Examinations.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced that it will accept applications not later than the closing date mentioned in each case for the following positions:

Assistant petroleum engineer, $2,600 a year, Geological Survey. Closing date, June 22.

Teacher in community school (primary, intermediate, special or opportunity, or one-teacher day), $1,620 a year, Indian Field Service (including Alaska). Closing date, June 29.

Statistical analysts (transportation), various grades, $3,200 to $5,600 a year, Bureau of Statistics, and Bureau of Motor Carriers, Interstate Commerce Commission. Closing date, June 22.

Assistant superintendent of brush factory, $3,200 a year; foreman of brush factory, $2,600 a year, United States Penitentiary Annex, Fort Leavenworth, Kans. Closing date, June 29.

For the first time in 37 years, D. S. Shook, 3710 Chesapeake street northwest, didn't have to worry about reporting for work yesterday. Shook retired from a position in the office of the chief inspector of the Postoffice Department in his seventieth birthday anniversary Monday.

He started working for the Government as a stenographer in the chief inspector's division, coming to Washington from Topeka, Kans., in 1899.

Drought Brings Threat of High Potato Prices

Department of Agriculture Predicts Shortage Will Continue for Month.

By the Associated Press.

The Nation's housewives may find potato-prices climbing for the next month or more if the drought in potato-growing States of the Southeast continues.

The crop estimate Division of the Agriculture Department predicted yesterday that the present potato shortage would continue through the middle of July. Weather conditions will determine whether the shortage will extend beyond that period, although officials believe later crops will meet the demand in August and September.

The carryover this year of late potatoes was not heavy, Maine reporting only about 100 carloads. The drought struck after the marketing of the first early crpos of Florida and south Texas. Lack of rain has decreased production of subsequent crops.

Officials said that the South Carolina crop is larger than last year, but "far below normal." The North Carolina crop, which has just started to market, is 26 per cent below last year's forecast and "may drop to 3 per cent," the department said. Virginia's crop is expected to be shorter than last year.

drought in Maryland, officials said

Although there has been a they believed it would not greatly curtail production, because cold weather made planting late this year.

Meanwhile, "fairly good" propects for rain within the next 36 hours in the eastern drought States were reported last night by weather bureau officials.

Surveying the States, held in the grip of the dry spell, Joseph B. Kincer, agricultural weather expert, said he did not consider the situation critical at present because this was the "usual drought season."

The Two-Way Three Bid.

[Continuing yesterday's article.]

Having opened the bidding with a a suit bid of three, and partner having responded according to the specifications given in yesterday's article, it now is incumbent on you to "come out of the bushes" and disclose the type of hand you really have! If your hand was of this nature:

Spades, king queen jack 9 8 6 5; hearts, 7; diamonds, king 4; clubs, 8 4 2 you now will show it by a simple rebid which shrieks "sign off." Sometimes the three bidder will sign off even though he holds a solid suit. This occurs, for example, when the limits of strength announced by partner's three no trump response puts a slam out of the question. But, for whatever reason it is given, the simple rebid is almost forcing sign-off.

With seven or eight winners and a ready-made suit, a hand such as:

Spades, ace king queen 8 5 4 2; hearts, king 3; diamonds, 8 4; clubs, 10 2, the opening bidder, as a rule, should pass to a three no trump response. Unbalance the distribution, however, in this way:

Spades, ace king queen 8 5 4 2; hearts, king 6 5 3; diamonds, 4; clubs, 2, and now the spade suit should be rebid.

If the partner's three no trump bid is doubled by the right hand opponent of the opening bidder, with a weak three bid, the double must be taken out; with a strong three bid, the double usually should be passed to indicate to partner that the hand contains a ready-made suit or one and one-half to two honor tricks outside the bid suit. Partner then can leave in the double or take it out, at his discretion.

When the response to a minor suit three bid has been three of a major the opening hand may not pass. He must:

1. Sign off with a weak hand and no support for partner (rebid own suit).

2. Bid three no trump, with no support for partner but a ready-made suit, with or without side strength. With side strength the suit may be almost solid.

3. Raise with a distributional fit with a partner's suit bid.

4. With a strong hand make an asking bid (see note below).

5. Bid a conventional four no trump when one or two aces in partner's hand would offer slam possibilities.

Note: The bid of a new suit by the opening three bidder [an asking bid] was made. The only exception to this is when the opening bidder "sets" the trump suit by an immediate raise of partner's suit.

Thus it will be seen that the true nature of the opening bid becomes apparent only on the three bidder's rebid.

Here is an illustration of how a strong three bid works out.

Today's Question.

Question: Must an opening bid of no trump be kept open by the partner?

Answer: No. It is not a forcing bid.

Artist Paints Personalities In Color Terms

By Dudley Harmon.

Members of the Diplomatic Corps have been surprised this week at seeing themselves through the eyes of a young Danish artist who visualizes their personalities in terms of color, and paints them in dazzling reds, blues, yellows and greens. The artist—Miss Elizabeth Newhaus, of Copenhagen—has pictured several ministers in a variety of shades during the few days she has been in the Capital and hopes to do Mrs. Roosevelt, Senator Borah and other celebrities before she leaves.

Her first portrait here was of Mr. Otto Wadsted, Minister of Denmark, whom she painted a brick red, as he is "so healthy and kind looking," she explained. She portrayed the Greek Minister, Mr. Demetrios Sicilianos, with yellow eyebrows and apple green features, because he impressed her as youthful in spirit and intellectual. Because, in her eyes, the Austrian Minister, Mr. Edgar Prochnik, is "tall and ghostlike," she painted him yellow.

Has a Color Category.

Immediately on making an acquaintance, Miss Neuhaus places him in her color category. She does not mix her colors, but each shade has a different meaning. For example, if Mr. Sicilianos had been "cold and shrewd" instead of "youthful and intellectual," Miss Neuhaus would have made his picture nile green rather than a delicate shade of apple green, she said. Miss Nuehaus paints most people yellow, which means—except in the case of Mr. Prochnik—"just average, nothing out of the ordinary."

Although she has no t yet made the acquaintance of the First Lady, Miss Neuhaus would like to paint her portrait in white, for "nobility and unselfishness." Senator Borah, whom she has met, she intends to paint a dark blue, "profound like the ocean."

Half Hour All She Needs.

Half an hour is all Miss Neuhaus allows herself for her portraits, and she does away with all "nonessentials," such as wrinkles and scars, which she believes not only ugly, but unnecessary in portraying perpersonality.

Other members of the Diplomatic Corps whom the young artist has met, and catalogued according to their place in her color scheme are Mme. Wadsted, South American wife of the Danish Minister, whom Miss Neuhaus would paint a bright orange, "because she is vivacious and temperamental, and Mr. Claude de Boisanger, Second Secretary of the French Embassy, whom Miss Neuhaus thinks is enigmatic and efficient and therefore like to paint a Veronese green.

Miss Neuhaus has studied in Paris for several years. Immediately before coming to Washintgon she was court painter in Greece, and among her subjects in Athens was Crown Prince Paul, brother of the King.

Son of Pinchot Weds Saturday

To Many Sarah Richards; Former Governor Will Be Best Man.

Mr. Gifford Pinchot, former Governor of Pennsylvania, will be best man at the wedding of his son, Mr. Gifford Bryce Pinchot, and Miss Sarah Huntington Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Huntington Richards, of Wilton, Conn., which will take place on Saturday in St. Matthew's Church in Wilton, the Rev. James Howard Jacobson officiating. A reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Marianne Richards, cousin of Miss Richards, will be maid of honor, and Antoinette Pinchot, a cousin of the bridegroom, will be flower girl. The bridesmaids will be the Misses Margaret Preston, Nina Moore, Helene Thomson and Kate Vandermuhl, of New York; Louise MacMillan, of Boston, and Mrs. Charles Cummings, of Cambridge, Mass.

Miss Linton Wed To J. Earl Kadan

Bride Given in Marriage by Mr. Temple Seay.

Miss Rose Adele Linton, daughter of Mrs. Amelia Catherine Linton, was married at 7:30 last evening to Mr. J. Earl Kadan, son of Mrs. Mary Sima Kadan, of Takoma Park and Baltimore. The wedding took place at the home of the bride, the Rev. Father Hoffman officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. Temple Seay, wore a gown of white satin with a lace coat and train nad a tulle veil held in place with a head piece of satin seed pearls and orange blossoms.

The maid of honor, Miss Margaret Mary Wander, of New York, her cousin, wore a gown of pink lace with a picture hat to match. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and delphinium. Miss Louise Huhn, the bridesmaid, wor a gown of blue lace with haf and gloves to match and carried talisman roses and delphinium. The flower girl, Miss Mary Lindsay, another cousin of the bride, wore a frock of yellow net with satin inserts and a head band of natural flowers.

Mr. Charles Henry Cantwell, of Wilmington, Del., was best man, and Dr. Ferdinand Emil Kadan, of Baltimore, was the only usher.

Austrian Minister and Danish Portrait Artist

Harris & Ewing.

Mr. Edgar Prochnick, Minister of Austria, photographed with Miss Elizabeth Neuhaus, of Copenhagen, modern art exponent, who sees her subjects in terms of colors. She has painted Mr. Prochnick in yellow, and plans to do others prominent in official and diplomatic circles in the shades she thinks best express their personalities.

Comeback Staged By Sailor Hats

Paris Reports Great Success With This Shape.

Paris (U.P.).—The sailor, more than any other hat shape, has had particular success this season.

It is seen in both rough and smooth straws, also in failles, taffetas and soft doeskin. Many sailors are trimmed in front with stiff veils which broaden the brim and shade the eyes. Others have simple ribbon bands tied in bows in front while feather and flower trimming is also used.

The beret is flatter, smaller and more shallow than it was last season. It has the appearance of a small round, squared or sometimes scalloped disc posed at an angle on a shallow skull cap. It tilts forward, sometimes straight over the forehead and sometimes at an angle over the right eye.

Both the heightened and the flat crown are shown. The high crown tapers to a flattened top and looks in shape like an inverted flower pot. Other high crowns are folded over in front like the flap of an envelope.

Miss Stone Becomes Bride.

Miss Marian Kay Stone, daughter of Mrs. Agnes Kay Stone, was married Monday to Mr. Lewis William Fetterly, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Fetterly, of Eureka, Mont., in St. Mary's Chapel of Washington Cathedral. After a wedding trip through New England and the Great Lakes, Mr. and Mrs. Fetterly will reside in Eureka.

THE WASHINGTON SCENE

Those who loved the simple beauty of Lafayette Park and cherished it for its historic trees and bushes are bemoaning the fate that has befallen it in becoming a public works project to be laid out in neat geometrical patterns. No doubt, when the project is finished, it will be a wonder of landscaping. The labors of those in charge of the public works project left no place for the children who had made Lafayette Park their playground. But the famous pigeons remained. They found the workmen quite as generous in the matter of peanuts as the children had been and Lafayette Park remained home to them.

The Wishing Tree Is Gone.

By the way, it always amuses Washingtonians when strangers within our gates solemnly select some tree as the famous wishing tree in Lafayette Park. Alas, the wishing tree was struck by lightning some years ago. It once was the mecca of lovers, statesmen, and all who sought favor from fortune who fondly imagined that by touching its leaves they could make their wishes come true.

The deluded nowadays touch the leaves of trees they mistake for the wishing tree and go off just as happy and contented, certain that from the strange potent power of the tree their dreams will come true.

There is an ancient tree in Capitol Park that still throws its shadows and sways in the winds within sight and sound of the lawmakers, that was planted by George Washington as part of the ceremonies in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the Capitol. Washington officiated as a ranking Mason and the trowel he used in the ceremony is in the custody of a local Masonic lodge. The tree is now more than 100 feet high.

George Washington was so proud of the tree, he came frequently to check on its progress. In those days, of course, it was small and did not offer much shade to anyone.

Many other trees on Capitol Hill have special significance. Few know that the first white birch planted in honor of a mother, a custom now prevalent in many cities and States, flourishes on the Capitol Grounds. With true Irish humor, James Maher planted the barbecue trees on Capitol Hill during the first Harrison Administration, so the Whigs and the Democrats could have their own particular places for their barbecues, a high rite of politicians then, but now in the discard in favor of pie counters with the gentry of the ballot boxes.

In every public square, park and along the roadways of the town such sentinels of American history are to be found.

New Cycle Craze Recalls Event.

Now bicycling is returning and all the world is awheel again, it is amazing to recall how Mrs. David Jayne Hill, when her husband was American Ambassador to Berlin, created a diplomatic tempest in a teapot by cycling through the streets of the German capital to the market and even bringing back her supplies on the wheel.

Mrs. Hill kept right on riding until her husband's post was changed and the Berlin fraus no doubt kept whispering about it, as ladies will the world around.

Now the Mondell girls—Dorothy and Marjorie—the former the Mrs. Mondell Gregg and the latter the Mrs. Alfonsa Landa, daughters of former Representative and Mrs. Frank Mondell, are leading the way to the "Skeet Club" out Bradley Hills way. It is a popular gathering place and among the enthusiasts are former Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis and his bride, the former Mrs. Charles Sabin, of New York, who won quite a reputation for herself as a skeet shooter on Long Island. Even Secretary Ickes takes time out from his verbal battles with Mr. Harry Hopkins to try his skill now and then, and Senator Joseph Guffey and his sisters frequently visit the club for a little exercise.

J. E. Eckloff, Miss Dagneaux Are Married

The wedding of Miss Isabelle A. Dagneaux, daughter of Mrs. C. Rene Dagneaux, and Mr. James E. Eckloff, of Washington, took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride in Chevy Chase.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her godfather, Dr. Rene Samson, of McLean, Va., wore a gown of white satin made with a draped cowl neckline and a tulle veil edged with a border of rare old Valenciennes lace. She carried a prayer book which her mother had carried at her wedding.

Miss Clementine Dagneaux, sister o fte bride, was maid of honor, and wore a frock of lellow mousseline do soie and a wreath of yellow forget-me-nots in her haid. Mrs. William A. Carr, sister of the bridegroom and matron of honor, wore a gown similar to that of Miss Dagneaux of orchid mousseline de soie, and orchid forget-me-nots in her haid. Both carried bouquets of flowers in pastel shades.

Mr. Peyton B. Fletcher, jr., served as his cousin's best man. The ushers were Mr. Francis J. Eckloff, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Rene F. Dagneaus, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. After a honeymoon trip in the North, Mr. and Mrs. Eckloff will reside in Washington.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

'What Is the Matter With Washington's Girls?' Asks Married Woman Who Finds All Men Charming.

If "Divorcee" has found unmarried men in Washington amoral, wickedly amorous and generally up to no good, such has not been the experience of a happily married woman who writes today to say she has many beaux—with her husband's understanding consent—all of whom treat her with the greatest respect and deference. "What is the matter with Washington girls?" she wants to know. Other correspondents whose communications are likewise printed today take sides with and against "Divorcee." M. H.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: What is the matter with Washington girls? . . . To begin with, I am married and have been for 15 years. I have a 13-year-old son and we have a happy family life. Our home is comfortable and we keep one servant. Our income is sufficient to provide a car, good clothing and pleasant, worthwhile living.

We came here two years ago from the West and knew very few people. Without making much effort we have made lovely friends. I never rush anyone, but I am hospitable. This, however, is the thing I cannot understand: on every hand one hears of the lonely, wretched girls and desolate women here. Why ARE they in this position?

* * * *

I meet men, charming men, too, on all sides. Soon they are my friends, calling me, yes, even pursuing me. I do not drink and I am 35. I am quite presentable and amiable, but I do not have a conversational "line." These men, many of whom are my husband's friends, frankly admit they like my company better than that of younger, prettier girls. I have tried arranging dates for them, but nothing ever comes of it. They always return to my side and say, "Oh, why can't they be like you?"

* * * *

I am certain that some of these men would like to be married and could afford to be, but somehow they are skeptical about Washington girls. It really is too bad and I am sorry. The men all seem to feel the girls use them as "a means to an end." What is the reason? These men show me the greatest respect and are willing to take my young son along for dinner and the theater. When my husband is out of the city I often go dancing and tell him about it later. We have a perfect understanding and he trusts me implicitly. But that's not the point.

* * * *

Bride 'Fighting Mad.'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Recent letters published in your column make me fighting mad. I am a bride and not a youngster. I had a very happy social life for eight years and had many a date with different young men and never had one make an improper advance or suggestion. And I know it's all in the way you live. I don't smoke, drink or indulge in risque stories and do go to church. Tell "Anonymous" and others who feel about women as he does to go to church and meet the right people for a change. He won't find uplifting associates in a barroom. I don't know any girls who aren't decent, and I know quite a few. If he goes to the right places and with the right people he will meet some nice girls. But first he will have to give up his own bad habits. Yours, JEAN.

These Disgusting Men.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I can certainly vouch for the truth of "Divorcee's" statements about men. I have had the same disillusioning experiences with men older than 38 years. I have been a widow several years and neither smoke nor drink, and I wonder if there is a decent unmarried man in Washington between the ages of 50 and 55. If he is, I would like to meet him.

* * * *

It is disgusting to go with a man and have him offer you whisky and make improper advances. I believe if our women would let tobacco and whiskey alone the men would have more respect for womankind in general. WIDOW.

White Shoes Appear in Many New Summer Guises

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

FOR AN interesting costume variation, try wearing white shoes and accessories with dark or bright colors. It is strikingly smart and a delightful change from tints as an accessory choice.

White shoes with the popular bright prints on a light ground are distinctive and decidedly summerish. To complete the cool picture, add a white handbag and white gloves. Hosiery in the warm copperglow shade are effective when wearing white shoes and brilliant prints. Such an ensemble is appropriate for business, late afternoon social affairs and informal dining in town or country.

Linen suits and tailored frocks, either white or colored, are given a cool, crisp appearance by the addition of white accessories. And, to keep the costume from looking too severe, the pump-type of white shoe is a splendid selection. The burnt nude, or toloa shade, of hosiery is adaptable to simple street costumes in this classification—neutral in tone, but possessing the wanted effect of sun-tan.

For a decided touch of summer to pastels, both dressy suits and frocks, the white shoe is indispensable. When topped by a wide-brimmed white hat, bag and gloves, one has the illusion of coolness even if the thermometer is soaring.

Any of the hose shades named would be harmonious with the pastel-white ensemble, but there are also British tan, suntouch, cassandra and pastel tints available.

Hosiery in vivid colors such as poppy red, green and bright blue are being worn by some smart women, with both bright prints and all-white ensembles. If you go in for the exotic, here is your chance!

Wants Heroic Roles.

Hollywood (U.P.).—Claudette Colbert has made a rule—and has told her studio officials that she wants them to respect it—that she will play hereafter only heroic or historically important women.

She'd like to do Joan of Arc, or some of the more famous headstrong queens, or characters of the caliber of Florence Nightingale.

Mid-Calf Length.

It's 'Cunarder Red' Now.

A new color "Cunarder Red" has appeared in fashion circles. It was inspired by the smokestacks of the Queen Mary. It is a brilliant yellow-red and is particularly effective when worn with white. Many white hats are showing bands in "Cunarder Red."

Velvet Bath Suits.

Regarded as Most Dreaded Carriers of Disease.

Common houseflies in their wanderings may fly five or more miles in a single day, according to tests reported by the American Institute of Sanitation, New York City. A swarm of flies were marked with dye and released. On the following day some were captured as far as six miles away from their starting point.

"Because of the busy, active life that flies lead, they are regarded as one of the most important carriers of disease which man has to fight," comments the institute. "The number of bacteria that can be carried on the hairy legs and body of a fly is surprising. Attracted to unsanitary places where germs abound, they leave a track of germs wherever they walk. The average fly carries about one million germs, but loads of 20, 30 or 40 million germs on a single fly are not uncommon.

"Despite the abundance and mobility of flies, a home properly screened and where the modern spray insecticides are used need have little fear of the pests. Nowadays the greatest danger of the spread of disease from flies is found in restaurants and other food establishments where sanitary standards may not prevail."

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR.

DR. PIERCE was glad of the presence of Sargent in the waiting room. He motioned him to sit down, then he sat down himself, opposite Brenda. This was a terrible thing he had to do. He had done it before, but it had never seemed to him so terrible as this time, even that first time when he was a raw boy just turned from interne to a doctor was not so bad as this.

"She's better now," Brenda said at last, for after he had sat down Pierce could not speak. His mouth was open but words would not come.

It was a statement Brenda uttered, complete. "She's better now."

The words echoed in Pierce's mind. "She's better now."

"She'll be out of pain in a little while, my dear. She'll be better," he said quietly, and his voice was amazingly tender.

"Her mind," he went on, "has so much courage, Brenda, but her body hasn't. Her body has no courage at all. It's her mind that is keeping her alive now. We thought, Dr. Koenig and I, that the courage of her mind would equalize the courage of her body, lift above it, but it hasn't, and the courage of her mind is going. Her mind is telling her heart to beat and beat and beat, and her heart is trying to obey, but it is finding it harder and harder. Do you know what I'm saying?"

"I know what you're saying. You're telling me that Lally can't walk——"

"I'm telling you, my child, that Lally is failing. That it's only a question of an hour or so. The change has come, and it isn't the change we wanted. It's the other change, the change we didn't want. Lally's poor heart can't make it. It's weakening. Every minute her life is ebbing away."

Brenda looked at him. He knew she understood, for he read the knowledge in her eyes. First the blackness of shock, then the flash of knowledge.

Rather Die.

"I think," she said simply, a quiver in her voice, "that if she couldn't walk, she would rather die. I think so. It must be that she knows she wouldn't walk. It must be. Her hope is gone——"

They sat in silence for some time after that. Dr. Pierce holding Brenda's hand, Val back of her, watching her. Finally, Dr. Pierce let her hand go gently and got to his feet. Branda rose, too, and Val. Together they went back to the door of 402. Pierce opened the door quietly, and stood aside. "The nurse will stay, until the end. Would you rather go in alone? Or have me with you?

"I'd like to have Val with me." Lally would want Val, she would know somehow that he was here with her, at last. And it might be that she would open her eyes again, and see him before she went—wherever she was going. She might hear his voice. . . .

Brenda saw hardly any change in her sister. Her face was still flushed and her lips quite crimson. There was a little smile curling on them. It seemed as if she were about to talk.

Lally, such a happy child, always stumbling, so eager she was to walk, to run, to play. Lally so impetuous, so reckless. Lally with her bruised fingers, her burned fingers. Lally racing breathlessly here, there, everywhere. Mother saying always, "Lally, be careful. You mustn't always be in a hurry. Lally take your time . . ."

"Lally, take your time. . . ."

Picture after picture came to Brenda as she stood there. One of them lingered longer than the others. Lally lying so still, her face as white as her white dress on the landing of the stairs at the house on Fifth street. Roger picking up the still body and carrying it upstairs. Brenda flying to the telephone to call the doctor. "I tripped," Lally had said when she was conscious. "I tripped, mummy. My feet flew out from under me."

There were other words, too, which Brenda heard. Recent words. The words Lally had spoken so passionately on the porch of the Corwin. That other picture, Lally so tense, her voice shaking the night with its violence, "I must walk!"

Yesterday—was it only yesterday—it couldn't be. Yesterday was so far away already. Yesterday Lally whispering, and not knowing that she was whispering, not even knowing that she was talking, "I love you."

First father. Brenda was so young when he died, Lally, too. Lally saying, "Will he come back, mummy?"

Then mother, but Lally was old enough then to know that she wouldn't come back. She didn't ask that question. Then Roger, and now Lally. The child, Lally, for Brenda could never get over the feeling of Lally's eternal childhood. The child, Lally, who had only grown to womanhood and maturity these past few months. Happy months for Lally, probably the happiest she had ever known. Happy with hope, and love . . .

"He's here, darling," she whispered desperately, within herself. "He's here, and he's with you. He's standing right beside you. You could see him if you' d open your eyes for a second. Only a second, dear——"

Again, as had happened earlier in the evening when Van was in the room for those few minutes, Lally's eyelids fluttered. She had heard. She was trying to look, to see—but she couldn't.

Gone. Gone. There were arms around Brenda, strong arms that she knew belonged to Val. They were holding her tightly, but she didn't get any strength from them. They were leading her out of the room and into the hall, but she was hardly conscious of them. They might have been Dr. Pierce's arms, anyone's—a stranger's.

Val was talking to her, but she didn't hear him, she only heard the quiet voice of the nurse saying, "She's gone now, Miss Fayre." And her mind was repeating and repeating, "gone, gone——"

The courage, the clear perspective she had had while she was standing at Lally's bedside, was gone.

"I'll take her home with me," Dr. Pierce said to Sargent, but she didn't even hear that.

They did take her to Dr. Pierce's house, and Mrs. Pierce put her to bed.

It was dawn before Val got home to his own flat in the Corwin. For the first time in weeks, Mazie seemed present in the flat.

"I held her in my arms, Mazie," he said aloud as he flung himself wearily on the couch. "I held her in my arms, and I kissed her tears away, but her grief was so great that she didn't know, and she didn't care. I was only someone she could cling to. It was so good to have her in my arms, even if she didn't care——"

Coconut Cakes Top Prize List In Post Contest

Coconut Salad, Fritters and Rice Custard Also Win Honors.

COCONUT, usually associated with desserts and garnishes, has, according to the numerous recipes submitted to The Post recipe contest of the past week, assumed many other roles in the drama of cooking. Everything from pancakes, souffles, salads, main dishes, tropical gingerbreads, ice cream and frozen desserts, candy, cakes and cookies, scrapple, sandwiches, pies and odd native concoctions were included in favorite coconut recipes submitted.

Miss Rebecca Merriam, of 5009 Fourteenth street northwest, won first price of $5 for her coconut pancakes with brandy hard sauce; Mrs. James Foster, Alexandria, Va., the second prize of $3 for coconut salad; Mrs. W. S. Gavan, of Baltimore, Md., Misss Emily Barrett, of 719 Third street northeast, and Mrs. W. W. Coblentz, of 2737 Macomb street northwest, won the three remaining prizes of $1 each for their recipes for coconut, rice custard, coconut orange fritters and coconut pudding, respectively.

Coconut Pancakes.

2 eggs, well beaten
6 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ cup cocoanut, freshly ground
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
2 tablespoons butter
Pinch of salt
Powdered sugar

Mix all ingredients together except the powdered sugar, reserving 1 tablespoon butter. Heat skillet, put in butter and melt, then pour in batter, pancake fashion, about one-quarter inch in depth. Cook until a golden brown on each side. Remove from fire, roll, dust with powdered sugar and serve with brandy hard sauce.

Brandy Hard Sauce.

½ cup butter
1 cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons brandy or sherry

Beat butter to a cream, add the sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add vanilla slowly, then the brandy. Place in refrigerator to harden.

Coconut Salad.

2 cups cabbage, finely shredded
1 cup grated pineapple, drained
¾ cup mayonnaise
Dash of salt
3 tablespoons of sugar
1 cup coconut (canned)

Crisp cabbage by allowing it to stand in ice water. Drain and dry thoroughly. Toss lightly together with remaining ingredients. Serve on crisp lettuce.

Coconut-Rice Custard.

1 cup rice
½ cup butter
1 pint milk
3 eggs
1 cup coconut (ground or shredded)
½ cup raisins or currants
Sugar
Vanilla

Boil rice and drain or use left-over cooked rice. Add milk and butter, then eggs slightly beaten. Sweeten and flavor to taste and put in deep, buttered casserole and bake in moderate oven (325 degrees) until slightly brown. Stir in raisins or currants and coconut. Sprinkle some of the coconut on top. Replace in oven and continue baking until coconut is a golden brown.

Coconut-Orange Fritters.

Sift 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and a pinch of salt together. Add 1 betaen egg, ¼ cup orange juice, 1-3 cup milk and ½ cup coconut. Blend all ingredients together thoroughly and fry by spoonfuls in deep fat. A nice luncheon dish!

Coconut Pudding—An Old Indjan Recipe.

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
Vanilla
¼ cup water

After grating the cocoanut, press out the juice, a little at a time. Put aside 3 teaspoonfuls of this juice. To the remainder of the coconut juice add a scant cup of sugar and ¼ cup water. Cook until sirupy, then pour in the grated coconut and stir in the beaten egg yolks. The beaten whites of the eggs are added last separately. Flavor to taste with vanilla (¼ to ½ teaspoonful). Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. When serving, pour a little of the reserved coconut juice over each individual portion.

White Linen and Lace Cloth Gives Cool Effect

Today's Health Talk

Chlorosis, or Green Sickness.

Years ago medical literature was filled with descriptions of what was termed "green sickness," which affected young women.

The symptoms given by the older writers included anemia, shortness of breath, fatigue, palpitation of the heart, dizziness, and lack of appetite. Mentally, these patients were irritable, exhibited periods of drowsiness, and complained of various aches and pains.

Today chlorosis has practically disappeared, at least in its aforetime distressing manifestations.

Sensible Diet Routs Disease.

The disapearance of the disease as it was formerly noted is probably due to a more sensible diet, more outdoor exercise, and more healthful and hygienic dress. There are fewer constricting bands and binders of various sorts.

Physicians today, however, encounter numerous mild cases of chlorosis, characterized by a reduction in the amount of red coloring matter in the blood. In a routine examination of schoolgirls between the ages of 16 and 22, one-quarter of the number may be found with a hemoglobin of 80 per cent.

In women about middle life there is found a type of anemia that closely resembles chlorosis. The features are pale and there is considerable loss of strength and vitality. In some, digestive disorders are quite prominent. There is no substantial reduction in the number of blood cells. On the other hand they are pale, so that in the aggregate they do not contain the normal amount of color. Examination of the stomach contents will show a marked reduction or even a total absence of free hydrochloric acid. The remedy is clear; namely, supplying iron to improve the hemoglobin and feeding hydrochloric acid with or after meals.

Need "Iron" Foods.

It is obvious from the above that growing girls merging into womanhood should receive a rather generous amount of iron-containing foods such as beef juice, parsley, fresh lima beans, oysters, liver and kidney. Add to this outdoor exercise and plenty of sleep and we may be reasonably sure that anemia will not develop.

No doubt years ago many cases of what would be diagnosed today as tuberculosis or some disease of the digestive tract were called green sickness. Every case of anemia should be the subject of a careful study by a competent physician.

Return to Femininity in Fashion Modes Presages Return of Dainty Boards With Lovely Clothes Beautifully Adorned With Fine Laces.

THE GRACIOUS art of dining is experiencing a charming revival in its appointments. With the return to femininity in the fashion mode, smart tables are following the same plan and wearing coverings of lovely materials, beautifully adorned with fine laces and intricate patterns in the designing.

The all-white cloth is again a favorite as a background for fine china, glistening glassware and shining silver. The newest interpretations in this realm are exquisite in workmanship and design; any fastidious hostess should be proud to own them. A number of noted designers have recently gone into the field of tablecloth designing, producing new and modern patterns as well as adaptations of rare old designs.

For summer a white cloth and cool-looking appointments can do much to give the effect of breeziness and coolness to the entire setting. And the ingenious woman can vary her color schemes with the same adroitness as she does her wardrobe. Varying the table centerpiece can also help to give the illusion of an entirely different decorative plan. And, with flowers and fruits now so abundant, it should not be difficult to plan distinctive settings for summer entertaining.

An all-white table is fine for summer-white cloth, china, clear crystal, white flowers and tapers. In this event, to prevent monotony, a bit of color should be introduced in the menu, by the way of garnishes, if preferred. Green and white is another cool-looking color theme, using a white background, china with green predominating in the pattern, white flowers and green tapers—or green fruit and white tapers.

The popularity of May wine or Dubonnet, so omnipresent in the world of fashion, can be transferred to chic tables; china bordered with wide bands of this luscious red tone is available in many attractive versions. Combined with all-white appointments, it could furnish the color contrast for a lovely and individual dinner setting.

White table coverings are not only lovely in themselves and enhance even the most pretentious table appointments and decorations, but are an excellent foil for all of the lovely tinted summer gowns of the feminine dinner guests. The smart hostess will "dress up" her table in white this summer, and if she is progressive will select at least one exquisite creation adorned with fine lace.

Unasked Guest Offers Problem For Hostesses

Informal Summer Parties Especially Likely to Be 'Crashed.'

By Margaret Wallace.

The problem of the uninvited guest is one that confronts many Washington hostesses at this time of the year. Because of the informality of many entertainments in the summer season many persons believe it is not necessary to wait for an invitation to attend a garden party or tea.

One hostess who entertained at a dinner party followed by a motion-picture show recently found to her surprise that although she had only invited 10 additional guests to the film showing at least 50 more were present. There was not enough seats and some of the dinner guests could not get into the room in which the picture was shown. The ten guests she had invited to see the picture had brought other persons with them.

It is never proper to invite another person to another person's house or enterainment without obtaining permission first.

An even more serious problem to Washington hostesses than the uninvited guest at entertainments is the uninvited house guest or the house guest who stays on after the expiration of the time uninvited. It is never proper for anyone to arrive at a person's house uninvited. It is not proper to telegraph just before leaving for Washington, giving the hostess no time to make excuses.

Sometimes the hostesses are at fault. Many of them have a habit of giving casual invitations. "Drop in for tea any afternoon," or "when you come to Washington come right to our house." But the wise guest will make sure of his welcome before he arrives. It is possible to telephone before "dropping in for tea" or to find out if it would be convenient to have a house guest.

Query—I have a suburban home. Two girl friends of my daughter often come out early in the morning to play tennis. I frequently invite them to luncheon, but when I do they stay until nearly dinner time. I like them to play tennis with my daughters and even to stay to luncheon, but I have my own friends in the afternoons and my daughters sometimes want to do other things than entertain these two girls. Would it be polite to hint to the girls that they are expected to leave after luncheon.

Answer—Yes. Do not hint. Simply say: "Will you stay until after luncheon? We have engagements for the afternoon."

Query—I have been invited to spend two weeks at the home of a friend in Virginia. My sister has not been invited. The place where I am to visit is a large one. My sister would like to motor me down there and stay overnight. Do you think she can do that without being invited by the hostess? It would be possible for my sistetr to return the same day.

Answer—No. It would be proper for you to write and explain that you would like your sister to motor you down there, and that she expects to return the same day. If the hostess wishes to she can ask your sister to remain over night.

Query—I was eating my lunch with a girl friend when my employer came in the cafe and sat down at our table. He said: "Will you young ladies be my guests at luncheon?" Of course, we said "yes." He paid for our luncheon. Was this proper?

Answer—Yes. He invited you to luncheon and you accepted.

Prizes Offered For the Best 5 Iced Drinks

FROSTED BEVERAGES are synonymous with summer and do much to make the torrid days bearable. And this is a reminder that The Post Recipe Contest for the five best iced beverage recipes continues throughout the week.

What elusive, tall, cool drink do you serve your family and guests? How do you prepare those unusual fruit juice concoctions that make your friends eager to stop in frequently for a chat on the porch or terrace? Have you discovered the secret of frosted beverage flavor by some unique addition to the usual ingredients?

Now is your chance to tell the world about these culinary secrets and at the same time win an award. For the best recipe received, The Post is giving a $5 prize, $3 for the second, and $1 for the next three. Send your recipe for frosted beverages to reach the office not later than Saturday morning, June 13.

Paris to Spring Tricks in Fashion

PARIS (U.P.).—Mainbocher's new collection has many new fashion tricks including short-skirted afternoon dresses with trains, beach dresses like schoolgirl pinafores and evening gowns with one cape or sleeve only.

For beach wear he uses checked gingham for shorts worn under knee-length pinafores which fasten in back. For day and sports wear, his line is tailored and conservative but he branches out in fantasy and in gorgeous materials for afternoon and evening. Numerous prints in crepes and chiffons are used for the trained afternoon or garden party gowns which are worn with large-brimmed straw hats.

Evening gowns vary from the classic gowns with tight-fitting bodices, narrow shoulder straps and long, swirling skirts to complicated gowns of chiffon and taffeta in matching prints.

Now—Penguin Eggs!

FOUR THOUSAND penguin eggs are being served in London's West End restaurants! Supposed to be quite a delicacy, coming from South Africa, this is the way they are prepared: Boiled 20 minutes, then mashed with butter and salt, pepper and wine vinegar added, to individual taste.

Leftovers Require A Tasty Disguise

Meat Dishes Should Only be Heated, Not Re-Cooked.

A QUESTION asked so frequently by homemakers and particularly by young brides whose families number two is: "What shall I do with the leftovers?" Sometimes the first time a dish is served it is excellent, the next time fair, and by the third time it is only acceptable, and that with reservations.

According to home economists, the secret of using leftovers satisfactorily is to disguise them so that they are not recognized as leftovers, such as grinding the last bits of a roast or pot-roast and making it into a tasty meat loaf, or slicing it and reheating it in a spicy sauce. It should be remembered that in preparing any dish from a meat leftover, the meat has been cooked and therefore needs only enough cooking the second time to reheat it throughout.

Young Mothers Overemphasize Care of Babies

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

IT IS A PITY that the young mother cannot have had a little practical experience of babies before her first baby makes its appearance. Of course there are classes where mothers can go and learn the rudiments of baby tending, but they are few and far between, and few women have the time or inclination to attend them. Most young mothers are inexperienced and find themselves faced with a responsibility which at first seems overwhelming.

They bring the baby home from the hospital under the impression that his life depends upon the minutest items of hygiene, and torture themselves for weeks with the fear of making some trifling error in the routine which they have been taught.

One mother sterilized all the bottles twice in one day because she inadvertently lifted one by the mouth of the bottle instead of the neck. Another went into a panic if anyone touched the child. A third boiled everything the child used until the doctor finally suggested that the stove and bathtub be boiled, too. After that comment she came to her senses.

There are many excellent precautions which must be taken during the first weeks of a baby's life. But it is impossible to make a fetish of these, and so reduce life to a useless repetition of ritual. Little by little the baby must be conditioned to life, and life cannot be lived in a sterilized glass case.

Potato Salad a Favorite Summer Dish

Old American Perennial Easy to Make, Blends With Cold Cuts.

POTATO SALAD, the good old American perennial, comes in for special attention ere each summer (and al fresco dining and picnics) rolls around again! To accompany cold cuts for a one-piece meal, it has out-rivaled all of its rivals throughout the years. It seems to have enduring personality and stability!

For a simple family supper served on the porch or terrace, potato salad and assorted cold cuts, relishes, buttered rolls, a hot or cold beverage (or both), substantial dessert, and there you are; less trouble for the cook and nourishing and appetizing for the diners. Prosaic perhaps, but always popular!

The salad can be made in the morning and placed in the refrigerator—likewise the dessert; the cold cuts on hand; the entire meal to be assembled in a trice. Here is a recipe for potato salad that is a bit different, and one that can be varied to suit the ingredients available, or the individual preference: 2 cups cold potatoes, cubed; 2 tablespoons parsley, chopped; 2 tablespoons onion, chopped; 1 teaspoon salt; 1½ cups celery chopped; 2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped; one raw cucumber, chopped; mayonnaise dressing. Mix potatoes, celery, parsley, onion, eggs, cucumber and salt. Add enough mayonnaise dressing of creamy smooth texture to moisten well. Put into refrigerator to absorb some of the dressing and become chilled.

When serving, arrange in crisp lettuce cups on one-half of platter and top each portion with additional mayonnaise. Alternately, arrange cold cuts on other half of platter. Or, if preferred, the salad and meat can be alternately arranged on the entire platter. This amount of salad will serve six persons.

Girl Just Out of College Now Has Job Chance

The girl now coming out of college will have a much better chance for employment than her predecessors of the past few years, according to Herbert H. Williams, director of the Cornell University Placement Bureau.

In a recent report in the Cornell Alumni News, he pointed out there are now more openings for college graduates than at any time since the beginning of the depression. Even teaching, so much overcrowded for the past decade, has available positions now, he said. By fall, he believes, virtually all students finishing Cornell this June, and seeking work will be employed.

Sandwich Meal Offers Variety

HEARTY sandwiches are the kind the family enjoys when they are the main portion of the supper meal, and that holds true whether the supper is served on the porch, in the back yard or down by the creek.

Of the many, many foods from which to choose, at this time one might consider just three main items—corned beef, deviled ham and tongue. Each of these comes cooked in tin cans, and all that is necessary is to open them and proceed with the finishing touches. If the corned beef is to be sliced be sure to have it thoroughly chilled, for after all that is about the nicest way to have it for sandwiches. The deviled ham and tongue are cooler, and more refreshing, too, if they have been chilled, but it is not essential as with the corned beef.

Open the different meats, but instead of mixing them, as usual, with additional food, add a touch of contrast in flavor and texture this way: Spread both slices of bread with butter first, and be sure to get the butter well out to the crust of each slice, lest your sandwich be dry and uninteresting. Then place a slice of corned beef or tongue on one side of the bread, or spread with deviled ham. On the other slice spread salad dressing, mayonnaise or mustard and top this with slices of crisp cucumber, radishes, thin tomato slices, strips of pimiento, green pepper or onion.

For further variation, instead of one dressing, use a spread of pickle relish, chopped ripe olives, thin slices of spring onions, or a slice of a big sweet onion. After the desired spread is put on the second slice of bread, place it next to the meat side and press lightly together. Crisp lettuce or water cress is good with any of these filling combinations.

Murder Is Laid To 2 as Woman Assaulted, Dies

Mrs. Mary Maier, Beaten Saturday, Succumbs; Pair Being Held.

Two men were charged with murder yesterday when Mrs. Mary Maier, alias Mary Conrad, of 628 Independence avenue southwest, died in Casualty Hospital after she was beaten and criminally assaulted Saturday night.

The men, Alonzo Turner, 29, a painter, of the 900 block Ninth street northwest, and Elmer Fulk, 37, of the 600 block Indiana avenue northwest, were arrested by police from a description of them given by Mrs. Maier shortly after she was taken to the hospital.

According to the police, Turner came to the Maier home posing as a policeman while Maier was asleep in the house. Turner is alleged to have directed the woman to follow him into a shed in the rear of the house next door where Fulk was waiting.

The woman was dragged into the shed, police said, and attacked.

She was found unconscious by John Heeter, 16, son of Maier's landlady, and taken to the hospital.

An autopsy performed at the District Morgue disclosed the woman died from internal injuries. An inquest probably will be held tomorrow.

Social Service Graduates Told To Keep Ideals

Catholic School's Students Hear Rt. Rev. McCormick at Commencement.

The Right Rev. P. J. McCormick, vice rector of Catholic University, delivered the commencement address. He asked the graduates to retain in their future work the ideals instilled in them in their training.

Other speakers were the Very Rev. John J. Burke, president of the school's board of trustees and general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference; the Rev. Francis J. Haas, former director of the school; Jane Hoey, director of the Public Assistance Bureau of the Social Security Board, and Agnes G. Regan, acting director of the school.

Preceding the exercises mass was celebrated in the school chapel by the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States.

The students who have completed a two-year course in social service work, will receive masters degrees from Catholic University at its commencement exercises today.

Agriculture Orchestra Offers Program Tonight

Under the direction of Walter Bauer, the Department of Agriculture Orchestra will give a concert at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the air-conditioned auditorium of the South building at Fourteenth street and Independence avenue. This concert, presented in honor of the foreign delegations to the third triennial conference of the Associated Country Women of the World, is open to the public without charge.

The following program is announced: "Farandole" from "L'Arlesienne" suite, No. 1 (Bizet); "Norwegian Rhapsody," No. 3 (Svendsen); "Romance" for solo violin and orchestra (Beethoven); "Prelude" in G minor (Rachmaninov); "Surprise Symphony" (Haydn); overture to "Die Meistersinger" (Wagner). Jack Levenson will be the soloist in the Beethoven composition.

Dinner Will Honor Malone, Starr, Bourne

A dinner will be given at the Mayflower Hotel tomorrow night in honor of Dr. Dumas Malone, Dr. Harris E. Starr and Dr. Henrl E. Bourne, who are soon to leave Washington.

Dr. Bourne is retiring from the editorial staff of the editorial chair of the American Historical Review, while Dr. Malone and Dr. Starr are concluding their work as editor and associate editor of the Dictionary of American Biography.

Police Act Fast, But Corner Victim of Crime, Not Bandits

To Leo Katz last night came the baffling experience of being hunted as the man who robbed himself.

Katz, who is 20 and live at 1120 Seventh street northwest, was riding with Miss Anna Eidies, of 4330 Seventh street northwest, in Rock Creek Park, when two bandits, one with a drwan revolver, forced their automobile to the curb.

"Give me your money," commanded one of the bandits, and Katz handed over $4 and his keys.

As soon as the robbers had fled, Katz called police. Park Patrolmen B. J. Beckman and Robert Hall responded. They telephoned a report of the holdup to headquarters. Through error park police broadcast a lookout for Katz.

A few minutes later a scout car from Metropolitan Police Headquarters raced alongside Kat's automobile.

"Stop," cried the police, "we got you."

"I'm glad you came," replied Katz. "We just got held up. One robber was short, and the other tall. Did you get them?"

Hans Kindler Is Re-engaged By Symphony

Cappel Also Is Retained as Business Manager of Orchestra.

Union Dispute Blamed for Cancellation of Summer Series.

Dr. Hans Kindler once more will direct the National Symphony Orchestra.

In a statement yesterday addressed to members, contributors and ticket subscribers, the board of directors of the National Symphony Orchestra Association announced it had re-engaged the conductor for the coming season and retained C. C. Cappel as business manager.

Under the direction of these leaders, it was pointed out, the orchestra once more is prepared to "contract for the winter season." The board emphasized its intention to "leave nothing undone to insure a successful concert season."

The announcement was signed by Walter Bruce Howe, secretary of the association. In it, he reviewed the entire background of the unsettled controversy with the Musicians Protective Union—a controversy which resulted last week in the board's canceling its plans for summer concerts this year.

The report credited Dr. Kindler with making "the greatest contribution to the creation and development of this symphony orchestra."

"It would be unjust to Dr. Kindler to require him to proceed without sufficient freedom in the selection of musicians, the board declared, adding that this was one of the salient points involved in the union controversy.

Union Held to Blame.

Full responsibility was placed by the report on the Musicians' Union for cancellation of the summer concerts, which were arranged to start early in July. While the board had declared a position that agreement on differences might be reached "with a reasonable amount of give and take," the union heads, it asserted, had refused to discuss further a question of fundamental importance.

This question, according to the board, is one of the two most serious difficulties existing between the board and the union, and is closely linked with the expulsion from the union of George Gaul, personnel manager of the orchestra for the past five years. The board is insisting on the reinstatement of Gaul.

Explaining its position in the Gaul matter, the board statement said:

"In all, or nearly all, employment here of union musicians there is a contract between the customer and individual members of the union whom the customer pays. Such member of the union in turn furnishes the members of the band or orchestra, selects them himself, discharges and pays them himself.

"Under our contract with the union hitherto, the Orchestra Association has been able to pay and employ musicians selected by the conductor, which is an essential of the Symphony Orchestra.

Scale Declared Met.

"It also has been able to discharge them on notice and it has paid them directly, in amounts not less than the minimum pay stipulated in the contract with the union.

"Within the past year, however, representatives of the union have insisted that the personnel manager, employed under the terms of the general contract, be a union contractor, and should perform the functions of a union contractor. This contention has been denied by the association.

"Gaul was expelled because he did not give the union information about the affairs of the orchestra which he did not have, and which he would have had and which he could have given if he had been the usual union contractor."

Concerning the importation of players, around which another serious difference has centered, the board said it recognized a national rule of the American Federation of Musicians that provides "that no outside musicians become a member of the local, and no outside musicians could play other engagements than those for which they were imported."

Gonzaga Alumni To Honor Priest

The Rev. Arthur O'Leary, president of Georgetown University, will be a guest at the annual banquet of the Gonzaga Alumni Association Saturday night in the National Press Club ballroom.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, will be principal speaker.

Board Grants 8 Proposals For Rezoning

Change Asked by Ickes for Parking Lot Is Rejected.

Freeman Wins Fight to Preserve Status Quo Near Cathedral.

Eight out of 28 proposed changes in zoning of properties scattered throughout the city were approved by the District Zoning Commission yesterday, which also approved an exception to existing zoning in another case.

The commission refused to rezone the northeast corner of Nineteenth and F streets northwest so as to permit a parking lot, despite the support of the proposed change by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, and it also refused to rezone the northeast corner of Thirty-eighth and Macomb streets northwest, so as to permit a "park and shop" development, against which the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, protested.

Three proposals to change zonings near upper Sixteenth street were turned down. Opponents had urged the proposed changes would bring apartments and flats closer to Sixteenth street.

Defers Action in Long Case.

The commission deferred action on the petition of Mrs. Lena Long. Mrs. Long owns three houses on Thirty-fifth place, between Whitehaven Parkway and T street northwest. She was advised she could turn them into flats. She did so and was arrested for violating zoning regulations.

Her case was continued in Police Court pending action by the commission on her proposal to change the zoning. The commission said it would defer action on the zoning pending decision by the Police Court.

Proposal to change from residential, 60 foot, B restricted, to residential, 90, C area, the lot on which the Fairfax hotel stands was rejected, but the commission agreed that it would permit owners of the hotel to do what they wanted without the change in zoning. The owners, under the commission decision, may therefore raise from five to eight stories the rear of the center wing of the hotel.

Changes approved by the commission were: from residential, 90 foot, C area to second commercial, 90 foot, C, two alley lots between K, L, Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh streets northwest; from first commercial and residential, 40 foot, C and 40 foot A restricted, to residential, 40 foot, A property along Conduit road, from Foxhall road and Elliott place on the south side and the residential area on the north side, with the exception of the property now occupied on the north side by a gasoline station.

First commercial, 60 foot, C area zoning of several parcels of land on the west side of Connecticut avenue between Yuma street and Idaho avenue northwest, was extended 50 feet westward to the abutting alley.

Four lots on the west side of Georgia avenue, north of Park road, bearing the street numbers 3500, 3504, 3506 and 3512 Georgia avenue, were rezoned to extend the first commercial, 60 foot, C area to the abutting alley to the rear. Zoning of 1000-02 Flordia avenue northeast was changed from residential to first commercial, 60 foot, C, to permit construction of a store and flat; and the southeast corner of Twenty-fifth street and Good Hope road southeast, was changed to residential, 40 foot, C area.

Trial Board Asks Policeman's Ouster

A police trial board yesterday recommended dismissal for Traffic Policeman George E. Cooper, of the Seventh Precinct, when he was found guilty on three counts.

The charges—making an untruthful statement, wilfully disobeying orders and conduct prejudicial to the good order of the force—were placed against the policeman after complaint had been made against him to headquarters.

Witnesses testified that Cooper on two occasions arested motorists for speeding and that the speeds of the automobiles were lowered by Cooper when he applied for papers in Police Court.

At Display of Youthful Artists

Children in five cities, including Washington, who have been learning something about art from teachers employed by the PWA Federal arts project, have dozens of their pictures on display this month at the National Museum.

Other cities represented are New York, Detroit, Hartford, Conn., and Nashville, Tenn. The juvenile collection is only part of an extensive exhibit which includes paintings, etchings and sculpture by adults from virtually every section of the country. The show opened yesterday morning and will continue until July 1.

No matter how practical the subject, most of the boys and girls have turned out highly imaginative work which, in many cases, has a vigor that surpasses the paintings of the adults.

Looks Like Wheat Field.

Eleven-year-old I. Mendelsohn, who attends a public school in Brooklyn and has probably never seen a genuine rural scene, has created a wheat field which actually looks like a wheat field. The clouds overhead resemble swollen marshmallows and the coloring throughout is pretty forbidding, but the general impression of a partly harvested wheat field is there.

Most of the New York youngsters have been content to draw scenes and objects familiar to them. There are amusing and even amazing pictures of railroad station waiting rooms, barber shops, the elevated railway, and a steam shovel, all by boys and girls of 8 or 9 or 11 years of age.

The Washington children, who, by the way, have grabbed off the most space at the exhibit, have gone in for more variety than the New York artists. Billy Castle, 12, who attends an art class at the Y. W. C. A., has portrayed the planetary system with a conglomeration of circles, disks, stars and angles which make the system no more confusing than it is in the minds of most adults anyway.

Lots of Action.

Tommy Ryan, 9, of the Merrick Boys Club, is represented by a crayon drawing which he has titled "The Tiger at the Brook." The stream looks about as fierce as Niagara and the animal seems to be hanging by his toes to get a drink, but there's lots of action in the bold crayon strokes.

Took Gong, 11, Chinese, who attends the Americanization School, has given his impression of American life in a drawing which shows a simple street scene. A lamp post, labeled "Policeman," sheds light which, according to the young artists's catalogue note, represents safety. The corner building starts out to a conventional American structure, but ends up with pagoda flutings along its roof.

After the exhibit is over the works of art will be returned to their young creators.

Roberts Assails 'Fees System' In Scale Tests

Attacks Inspection Plan at Rally on Weights, Measures.

An attack upon the system of charging fees for making inspections of weighing and measuring instruments, as practiced in many localities, was made yesterday by George M. Roberts, District superintendent of weights, measures and markets.

Addressing the opening session of the twenty-sixth national conference on weights and measures at the Bureau of Standards, Roberts said the fee system leads to petty graft and concealment of scales by merchants who would evade the assessment.

The consuming public is the sufferer under the fee system, Roberts said, pointing out that such a policy was in effect here when he became chief of weights and measures almost 20 years ago. It was repealed shortly afterward.

U. S. Funds Urged.

Appropriation of Federal funds for weights and measures regulation work was urged by J. H. Meek, markets director of the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Immigration.

"Congress has spent large sums of money in almost every other conceivable way, and it seems time that weights and measures should be given some consideration," he said.

Other speakers yesterday were Howard E. Crawford, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Harold I. Baumes, of the League of Virginia Municipalities, and W. S. Bussey, Texas chief of weights and measures.

Dr. Briggs Is "Ranger."

In behalf of Gov. Allred, Bussey presented Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, president of the conference and director of the Bureau of Standards, with a certificate of honorary membership in the Texas Rangers. A 10-gallon hat accompanied the certificate.

The four-day meeting will continue today, with a tour of the Bureau of Standards laboratories scheduled this afternoon. More than 150 weights and measures experts are registered, representing 27 States and 11 private associations.

Myers Re-elected At Colonial Beach

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Colonial Beach, Va., June 9.—James A. Myers was elected for his fourth two-year term as mayor here today. He polled 232 votes against his nearest rival, T. J. Nevitt, who received 153.

Will Jones, who also ran for the mayorship, received only 10 votes in the election that saw more votes cast than at any time since the town was founded more than half a century ago.

Widow of Dr. Wilmer Honored by Society

Mrs. W. H. Wilmer, widow of Dr. W. H. Wilmer, world famous eye specialist, yesterday was named to succeed her late husband as president of the District of Columbia Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Dr. Wilmer died two days after being elected to office last March.

Officers installed at yesterday's meeting were Mrs. L. A. oVries, first vice president; Dr. S. B. Muncaster, second vice president; James N. Greere, treasurer, and Milton King, recording secretary.

U. S. Is Forced To Delay Pay Of 4,281 Aids

Post Office Fire, Flood, Byrns' Death Factors in Situation.

The midwinter fire in the Post-office Department, the spring flood and the death of Speaker Byrns all will share responsibility for the failure of 4,281 Federal Government employes to be paid Monday.

A more immediate cause, it developed yesterday, was the recess of Congress for the Republican convention before conferees could make a report on the first deficiency bill.

National Park Service officials, explaining why 4,200 low-wage employes in custodial service will not be paid Monday, said the Interior Department's fund for maintenance of public buildings had been drained by the damage done by the post-office fire, the flood and the expansion of emergency agencies.

Leaders on Capitol Hill said the deficiency bill, which carries more than $300,000 in pay for these National Park Service employes, probably would have been disposed of by Congress had not Byrns' death disrupted adjournment plans.

The other 81 employes are in the taxes and penalties unit of the Department of Justice. Joseph Lawrence, administrator, said that the work of the unit had increased unexpectedly, necessitating the retention of employes who were to have been dismissed.

The June 15 pay day may not be postponed more than a few days, however, it was said on Capitol Hill. A conference report is expected to be adopted shortly after Congress reconvenes on Monday, and the signature of the President will make the funds available immediately.

The National Park Service employes in the buildings maintenance unit were paid for only five days' service, instead of 15, on May 30. Wages for the other ten days are also in the deficiency bill.

Dr. Briggs to Address Weights Parley Today

Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director of the Bureau of Standards, will address the national conference on weights and measures today. He is president of the conference, which opened its twenty-sixth annual meeting here yesterday. Dr. Briggs will discuss the bureau's plan of co-operation with officials in testing equipment for large capacity scales.

George M. Roberts, District superintendent of weights, measures and markets, was among the speakers at the first session of the conference. Papers also were presented by Howard E. Crawford, Jacksonville, Fla., weights inspector; Harold I. Baumes, of the League of Virginia Municipalities; W. S. Bussey, Texas chief of weights and measures, and J. H. Meek, of the Virginia department of agriculture and immigration.

Married Pairs Raise Ancient Film Problem

Old Illusions Jeopardized; Technicians Are Stumped; Lloyd to Produce.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, June 9.—John Beal is at odds with Sam Briskin, president of RKO-Radio, in what may prove to be one of the last battles against Hollywood's fear of husband and wife dramatic teams.

Beal wants to be cast opposite his wife, Helen Craig, and is about ready to make an issue of it. Oldest film dogma, however, turns thumbs down on domesticity in romantic leads, on the ground "it might destroy illusions of younger theatergoers," and Briskin is the most orthodox of movie makers.

As a matter of fact, few married players are averse to such roles, most notable exceptions being Joe McCrea and Frances Dee, whose contracts expressly forbid casting opposite each other. Whether Beal wins or not, it seems a mortal cinch the coming year will see family teams playing leads in several important pictures.

Conjugal Careers.

You can expect an announcement Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone will do a picture together any day now. Fredric March and Florence Eldridge are bound for Broadway to do a stage play together, with the hope of bringing it to the screen. They played together in "Mary of Scotland" recently, but not in opposite roles.

Dick Powell and Joan Blondell, a team of long standing, are on the verge of committing matrimony (the tip is out it will be in August), and it is extremely unlikely that producers will keep them apart on the screen.

Supposition of matrimonial intentions is even stronger in the case of the divorced Henry Fonda and Margaret Sullavan, who recently played opposite roles in "The Moon Is Our Home."

Shooting at the Moon.

Paramount technicians are all hot over the prospect of trying to film the Northern Lights in color when the "Spawn of the North" company goes to Alaska. Twentieth Century-Foxers recently flopped in an attempt to shoot simple moonlight. They wanted to get Loretta Young and Don Ameche moon-and-Juneing for "Ramona," but all that showed was a thousand mosquitos looking the size of eagles in the close-ups.

Joseph Galleia, who wants to become a second Lon Chaney, is using a pair of "T" shaped canes in "Sworn Enemies," which he thinks may help. They were made for Chaney's use in playing grotesquely lame men.

Harold Lloyd is reverting to type to become an independent producer. After he left Hal Roach years ago, Lloyd set up his own producing machinery, which he used successfully until he made "Milky Way," his last picture. He will release through Paramount.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., June 9.—Col. Warren M. Whitside, commanding officer at Front Royal Remount Depot, who was a senior at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, in 1898, will be awarded his degree of bachelor of science with special attainments in engineering at commencement exercises of the college Friday, 38 years after the degree was earned.

Col. Whitside left Washington and Lee in May, 1998, before graduation to enlist for the Spanish-American War. When the school authorities learned recently of the circumstances which had prevented the award, it was decided by unanimous vote to confer it this year.

Hopewell Man Held In Woman's Slaying

Hopewell, Va., June 9 (AP).—Wilfred Thompson, 27, who told police he lost his nerve in a suicide pact, was indicted in Hopewell Circuit Court today for the murder of Mrs. Edith Atwater, 25-year-old mother of a young child.

Police Chief George Anderson quoted Thompson, a sign painter, as saying he fired a bullet into Mrs. Atwater's head in a Hopewell hotel room on the afternoon of May 4 and that the gun jammed when he attempted to kill himself.

Thompson and Mrs. Atwater were disconsolate, the police chief said, because they could not marry. Both were estranged from their mates at the time of the shooting.

Thompson's trial was tentatively set for June 17.

About The Showshops

THE picture-going public has come to take Joan Blondell so for granted that sight largely has been lost of the unusual breadth of experience that has been packed into her comparatively short life. It is interesting, therefore, to plumb back into her career and discover why this sprightly young woman finds it possible to be effective in practically any branch of theatrical endeavor—as dramatic actress, comedienne, singer, dancer, travesty artiste, whatnot. Here, then, are some of the reasons.

BELL.

Originally christened Rose, Joan was born in New York City in 1909. Her parents were dyed-in-the-wool troupers and so it was that a property trunk came to be her first cradle and that her first stage appearance was made at the age of four months. She has been on the stage ever since. She has played in repertoire all over the face of the earth—tank towns in China, split weeks in Australia, one-night stands in Germany and has crossed the American continent 56 times as a trouper in vaudeville.

Between times she has been a circus hand, a waitress and, for 15 minutes, a clerk in a New York department store. Now rates as one of Hollywood's most popular stars and is cast opposite Joe E. Brown in "Sons o' Guns" coming to the Earle on Friday.

Joan doesn't go in for Hollywood parties, but likes to dance, swim, play tennis, sail a boat and go to prize fights and football games; dislikes golf, bridge, diets, mashers and jewelry. Loves pop and cider and is generous to a fault. Has one son, Norman Scott Barnes, born in 1934, and owns two dachshunds and a Persian cat. With all of these interests—and disinterests—no wonder she is versatile!

And besides all that, Joan is one of the most "regular" of all the stars in Hollywood. Ask anyone who met her when she was here two or three seasons back—or has ever met her anywhere else, for that matter.

That taciturn young fellow with the close-clipped speech, one Spencer Tracy, has a very busy year ahead of him. Having just been signed to a new starring contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, he is booked solid, as the saying goes, for months to come. After "Fury", the much-discussed preachment against lynch law and mob rule, opening on the Palace screen Friday, Tracy will be seen with Clark Gable, the new heavyweight contender—heh, heh, heh—Jeanette MacDonald and Jack Holt in "San Francisco". Then come assignments in Kipling's "Captains Courageous", with Freddie Bartholomew, and the stellar role in "Soldiers of the Sea", a story of the U. S. Marines. After playing the character of the avenging victim of mob hysteria in "Fury", Tracy will be seen in "San Francisco" in the role of a priest, of all things!

It is Mr. Richard W. Westwood, managing editor of Nature Magazine, 1214 Sixteenth street, who eloquently petitions this column to do something about reviving that relic of the "good old days" when every self-respecting motion picture emporium, at the beginning of each performance, flashed that indispensable slide, "Ladies are kindly requested to remove their hats," upon the screen. With feminine headgear assuming the most fantastic shapes, and perching at the most amazing angles, within the memory of man, Mr. Westwood feels that something ought to be done about it.

"Of course," says he, "now and then it is fun to be able to see only one-half of what is going on on the screen and amuse one's self by speculating as to what may be going on on the other half, but now and then there is a motion picture one would like to see in its entirety."

We, too, have suffered and suggest that perhaps the most effective remedy is simply to yank off the offending headgear when it gets in the way and toss it into the theater's ashcan, thus eliminating a tremendous amount of probably futile circumlocution.

Donald Novis, the popular young tenor, co-headlining the stage bill at Loew's Fox with that elegant, antic zany, Herb Williams, beginning Friday, won the male award in the national Atwater Kent Radio auditions the same year Washington's own Hazel Arth, contralto, won the feminine.

Herb Williams, by the way, is working fast. "At Home Abroad", in which he was featured with Bea Lillie, Ethel Waters and Mitzi Mayfair, closed in Detroit only a week ago last Saturday night. Herb evidently is booking his way back home to Long Island—which is a good trick, even if you can't do it.

In starting this season's bus service from a downtown stop between F and G streets on Thirteenth and making Dupont Circle the second station on the way out, the Roadside Theater group are wondering precisely what they do if there are no seats by the time the Circle is reached. Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

New York, June 9.

The papers reported a week ago that Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt had received a nutty extortion letter . . . "Give me $2,500." read the scrawled demand, "or I will visit my jinx on you. Others have refused to pay me and my jinx has brought them to sorrow" . . . Young Vanderbilt was vastly amused at the daffy letter, showed it around the Belmont clubhouse, and then stuck it into his pocket . . . that afternoon: (1) Discovery's star rider, Johnny Bejac, was thrown and fractured his shoulder; (2) one of the bangtail aces of the stable, Airflame, was beaten; (3) Alfred, returning to his box, found that somebody had stolen his hat.

Jadaan Comes Out of Retirement

Back in the old silent days of the cinema, "Rudy" Valentino, the "Sheik" of the films, rode Jadaan, the famous Arabian charger, in several of outstanding productions. Jadaan now has come out of retirement to stage a screen comeback as the mount of Marlene Dietrich and Charles Boyer in the Sahara Desert sequences in David Selznick's new picturization in Technicolor of Robert Hichens' "The Garden of Allah." The proud Arabian seems slightly aloof as Frau Dietrich offers him a glamorous lump of sugar, or something, for dessert on the desert.

Hollywood

Hollywood, June 9.

A picture called "Hollywood Boulevard" is being made in Hollywood. It is a title which was on lamp posts waiting to be used. But the movies try to keep away from Hollywood subjects, and even the mention of the word.

ALFRED VANDERBILT.

Producers, among other silly things, believe that movie fans aren't interested in Hollywood.

"Hollywood Boulevard" is a great lure for any marquee. Don't expect wonders from this flicker; it is on the Paramount schedule as a Class B picture, which means that it is being made inexpensively and without star names. But I'll bet that audiences will be interested.

The plan of this flicker about the street of stars is to show places of interest in Hollywood that you have heard about, and also to feature a number of former stars.

This particular day, the set is the Trocadero, and the actors sitting at the bar are Jack Mulhall, who has been making a comeback, and Creighton Hale, best remembered as Pearl White's leading man in the serials. John Halliday is playing the lead in the flicker, the role of a has-been actor who is trying to keep up the big front.

The bar is practically an exact replica of the Trocadero bar except for a neon light sign, which says: "Trocadero Bar." I am told that this is necessary. "Else how would the audience know it's really the Trocadero?"

The large set is crowded with extras. I tell Director Robert Florey that at cocktail time the Troc isn't crowded. "But this is a picture and we need production. And, anyway, the people believe the Trocadero is always crowded."

The glassware, the liquor bottles and other objects on display are genuine. They were loaned by the Troc for this scene. In fact, the two hat check girls in the picture are Edith Arthur and Maxine Marshall, the checkroom gals from the Trocadero. They came to Hollywood to get into pictures and finally got jobs in the night club. Now they're in pictures. Between "takes" I walk over to the bar and speak to Jack Mulhall. Creighton Hale, I should mention, still looks like a juvenile. During the conversation, I say to Mulhall: "How do you like it, sitting all day at the Trocadero bar?" He quickly answers: "At these prices it's marvelous."

Visiting a Joan Crawford set is nice, for Miss Crawford is pleasant and you can hear a concert. In fact, Miss Crawford's theme song seems to be "She Shall Have Music," for she does have it on whatever set she goes. Now, the flicker is "The Georgetown Hussy," and while Director Clarence Brown is arranging a setup I talk to Eddie Clermont. He is the young man Miss Crawford employs to play the Victrola on the set.

He says Joan Crawford likes European recordings. That before playing a crying scene she prefers to hear Liszt. For a comedy scene she wants good jazz music. Ray Noble's orchestra is a favorite. Between "takes" she likes to listen to singing, and Bing Crosby and Jane Frohman are her favorites. The record playing when I left was "It Was Just One of Those Things."

Hearing Is Waived In Auto Death Case

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 9.—Lawrence M. Johns, of Hagerstown, Md., driver of an automobile that May 31 struck and killed George Riggs, county man, near Marlowe, waived a preliminary hearing here yesterday and was ordered held for the October grand jury. He furnished the $500 bond on a manslaughtercharge.

Johns and other occupants of his automobile told investigating officers that Riggs fell of staggered directly in front of the automobile.

Other motorists told the troopers they had seen Riggs, seemingly intoxicated, staggering along the highway earlier that evening any they were compelled to stop their automobiles to avoid striking him.

Louis Spurns Title Fight Terms

Jacobs Offers 12½ Per Cent for Braddock Bout in Fall.

By Jack Cuddy.
United Press Staff Writer.

Lakewood, N. J., June 9.—Joe Louis and his managers today refused point-blank to sign for a title fight with Champion James J. Braddock in September, under the terms opered by Promoter Mike Jacobs.

Louis and his managers, Julian Black and John Roxborough, objected to the regular challenger's 12½ per cent of the net gate, which Jacobs offered as Shuffling Joe's share in the title bout. They demanded 20 per cent. Braddock would receive the usual champion's cut of 37½ per cent, according to Jacobs' offer.

The Louis entourage claimed the Detroit Negro should get at least 20 per cent because in their opinion, Louis certainly is as good a drawing card as Champion Braddock. Crowds at the Carnera, Baer, Paulino and Levinsky bouts proved this, according to Black and Roxborough.

Is First Rift.

This was the first rift between the Louis entourage and the Twentieth Century Club, and the first set-back of Jacobs' brief promoterial career.

The refusal came after a lengthy conference here at the camp where the Brown Bomber is training for the Schmeling fight next week. Two representatives of the Hearst Milk Fund attended the conference, in addition to Louis, Jacobs and the two managers. Chairman John J. Phelan of the State boxing commission, came to the camp with Promoter Jacobs, but Phelan did not attend the conference. However, he had a lengthy huddle with the promoter before Jacobs and his party entered the Louis bungalow for the talk.

Black and Roxborough, in objecting to the 12½ per cent offer, emphasized to Jacobs that they were the title this year—and that Louis not eager to have Louis fight for was not eager himself. That presented one of the strangest situations in heavyweight history. A situation in which the champion is running after a challenger for a bout, but the challenger, reluctant to participate even though he virtually certain of winning pugilism's most coveted crown.

Hard Training.

The co-managers pointed out that Louis is just completing a seven-week stretch of rigorous training for the Schmeling bout and that it would be unfair to oe to make him Jbegin shortly another conditioning.

Moreover, they said, if Joe fought Braddock in September for the title, a large portion of Joe's earnings in that bout would go to the Government income taxes—after the huge purse he is almost certain to make in the Schmeling fight.

Roxborough and Black informed Jacobs, however, that if he could meet their terms, they probably would be willing to reconsider the

Tigers Defeat Red Sox, 8-4, Cut Lead

Champions 3 Games Out of 2d Place as Vic Sorrell Beats Walberg.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 9.—The world champion Tigers sliced off another game of the Red Sox second place advantage today, piling up seven runs in the second inning and whipping the Fenway millionaires, 8 to 4, before 4,500.

The Tigers, in third place, now trail Boston by only three games and the American League Yankees by six, the New Yorkers bowing to the Browns.

The bespectacled veteran, Vic Sorrell, who shut out the Red Sox the last time he faced them, in Detroit, humbled them again and, although touched for 13 hits, registered his fifth triumph. Boston began fighting the range toward the close, however, and made three of their four runs in the ninth—on doubles by Melillo and Foxx, a triple by Manush and a single by Cooke—after being shut out since the first inning, when they made their other run.

The ancient Rube Walbert felt the ire of the Detroit bats in the second, which was marked by Marvin Owen's homer, with one on, and Charley Gehringer's triple with three on. Johnny Marcum took up the chores at that point, and for the remainder of the game he yielded only one run and seven hits.

Pirates Beat Dodgers Twice, Tied for Second

Pittsburgh, June 9 (AP).—The Pirates swept a double-header with the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 7 and 7 to 5, today, to pull up to a second place tie with the defeated New York Giantsi n the National League.

The Bucs rallied with two out in the eighth inning of the first game, broke upa pitching duel in which George Earnshaw, of the Dodgers, eld the upper hand, and scored all their runs to turn a prospective 1-to-0 defeat into victory. Big Jim Weaver wound up on the long end of the hurling struggle.

nI the night cap, Johnn Welch, recently obtained from the Boston Red Sox, made his first start for the Pirates, but was driven off the mound in the fifth, when the Dodgers scored three runs. Mace Brown, who relieved him, allowed the Brooklyns only one run from there on and took credit for the victory.

Nats Victors Over Tribe By 2 to 1

Reynolds Accounts for Decisive Score in Close Game.

By Shirley Povich.
Sports Editor of The Post.

Ol' Pete Appleton, fired as incompetent by the Cleveland Indians six years ago, met up with his former pals at Griffith Stadium and snubbed 'em with great enthusiasm. Ol' Pete put the chill on the Indians with a five-hit pitching performance and personally delivered a 2-1 victory unto the Nats.

They didn't get a hit off him until the sixth inning, and with one out in the seventh the only blot on his pitching record was a bunt along the third base line that Roy Hughes had beaten out. Ol' Pete was in fine fettle as he nursed his slender leads along to the finish.

Ol' Pete personally contributed the run that gave the Nats a 1-0 lead in the second inning when he dragged his .276 batting average to the plate and drove out a single, and that run stood as his only asset for six innings. His 1-0 lead vanished in the seventh when the Injuns got a runner across the plate, but Appleton applied the brakes thereafter with great success.

It was a luck-anointed single by Carl Reynolds that broke the 1-1 tie immediately after the Indians had deadlocked the score in the seventh inning, and Ol' Pete had set the stage for that run by beating out an infield hit to Hale at third base.

Ol' Pete got to second when Bluege's smash was turned into a put-out by Hale's clever stop, and he languished there while Lee struck out Buddy Lewis. But, with two out, Reynolds bounced a high grounder over Lee's head, the ball took a freak hop over Shortstop Knickerbocker's shoulder into centerfield, and Appleton scurried across the plate.

With the Indians going hitless in those first five innings, the Nats were no great shucks against Allen. They had left two on base in the first and picked up a run in the second when Kress, Bolton and Appleton singled in succession, but they got nothing out of the sixth inning after Stone led off with a walk and Travis singled to left.

Stone was caught by Vosmik's rifle throw to Hale when he tried to advance to third on Travis' blow after Vosmik's momentary fumble, and then Hughes came up with two sensational plays on balls hit by Kuhel and Bolton, and the Nats went scoreless.

Appleton Reaches Heights.

Knickerbocker singled to center, and so did Pytlak, putting Knick on third. At this point Ol' Pete was confronted with the league's leading hitter in the person of Billy Sullivan, who pinch-hit for Allen and promptly doubled to right to score Knickerbocker with the tying run and put Pytlak on third with the potential winning run.

But Ol' Pete neatly extricated himself from this situation by slipping a third strike past Galatzer and retiring Hughes on a soft roller to Lewis to escape with no worse than a tie.

After the Nats had given Ol' Pete back his one-run lead in the seventh, the Indians got the tying run on base in the eighth, only to encounter a double play started by Ossie Bluege on Vosmik's grounder. Ol' Pete ran into one more bit of trouble before he sealed his triumph. With two out in the ninth, Walter Millies dropped Pytlak's foul pop for an error and the tying run was again on base when Appleton finally walked Pytlak.

Forcing Second Baseman Hughes to make a hurried throw to first, Buddy Lewis is seen sliding threateningly into the bag after Carl Reynolds had grounded to Shortstop Knickerbocker in the first inning yesterday. Lewis was out, but Reynolds reached first ahead of Hughes' inaccurate throw. Knickerbocker watches the play.

Hogsett Yields Yanks 5 Hits; Wins, 5 to 3

New York, June 9 (AP).—Elon Hogsett outpitched Lefty Gomez and two other Yankee hurlers today, and limited the vaunted New York bats to five hits as the St. Louis Browns evened the current series with a 5 to 3 victory.

The Browns started the scoring in the seventh, with three runs on as many hits. Doubles by Rollie Hemsley and Carey brought in another in the eighth, and two more safe blows, including Rogers Hornsby's single, wound up the runmaking in the ninth.

Cochrane Leaves For a 10-Day Stay In Detroit Hospital

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 9.—Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, turned over his world championship club to Coach Delmar Baker tonight and entrained for home to enter a hospital.

He is due in Detroit tomorrow and arrangements have been made for a ten-day stay at the Henry Ford Hospital for observation.

Cochrane was advised to take hospital treatment today when Dr. Eddie O'Brien, former noted football official, who serves as the Red Sox physician, examined him. Dr. O'Brien found he was suffering from a hyper-thyrodidism that required an operation if a complete rest failed to improve his condition.

Cochrane has been out of the game since last Thursday when, after knocking out a homer inside of Shibe Park in Philadelphia, he became dizzy when running the bases.

The Detroit pilot, according to teammates, has been worrying over the club's failure to maintain its 1934-35 stride.

Henderson Is Named Trinity Grid Manager

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hartford, Conn., June 9.—James Henderson, Trinity College junior from Washington, D. C., was today named manager of Trinity varsity football team. It was announced by Athletic Advisory Council. Henderson will begin his duties in September.

Mackenzie 2d In Shawnee Golf Play

By the Associated Press.

Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., June 9.—Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, flashed down the stretch today to post a 72-hole total of 288 and win the $3,000 opne golf tournament of the Shawnee Country Club.

It was the third time in the history of what is said to be the oldest invitation tournament held in this country, that the defending champion retained his title.

The rangy Philadelphian had 2 under par rounds of 70 in the final 36 holes to give him a 1-stroke edge over the field of 53 contestants. His four rounds were 76—72—70—70.

The biggest disappointment of the match, which brought to this picturesque course in the foothills of the verdant Poconos ranking players of the Nation, was Tony Manero, the new United States Open Champion, who placed far down in the list with a 301 total.

The Greensboro, N. C., professional shot consecutive rounds of 78, 74, 76, 73, displaying only in his driving any of the prowess that carried him to the top at Baltusrol.

Foggy Bottom Pride Rallies to Win as 10,000 Watch Battle

By Bill McCormick.

Marty Gallagher, Foggy Bottom heavyweight, proved bigger, stronger and better in every department of the game in taking a unanimous decision from Bob Tow, of Alexandria, in a thrilling 15-round feature at Griffith tSadiu miast night.

A large crowd eisimated at 10,000 watched the gallant Irishman from Washington's gas-house district rally strongly after a rather poor beginning to belt Tow into a state of insensibility by the finish.

There were no knockdowns, but Tow was dropped into the ropes for a two count in the twelfth round by a right hand, which seemed exactly on the equator. Tow grabbed his groin, as though fouled, but registered no formal protest and Referee Charley Reynolds started to count without hesitation.

Tow on Canvas.

That round ended in a scene of the wildest disorder as neither gladiator heard the bell and they both continued to swing wildly at each other. Tow finally sank to the canvas in his own corner as Reynolds made it known to the boys that the battling had been officially suspended for the nonce.

From that round on, Gallagher had the situation well under control.

Joe Green, local lightweight, made an auspicious return to the wars by hammering Terry Parks, of Baltimore, into submission in four rounds of a preliminary scheduled for six rounds. Parks was floored for a nine count by a furious flurry in the fourth, in which he received a badly cut left eye. He rose to finish the round, but the commission forbade his answering the bell for the fifth because of the cut.

In a brace of openers scheduled for four rounds, George Cox scored a unanimous decision over Mickey Finn and Killer Lamar scored a first-round knockout over Joe McDougall, after only 45 seconds of willing milling.

Lou Raymond, verteran Baltimore welterweight, won a unanimous decision from Cary Wright, of Washington in a six-round semi-final. Wright did all right in the early rounds, but was badly hampered from the fourth round on by a badly cut eye.

Berwanger, Rapich Get Chicago Civic Medals

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Jay Berwanger, the University of Chicago's all-American halfback, and Sam Papich, Northwestern's all-conference tackle, were awarded the University Civic League's gold medals for 1936 today.

The award goes each year to the two students, from either Chicago or Northwestern University who excel in "genuine loyalty to American ideals" and lead in scholarship, athletic or journalistic achievement.

Clear Knight Wins Charles Town Feature; Double Pays $186

Royal Folly Worth $75 In Third

Penang Pays $58 in 5th Race; Parade On Wins 6th at 6 to 1.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town Race Track, June 9.—The Washington Post purse, feature race at this mountain turf plant this afternoon, proved a hop, skip and a few jumps for Clear Knight, a veteran gelding owned by H. Foote. The big, black horse bounded to the front soon after the start and it was all over but the $7.40 pay-off. Behind him there was much hustling and bustling, mostly by Dr. Jillson and Canteret, which were second and third in the field of eight.

Generally, the day was one of long shots. At the finish of most of the races, the display board fairly sagged with figures that brought joy to the hearts of the long-shot players. The price parade went into the daily double with a return of $186.20 going to those who invested their $2 in the combination of June G. and Royal Folly.

The races were run over a heavy, drying out track that placed times in the mediocre class. However, a bright sun shone throughout the afternoon and a cool breeze teamed to make it an enjoyable day for the winners.

Jockey J. Hernandez had the mount on Clear Knight and turned in a good riding exhibition. He was not flattered by the fact that Clear Knight assumed command in the opening furlong, but rated his mount and saved enough for final stages when Dr. Jillson appeared in a menacing mood.

Parade On Takes Sixth.

Parade On paraded to the finish line ahead of seven platers to win the sixth race at a $15.20 mutuel. Jockey Terhune sprinted the gelding to the front going to the first turn and he was not caught. Donee, the favorite, was second and Warned Off barely took the third money.

Whiskora, with Jockey Sammy Palumbo in the saddle, scored an easy victory in the first race to pay a $6.60 mutuel. However, had not Tar Heel gone lame in the race they would have been hanging his number in the winning slot. The Flying Ebony gelding opened a long lead going to the far turn, but stopped suddenly at the stretch turn, but lasted to be second. First Flag took the third money.

June G had to be much the best to win the second race. The ancient mare, outrun and in trouble to the backstretch, she worked her way to the pace setting Falmouth Belle and was up in the final strides. J. Hernandez did a good job of riding the winner. Donate was a well-beaten third in the field of eight. The winner paid $7.80.

Royal Folly, at a $75.20 mutuel, shocked the talent in the third race. The Royal Canopy filly took the lead on the backstretch and then held Rouqepine safe in the final drive. Moe Berg, who had been given a ten-day suspension in a previous race for crowding with The Gen, celebrated by riding the winner.

Another upset marked the running of the fifth race, the Arthur Brode, named in honor of the Washington lawyer. Penang was the winner and a payoff of $58.80 was involved. Jockey L. Pikor rode the winner in excellent fashion. Mains Wander was second and Polly Plum was third.

WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, HEAVY.

FIRST RACE—About 5 furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 2:38. Off at 2:40½. Winner, L. Rodriguez's blk. g. (5), by Whiskalong—Miss Dora. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:05 4-5.

HOGARTY	(Sargent)	118	2	1	3¹	4²	6½	1.70
MISS TRYCOM	(Tryon)	113	7	4	6²	7	7	3.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHISKORA, $6.60, $4.00, $3.00; TAR HEEL, $6.00, $4.60; FIRST FLAG, $13.00.

WHISKORA, off slowly, worked his way up steadily to take command entering the stretch, drew far out and was being taken in hand at the end. TAR HEEL, rushed to the front at once, opened a long lead going into the far turn, but stopped suddenly approaching the stretch and pulled up very lame. FIRST FLAG, far back to the stretch, came with a rush in the final sixteenth. TRANSTINE went wide into the stretch after being placed forwardly and closed willingly. HOGARTY dropped back steadily throughout.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, 300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:06½. Off at 3:08. Winner, R. P. Gillett's ch. m. (6), by Hephaistos—Daisy Platt. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $120; fourth, $10. Time, 1:29.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JUNE G., $7.80, $5.20, $4.00; PALMOUTH BELLE, $22.60, $6.80; DONATE, $2.40.

JUNE G., shuffled back going to the first turn, was hard rushed to reach PALMOUTH BELLE and withstood a long drive to be up in the concluding strides. PALMOUTH BELLE assumed command at the first turn, was hard ridden while saving ground, began to falter in midstretch and just failed to last. DONATE, forwardly placed from the start, closed willingly. LITTLE HURD, allowed to drop out of it going to the far turn, came again near the end. THE GEN, running in handages on front legs, pressed the pace for a quarter and tired. JIMMY D. was never a factor.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $300; claiming. The Berryville. For maiden 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:35½. Off at 3:42. Winner, Anderby Hall Stable's ch. f. (3), by Royal Canopy—Spite. Trained by F. Booker. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:26.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL FOLLY, $75.20, $32.40, $6.80; ROQUEPINE, $5.20, $2.60; TRUTHFULLY, $2.60.

ROYAL FOLLY disposed of TRUTHFULLY midway of the backstretch to open a commanding lead entering the stretch, but had to be ridden out to withstand closing rush of ROQUEPINE, the latter, always close to the leaders, gained slowly in the final three furlongs and closed full of run. TRUTHFULLY could not keep up after taking the lead and had no excuses. BANANA went evenly, but could not threaten. MERSAN closed some ground. The others were outrun.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $186.20.

FOURTH RACE—About 5 furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. The Washington Post. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:11. Off at 4:12½. Winner, H. Foote's br. g. (7), by Bright Knight—Fay-a-way. Trained by M. W. Smith. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:05 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLEAR KNIGHT, $7.40. $4.80, $3.60; DR. JILLSON, $8.60, $4.80; CANTERET, $5.40.

CLEAR KNIGHT came up on the outside to take command in the opening furlong and under energetic handling held sway thereafter to hold DR. JILLSON safe. The latter, forwardly placed from the beginning, saved ground and showed a good effort. CANTERET, first away, ran on the outside of DR. JILLSON, but could not threaten. FLYING DERVISH lacked early speed and closed willingly under punishment. MISS TOUCAN had early speed. The others were not factors.

FIFTH RACE—About 5 furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. The Arthur Brode. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:44. Winner, H. MABEL BEYOND	(Hilley)	114	1	1	4³	7	7	15.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JENANG, $58.80, $22.60, $16.20; MAINS WANDER, $6.00, $4.80; POLLY PLUM, $3.20.

PENANG badly outrun to the stretch, circled the leaders entering the straightaway and disposed of MAINS WANDER in the closing sixteenth. MAINS WANDER, closest to the pace of POLLY PLUM, closed willingly on the outside and showed an excellent effort. POLLY PLUM set a fast pace, but was tiring rapidly at the end. FINGAI, within striking distance of the leaders from the start, was kept along the rail in the deepest going and was allowed to drop out of third place. He was miserably ridden. LOCH LONDON showed a dull effort and can do better. SCOTCH AGE was far back all the way.

SIXTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:10½. Off at 5:13. Winner, Mercedes Stable's ch. g. (4), by Dress Parade—Whisk On. Trained by J. A. Gavidia. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:34 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARADE ON, $15.20, $6.80, $5.60; DONEE, $4.60, $4.20; WARNED OFF, $3.20.

PARADE ON sprinted to the front on the outside going to the first turn, was steadied along in front and held DONEE safe when shaken up entering the stretch. The latter made a bold move on the inside going to the far turn, but hung in the last eighth. WARNED OFF forwardly placed all the way, closed willingly. GAGNE had no excuses. SIEMPRE went evenly. The others could not reach contention at any stage.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, 300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:39½. Off at 5:42. Winner, W. S. Sweeney's b. f. (4), by Ed Crump—Monoplay. Trained by owner. Value to winner, 220; second, 50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 2:00 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MONEDY, $7.80, $4.40. $3.00; LADY GLASGOW, $9.20, $3.80; PUKKA HEAVEN, $3.20.

MONEDY, under straint while closest in attendance of the pace of LADY GLASGOW, rallied when put to drive after straightening in the stretch and drew clear at the end. LADY GLASGOW had speed to open a long lead, but was tiring rapidly at the end. PUKKA HEAVEN moved up menacingly swinging into the stretch, but hung. PAULINE H. raced closer than usual in the early stages and closed willingly. DOUBTLESS and OPPOSITION could not reach contention.

Webb's 152 Wins Medal in Inter-Departmental Golf Tourney

Treasury Team Takes Mellon Trophy; Medal Battle Is Close.

Tommy Webb, jr., former University of Maryland football star, now a full-fledged G-man, won the medal in the annual Interdepartmental Golf Tournament yesterday with a 36-hole total of 152.

One of the longest drivers in the District, the husky Bureau of Investigation golfer carved out rounds of 75 and 77 to lead Everett Johnson, Department of Agriculture entry, to the tape by a one-stroke margin. Johnson scored a 75 and 78.

The battle for the medal trophy was unusually tight, 3 strokes separating the first three places.

Johnny Miller, veteran Beaver Dam golfer, representing Treasury, appeared to have the title in his hip pocket until he made a few slips along the stretch. Miller, the favorite, finished with 75-79—154.

Don O'Bryan, of Federal Housing Administration, with 79—76—155, and Paul aCrey, of Treasury Procurement, with 77—78—155, tied for fourth prize, while one shot back of them came the left-handed shark, Tommy Bones, also of Treasury Procurement, who had rounds of 75 and 81.

Yesterday's scores were superior to those of the opening day. Altogether close to 200 Government golfers competed.

Gene Pittman, former Texas star, now with Treasury Procurement, was around in 85 and 76.

Treasury, as expected, won the Mellon Trophy, emblematic of the team gross championship. Its total was 634. Members of the team are J. J. Lynch, 158; Bill Harvey, 162; Mac O'Malley, 160, and Don O'Bryan, 155.

Mackenzie Is 2d In Shawnee Golf

He was consistently off form on the greens.

Only a missed side-hill putt on the tricky eighteenth green cost RalphGuldahl of St. Louis, second place. The one stroke threw him into a 289-tie with Roland Mackenzie, of Washington. The missed putt costhim a tie for first place. He took a 71 on the round.

Bunched in a three-way tie for fourth place were Ray Mangrum, of Dayton, Ohio; Orville White, of Chicago, who led at the half yesterday, and Byron Nelson, of Ridgewood, N. J., each with 290.

Mid-Atlantic Golf Draws Large Field

By Dave Herman,

With 40 golfers from Maryland, Virginia and the District already entered, post entries expected to boast the starting field to 60, the Middle Atlantic championship will open tomorrow at the Five Farms course of the Baltimore Country Club with one of the keenest battles in history anticipated.

Twenty Washington challengers will toe the mark:

Morton McCarthy, the 200-pound giant from Norfolk, who triumphed last year at Princess Anne Country Club, Virginia Beach, was on the scene yesterday going through his practice paces. He was even par for the first 18 holes of the National Open at Baltusrol last week, and will go to the post as the favorite to retain his crown.

Among the Washingtonians entered are Volney Burnett, of Indian Spring, recent winner of the Baltimore Country Club invitation at Five Farms; Hickman Greene and Bobby Brownell, of Manor; Maury Nee and Harvey Johnson, of Columbia Country Club; Tommy Webb, of Washington Golf and Country Club; Billy Dettweiler, 18-year-old Congressional star, and Martin F. McCarthy, of Beaver Dam.

Post entries are due to bring out such District stalwarts as Harry Pitt, of Manor, former title holder, and Levi Yoder, of Kenwood, 1935 semifinalist. It is possible that Bobby Reigel, of Richmond, Southern amateur title holder, will be an eleventh-hour entry.

Secretary W. R. McCallum will accept entries at the Baltimore Country Club course today and tomorrow morning.

Pairings and starting times follow:

1:10—Bernie Hallock (Kenwood) and W. W. Kohl (Roderus Force).

1:15—Stewart Barr (Columbia) and Johnny Farrell (Hillendale).

1:30—Morton McCarthy (Norfolk, Va.) and Don McPhail (Baltimore C. C.).

1:35—Maury Nee (Columbia) and Frank M. Savage (Elkridge).

2:10—Kickman Greene (Manor) and Tommy Webb, jr. (Washington).

2:15—Louis Puchs (Indian Spring) and Volney Burnett (Indian Spring).

Mize's Homer Is Margin As Cards Beat Bees, 7-5

St. Louis, June 9 (AP).—A home run in the first inning by Johnnie Mize, rookie first baseman playing right-field in Frankie Frisch's rearranged line-up today, gave the Cardinals an early lead which they held for a 7-to-5 victory over the Boston Bees. Today's win, with New York's loss to Cincinnati, placed the Cards in a 4½-game lead over the Giants.

State Fish Hatchery To Stock Bass Today

Frederick, Md., June 9.—Approximately 350,000 black bass, an increase of 100,000 over last year, have been hatched at the State fish hatchery at Lewistown, superintendent, Albert M. Powell, announced today, and will be stocked in fresh water streams of Maryland upon reaching 1½ to 2 inches. The first stocking will take place tomorrow in Harford County where several thousand 2-inch bass will be planted.

It has been announced that 615 bass, washed into the abandoned Chesapeake & Ohio Canal by flood waters last March, have been reclaimed and return to the Potomac River by State conservation commission officials.

500 Frederick Day Fans Honor Vosmik, Galatzer at Stadium

Frederick, Md., had its day in the big leagues yesterday as 500 citizens of the Maryland city honored two former native sons who appeared in the line-up of the Cleveland Indians at Griffith Stadium.

To pay tribute to Outfielders Joe Vosmik and Milton Galatzer, who first achieved baseball fame as players for the Frederick Warriors in the Blue Ridge League, Frederick fans paraded around the stadium before the game and staged ceremonies at home plate.

Descending on Washington in a caravan of automobiles and whirled from the District line to Griffith Stadium by a Metropolitan Motorcycle Police escort, the Frederick fans made their entrance into the park behind the Frederick Fife and Drum Corps. The stirring strains of "Maryland, My Maryland," filled the air as other thousands in the park applauded.

Disengaging themselves from signing autographs for the Frederick delegation, Vosmik and Galatzer were called to home plate, where they were presented by Frederick Mayor Lloyd C. Culler with expensive hunting guns, the gifts of their Maryland admirers.

Settling back in their seats for the contest, the Frederick fans saw Washington beat Cleveland in a thrilling 2-1 pitching duel replete with clever plays in the field.

True to baseball tradition, which unfailingly prescribes a poor day for players individually honored in pregame ceremony, neither Vosmik nor Galatzer succeeded in making a hit. Vosmik, however, drew a poisy applause as he threw Johnny Stone out at third base when the latter attempted to advance from first on Travis' single in the sixth inning.

"Frederick Day" was sponsored by The Washington Post and officials of the Peoples Drug Stores, whose radio sports commentator, Arch McDonald, was a member of the arrangements committee. To Frederick went the honor of being assigned the first of the "days" to be set apart for cities and towns neighboring on Washington.

Reds Pound Castleman, Swamp Giants by 15-4

Cincinnati, June 9 (AP).—The Reds clubbed Clyde Castleman for 18 hit sand a 15-to-4 victory over the New York Giants today—their second straight win of the current series. Kiki Cuyler led the Reds' attack with four hits, including a homer.

Louis Refuses Braddock Title Bout Offer

matter after next week's big fight is out of the way. Jacobs was keenly disappointed by the set-back. He had been so sure of acceptance that he brought along boxing commission contracts for Roxborough and Black to sign.

Jacobs has a contract with Roxborough, Black and Louis calling for the Detroit dynamiter's exclusive services until January 1, 1940. This means that Louis cannot fight for any othe pomote without Mike's pemission. However, for each bout under Jacobs' promotion, there must be separate articles drawn up—in which the Louis entourage agree to terms.

Schmeling Signs.

Schmeling signed an athletic commission contract last week, agreeing that if he defeated Louis on June 18, he would fight Braddock for the title in September, and accept 12½ per cent of the net gate. If Louis had signed likewise today, Jacobs would have hog-tied the world title battle for his Twentieth Century Club.

Champion Braddock is under contract with Madison Square Garden to make his first title defense for that outfit—if the Garden can provide by July 31 an opponent acceptable to Braddock and his manager, Joe Gould. The Athletic Commission already has named the winner of the Louis-Schmeling bout the No. 1 challenger.

Now—If Louis wins over Schmeling, but declines to challeng.e this may give the garden a weapon with which to force Braddock into a title fight against another opponent, and keep the title away from the Twentieth Century Club. It is understood that if Louis does not challenge, the Garden will draft light-heavyweight Champion John Henry Lewis to meet Braddock. Braddock won a very close decision over Lewis early in Braddock's comeback campaign.

Louis sparred eight rounds with four partners today and appeared in peak condition. He said he was down to 199¾ pounds. He will go into the ring at about 200. Because he already is down to fighting weight, he will take only three more public workouts and coast along in all of them—to prevent going stale.

Cubs Run String to Six In Beating Phils, 6 to 3

Three Are Fined $100 For Attack on Umpire

Savannah, Ga., June 9 (AP).—Three men were convicted today on charges of disorderly conduct for participating in an attack on an umpire Friday night following a baseball game betwen Savannah and Columbus, and were sentenced to pay fines of $100 each or serve 30 days on the county farm.

Umpire Bob Burnett was knicked unconscious when fans swarmed on to the field after Columbus won the contest, 6 to 4. Burnett and a fellow umpire, Hammond, were being escorted from the field by policemen.

Trouble started when Manager LaMotte, of the Savannah club, and two players were banished for an argument over balls and strikes called on Columbus batsmen.

Mrs. Meckley Leads With Record 79

Capital Star Sets Pace in Maryland as Other D. C. Women Qualify.

A Staff Correspondent.

Baltimore, Md., June 9.—Mrs. Betty Meckley, of Indian Spring Club, Washington, set a new tournament as well as course record today when she shot a 79 to win the medal easily in the Maryland State golf championship at Suburban Country Club.

The champion, in top form, rounded the turn in 41, and was only 2 over 4s for the back side.

Four other Washington women qualified for the championship flight in match play which opens tomorrow. They were Mrs. Jack Scott, of Kenwood, runner-up last year; Mrs. L. G. Pray, of Manor, and Helen Dettweiler, of Congressional, 1934 champion, each of whom carded an 86, and Mrs. Leo Walper, of Kenwood, with 87.

Plays Mrs. Barr.

Mrs. Meckley plays Mrs. C. C. Barr, of Rodgers Forge, who shot an 87, at 10, and at 10:05 Miss Dettweiler faces Miss Janette Meyers, of Suburban. At 10:15 Mrs. Pray opposes Mrs. Jerome Sloman, of Suburban, and at 10:30 Mrs. Scott takes on Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, of Elkridge, several times former champion. Mrs. Walper meets Mrs. E. B. Mower, of Elkridge, at 10:25.

In the third flight, Mrs. J. T Powell, of Manor, with 99, meets Mrs. J. W. Sheridan, of Hillendale, at 9:30, and at 9:40 Mrs. G. F. Goetzman, of Congressional, faces Mrs. S. C. Hoffberger, of Woodholme. In the fourth flight Miss Fredia Trewitt, of Kenwood, meets Miss Frances Turner, of Hillendale, at 11:20.

Mary Cootes Wins In City Net Play

Mary Cootes, District women's ennis champion, had to exhibit her best game yesterday at Edgemoor to down Marian Pritchard, 7—5 and 6—0, and lead the seeded ond favored stars into the third round of the City of Washington championships.

Today's schedule marks the opening of the doubles tournament and the first local mixed doubles event since 1932.

Yesterday's Results.

First round—Bobsey Turney defeated Florence Bishop, 6—1, 6—2. Second round—Sara Moore defeated Alison Claflin, 6—1, 6—1; Dorothy Anderson defeated Peggy Smith, 6—1, 6—3; Dorette Miller defeated Kathleen Klotz, 6—0, 6—0; Mary Cootes defeated Marian Pritchard, 7—5, 6—0; Margaret McCullough defeated Joan Bransford, 6—2, 6—3, 6—4; Eleanor Craven defeated Dorothy Craven, 6—1, 11—9.

Today's Pairings.

Singles— 2:30 o'clock, Dorette Miller vs. Margaret Robinson. 4 o'clock, Mary Ryan vs. Margaret McCullough. 4:15 o'clock, Edith Clarke vs. Eleanor Craven. 5 o'clock, Bobsey Turney vs. Dorothy Bergstrom.

Doubles—11 o'clock, Dorette Miller and Sara Moore vs. Marian Pritchard and Audrey Winston. 2 o'clock, Bobsey Turney and Peggy Smith vs. Virginia Lyle and Marjorie Sherman. 6 o'clock, Mary Ryan and Florence Black vs. Betty Rowan and Christine Gawne.

Mixed doubles—5:30 o'clock, Edith Clarke and Bud Markey vs. Dorette Miller and Hugh Trigg. Bobsey Turney and Tony Lezona vs. Mariano Evans and Dorothy Shaner; Mary Cootes and Ralph Mc-Elveney vs. Frances Carter and Hugh Lynch.

Motorcycle Race Set At Frederick Track

Frederick, Md., June 9.—A score or more of the Nation's leading motorcycle riders, including Joe Petrali, Milwaukee, 1935 champion, and Fred Toscani, Plainfield, N. J., runner-up for the title last year, have been signed to ride in the annual professional motorcycle races to be staged here July 4, it was announced today by J. Paul Delphey, promoter. The program will be featured by a 6-mile national championship, Delphey said.

Powers Tops Hitters.

Hagerstown, Md., June 9.—Lloyd Powers, manager of the Hancock Club of the Washington County Baseball League, is leading that circuit in hitting with an average of .467. Hammaker, Boonsboro, is second with an average of .451. Boonsboro is leading in team batting with an average of .322, and the Chevies in fielding with an average of .969.

Culpeper Wins 3d, Beating Orange, 4-3

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Culpeper, Va., June 9.—Culpeper Athletic Club made it three straight to retain the lead in the Valley League by defeating Orange here this afternoon, 4 to 3. Benninghoff for the locals allowed only one hit until the eighth inning.

Culpeper scored one run in each of the first four innings from the offerings of Conn, who was relieved by Dovel, who held the locals scoreless in the last four innings. Four two-base knocks and two triples featured in the hitting.

Culpeper goes to Charlottesville tomorrow and plays Orange at Orange on Thursday. McFall got three of the local hits.

U. S. Polo Team Favored Over English

By the United Press.

Hurlingham, Eng., June 9.—America's hard-riding polo aces, the youngest team ever to represent Uncle Sam in the historic series, faces Great Britain's best tomorrow on the turf of Hurlingham Club in the opening game of the eleventh series for polo's most prized trophy—the Westchester Cup.

Betting on the first game favored the Red, White and Blue forces by three to one, while odds on the series range as high as five to one because of the high-scoring game which the Americans have exhibited during tune-up matces.

U. S. Won Seven.

America has won seven previous matches in the series which started in 1886, while England captured three. The United States will seek to preserve a string of four straight triumphs—in 1921, 1924, 1927 and 1930.

A colorful crowd of 10,000—ranging rrom nobility to London shopworkers—will see the opening game. For weeks London shops have displayed what the well-dressed lady will wear so the game is expected to be something of a fashion show as well as a polo match.

Critics tonight unanimously favored the invaders to retain the cup because of superior team play, better ponies and a harder-hitting style of attack fetauring long shots by Eric Pedley, California star, at No. 1, and Winston

Falling Franc Seen as Omen Of Devaluation

Further Gold Shipments From France Are Anticipated.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 9.—Sentiment in the Wall Street districts today favored the likelihood of early devaluation of the French franc as quotations for the French unit again dropped below the gold export point.

International bankers anticipated further engagement of French, Holland and Swiss gold for shipment to this country as the gold bloc currencies reacted to levels at which shipments of the yellow metal are profitable.

Fairly large-scale renewal of the flight of capital from France to England was witnessed as foreign exchange dealers reported active trading, with Paris selling francs and buying the pound sterling. Such operations resulted in a reflex rise of 1¼ cents here in the pound sterling to $5.01-7-16. There was an accompanying drop in the franc to 6.58⅜ cents, off .01⅜ of a cent from Monday's closing.

Belief persists here that the increase in French production costs, variously estimated by banking quarters at between 12 and 15 per cent, growing out of concessions granted French laborers, makes ultimate devaluation of the franc all the more certain. Some observers anticipate a governmental ban on the export of French gold and capital.

Dutch guilders and Swiss francs moved lower with the French unit, the former losing .15 of a cent to 67.58 cents and the Swiss currency dropping .08 of a cent to 32.33 cents. Amsterdam cables to Wall Street sources revealed that the Bank of The Netherlands had lost more than $28,000,000 gold in the latest week.

Farm Credit to Offer $83,000,000 Loan

Announcement was made yesterday of Governor W. I. Myers, of the Farm Credit Administration, that approximately $83,125,000 of 4¼ per cent individual bonds of the Federal land banks will be called today, and it is contemplated that a new issue of $83,000,000 of consolidated bonds of the Federal land banks will be offered to the public on June 11. The called bonds will be refunded with the proceeds from the sale of the new issue and with cash on hand.

The new consolidated bonds will represent an increase of the issue dated January 1, 1936. They will bear 3 per cent interest and will thus be callable in 9½ years and will have a maturity of 19½ years.

Baldwin Locomotive Plan.

New York, June 9 (AP).—As of June 6, holders of more than a majority of the preferred stock of Baldwin Locomotive works had approved the proposed plan of reorganization, and acceptances from other classes of security holders showed gains over the preceding report, the company announced today.

Rayon Exceeds Billion Pounds For First Time

U. S. Produces Fourth of Total, With Japan Ranking Second.

New York, June 9.—The world's production of rayon yarn and staple fiber for 1935 passed the billion-pound mark for the first time in the history of the industry, according to the Textile Economics Bureau today.

Actual production last year aggregated 1,069,902,000 pounds, a gain of 246,721,000 pounds, or 29.9 per cent compared with production of 823,181,000 pounds in 1934. Rayon yarn production in 1935 aggregated 963,063,000 pounds, an increase of 22 per cent over the 1934 figure of 789,296,000 pounds. Rayon staple fiber output for 1935 was 133,839,000 pounds, an increase of 148 per cent compared with 1934 output of 53,785,000 pounds.

Practically every important producing country contributed to the gain last year. Japan, however, has made a decided imprint on the world rayon production. Negligible in 1918, and only 2 per cent of the world output in 1925, she had increased to 22 per cent by 1935. She became the second largest producer in 1934 and has continued emphatically so in 1935.

The United States retained its share of about one-fourth of world production in 1935. Germany also has kept her 13 to 14 per cent of the total. Italy has consistently been losing its share of yarn production, but its total yarn and fiber output was not far below the 1925 level of 15 per cent. Great Britain has for several years been getting about 11 per cent.

The following table shows the total rayon yarn and staple fiber production of the more important producing countries for 1935 and 1929:

	1935. Pounds.	1929. Pounds.
Japan	237,943,000	27,000,000

New Potatoes Break Famine Price Level

New York, June 9 (AP).—The spring potato crop rolled into this market today, ending for the time being the likelihood of a famine and toppling prices from the peaks for several years established toward the end of last week.

New crop white potatoes, scores of carloads of them, have been rushed to the produce district for some half dozen States in the past two days, commission merchants reported. Prices, which were above the $8 mark per barrel at the week-end, have dipped to around $7.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Maintain Steady Tone With Somewhat Increased Activity; Francs Weak.

Stocks could not rise to the million mark, but they maintained a firm tone. Steadiness was well maintained throughout the trading, with the exception of a handful of stocks, and some of the best-liked issues quietly advanced 1 to 3 points. Speculative bonds did better, but the Government list was neglected. September wheat rose half a cent to 85¼ cents a bushel.

Wall Street attention was directed to Cleveland and little interest was taken in the scanty industrial news available. It is no secret that the financial district wishes strongly to see the New Deal upset, and hopes consequently for a Republican ticket and platform that most likely will bring that about. Even on many of the accepted principles of finance, including the gold standard, many in Wall Street would be willing to make concessions if they felt that would help defeat President Roosevelt.

However, majority opinion is that no newer new deal can succeed and that honesty will be the best policy. In other words, it is felt that opposition to the New Dealers had best be maintained on the present ground, namely, on the intrinsic unsoundness of the Adminsitration's policies in the business and financial field, and particularly with its conception of the public debt, taxation, relief methods, and management of production and prices.

Business Brakes.

On top of the lively desire to see defeat for the party with the policies that Wall Street feels is holding back business recovery is the vague fear that, with re-election of the New Dealers, a campaign of frightfulness for its own sake might be undertaken. With another success at the polls, those who now talk about the redistribution of wealth might talk and act in line with their real intention, which is the destruction of wealth. All that discourges business enterprise at this time.

Foreign exchanges acted more logically than they did yesterday. With increased realization that a new deal in France and a stable currency will be just as incompatible as they were in this country, comment by two French economists Rist and Reynaud, which were interpreted as leaning more definitely toward devaluation, together with redoubled short selling, put the French franc promptly back to the dollar quotation at which gold moves from Paris to New York. The efforts of the shorts to renew lines were reflected in the futures market, where the rate for 30-day frances sold at a discount of 36 points from the spot rate, while 90-day options were at a discount of 59 points. Both these quotations were at or below previous low records. The Paris-London cross rate, which was 75.84 francs to the pound yesterday, dropped to 76.18 francs today, which caused a quick recovery of the pound sterling in dollar prices to around $5.01½. Yesterday the pound was quoted under $5 most of the day.

Thin Markets.

Afternoon trading was much the same as the morning lack of activity. Prices were firmer in tone and appeared to be ready to give way for higher quotations once a little demand could be found. Only in isolated cases were offerings large or sudden enough to break the market.

Most of the merchandising stocks were strong on bonus expectations. Rails moved up a little, and real strength developed in Santa Fe, Union Pacific and Pere Marquette. Steels began well, but lacked stamina. A good deal of activity came into Keystone. Motors continued to give an indifferent performance and prices were unchanged most of the time.

Firmness was the rule for foods, rail equipments, motor accessories, amusements, oils, utilities and rubbers. A dozen or more stocks were cut from the herd and given attention. Profit-taking in Air Reduction, which has risen sharply in recent sessions, failed to disturb the price much. A dividend meeting is set for tomorrow on the split shares. Allied Stores led the list in volume. Boeing was active. The various classes of American Power and Electric Power rose.

Banking Position.

The banking position as of June 3, as shown by the report of member banks in the Federal Reserve Board, reflected largely the preparations for the soldiers' bonus financing. A large shift of Government securities to New York took place. It is the usual practice for banks and dealers here to bid for maturing issues with which to obtain full allotments of new issues, while the interior banks lighten their holdings in anticipation of subscribing to new loans for cash. Holdings of Government bonds here rose $77,000,000, but fell $71,000,000 in the Cleveland, St. Louis and Philadelphia districts. Loans to brokers and dealers rose $214,000,000 here and $24,000,000 elsewhere, also a preparation for the Treasury borrowing. Commercial loans increased $44,000,000, nearly all in the New York district. Commercial loans in the reporting banks are now $336,000,000 above a year ago and security loans are $400,000,000 greater than last year.

Bonus Market.

A little bonus market developed in the merchandising stocks. Sears, Roebuck rose to a new high price. Montgomery Ward climbed a point or so. Gimbel, Macy, May, Marshall Field and Allied Stores were strong. Photographs of the stocks of bonus documents piled up in the postoffices, newspaper stories of how the money is going to be spent have stirred the imagination, in spite of the fact that the payments have been anticipated for a long time. After the bonus money has been spent, the stage will be set for a rousing pension bill for the next Congress. As a business factor the bonus to some extent and the coming pension to an even greater degree will be nullified by the resulting lowering of productive activity by the recipients. To the extent that he receives a bonus or a pension, many a former service man will promptly withdraw from industrial or commercial activity.

March.

The Natural Business Year Council, which encourages closing financial books for the year at a time when business is slack and inventories can be taken easily, suggests March 31 as the end of fiscal years for cemeteries. It says nothing about stock exchanges.

Western Electric Resumes Dividend

New York, June 8 (AP).—Western Electric Co., manufacturing subsidiary of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., resumed dividends today with a declaration of 50 cents on the common stock. The previous disbursement was 75 cents on June 30, 1931. The dividend is payable June 30 to stock of record June 25. The concern's common stock is 99 per cent owned by American Telephone, which therefore will receive the major part of the $3,000,000 declaration.

Howe Sound Extra.

New York, June 9 (AP).—Howe Sound Co. announced today an extra dividend of 50 cents and a regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the capital stock, payable June 30 to stock of record June 22.

The company paid an extra of 75 cents last December and 30 cents extra in September. It operates lead-silver-zinc properties in the State of Washington, British Columbia and Mexico.

Jewel Tea Special.

Directors of Jewel Tea Co. declared a special dividend of 50 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of $1 on the common stock, payable July 15 to stock of record July 1. This is first extra distribution since December 23, 1935, when a $1 a share special dividend was paid.

Country Bank Business Hurt By Farm Credit

Seattle, Wash., June 9.—The effects of Government lending activities upon banks, methods for improving the efficiency of bank operation, protection of bank records against floods, the usefulness of trust services and many other banking problems were subjected to intensive discussions by bankers gathered from all parts of the Nation for the annual convention of the American Institute of Banking here today. The institute, which is a section of the American Bankers Association, discussed these topics in eight departmental conferences which followed the general opening session of the convention this morning. About 1,500 were in attendance.

Activities of Government lending agencies have had practically no effect on management methods in city banks, L. J. Roberts, assistant cashier the Riggs National Bank, Washington, D. C., told the bank management conference. He had investigated the subject through contacts with bankers in all sections of the country.

"The agencies of the Farm Credit Administration, however, have seriously affected country banks," he continued, "by reducing available loans and making it necessary to find an outlet for their funds in investments, particularly Government securities. This has so reduced the income of many of the smaller banks that many of them could not exist if it were not for the charges they are now compelled to collect for services rendered free to customers in the past.

"The principal effect the Government lending agencies on the policies of banks in general is to make them more aggressive in seeking new fields for credit and in trying to render a greater variety of services to their communities."

$100,000,000 Bills 2.6 Times Subscribed

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announces that the tenders for two series of Treasury bills, to be dated June 10, 1936, which were offered on June 5, have been opened at the Federal Reserve banks.

Tenders were invited for the two series to the aggregate amount of $100,000,000, or thereabouts, and $266,440,000, was applied for, of which $100,175,000 was accepted.

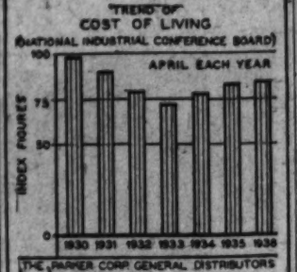
Living Costs Rise 17% From Low Point



Boston, Mass., June 9.—The size of the pay envelope is not all that counts. Equally important is the amount which has to be paid out from the envelope. The cost of living has increased but slightly in the past year, although it now costs 17 per cent more for necessities than in the low of 1933.

Cotton Advances On Trade Covering

New York June 9 (AP).—Cotton was higher today on trade buying and covering which absorbed light offerings at slight recessions. Prices advanced to about last week's high levels in late trading. October, after selling off to 10.86, closed at 10.97 with the general market ending very steady at net advances of 1 to 11 points.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was steady closing 3 to 4 points higher. Sales were 67 contracts. A firm and active cotton market, unfavorable weather in the eastern cotton belt, strength of corn and steadiness of lard helped buying sentiment. Steel Scrap Price Declines $1 Per Ton

New York, June 9 (AP). — Steel scrap prices at Pittsburgh late yesterday broke a dollar a ton to $13-$13.50 on small sales as overhangng supplies of the metal caused a withdrawal of bids, trade circles here reported today.

Replacement of flood-damaged equipment and the rehabilitation programs of several important Eastern railroads have brought huge quantities of scrap to the market during the past month.

SEC Tightens Control Over Oil Royalties

Amended Rules Include Suspension Orders to Halt Sales.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has brought under stricter control the marketing of oil and gas royalty interests in issues of not more than $100,000 by amending its rules so as to provide for the issuance of "suspension orders" to halt the sale where such action is deemed necessary in the public interest. The amended rules will become effective on July 1.

Such royalty interests not exceeding $100,000 are to be exempted from regulation under the securities act of 1933 if the issuer files with the commission and gives to the purchaser what is known as a "working sheet" containing a summary of the underlying type of the security but does not call for financial statements. Suspension of the effectiveness of a working sheet, therefore, would take away this exemption and prevent sales unless it was lifted or the issue registered under the 1933 act.

The importance of the move is shown by the fact that last year 1,829 of these working sheets were filed and filings so far this year have brought the total to approximately 2,500. The amended rules do not affect the status of issues in excess of $100,000 which must register under the 1933 act.

The commission described the amendments as "primarily designed to establish a method of enforcing the requirements of the law with respect to misleading statements."

Utilities, Metals In Demand on Curb

New York, June 9 (AP).—Traders in the curb market today showed a strong preference for a selected group of mines and utility shares. Other sections received a minimum of attention, with price changes mostly narrowly higher.

Bunker Hill & Sullivan advanced 4½ points to 78, while Electric Bond & Share at 21, American Gas & Electric at 37, United Gas preferred at 104¼ and Commonwealth Edison at 101 added a point or a little more each. Fractional gains were recorded for American Cynamid B, Lake Shore Mines, Niagara Hudson Power and Canadian Industrial Alcohol.

Pan - American Airways dipped more than a point to 55¼, while Sherwin-Williams at 124, Pittsburgh Plate Glass at 117⅛ and Pioneer Gold at 9 were slightly down.

Missouri Pacific Buys 10,000 Tons of Rails

New York, June 9 (AP).—Missouri Pacific system has distributed an order for 10,000 tons of rails and fittings among Colorado Fuel & Iron Co., Inland Steel Co. and a subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation.

Tobacco Markets.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 9.—Maryland—The figures this week are receipts, 600 hogsheads; sales, 1,791 hogsheads. The actual new offerings this week were about 1,500 hogsheads, but most of which were sold, but the sales included some 500 hogsheads of old crop. Prices for new crop were higher than before excepting for the best grade, which remained at 40 cents.

Ohio—Nothing doing.

Maryland—Due to dry weather, particularly in St. Marys, Charles and lower Prince Georges counties, where very little tobacco has been transplanted, it is estimated that only about 15 per cent of the intended crop is now in the field. Unless a good rain comes shortly the crop will be materially curtailed.

Maryland firm leaf—Nondescript, 3@4; common, 4@10; medium, 10@25; good to fine, red, 25@40.

Seconds—Common, 3@7; medium, 7@12; good to fine, 12@25.

Ohio—Fine and fine cured, common to medium, 4@8; good to fine, 8@18; spangled, common to medium, 7@20; good to fine, yellow, 20@45.

N.B.—Unsound and badly mixed packages from 2@3 lower.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, June 9 (AP).—There was a fair demand for spot domestic wools in Boston. The turnover was only moderate, due mostly to the limited quantities of spot wool available in most lines. Prices continued firm, with dealers asking mostly 87@88 cents, scoured basis, for good to choice 12-month Texas wool and around 84@86 cents for 8 to 10 months Texas wool.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 9.—The stock market closed quiet with gilt-edged securities exhibiting a firm tone. Brazilian Traction was a feature in today's trading and steels, rubbers and kaffirs were also in good demand. Oil and transatlantic issues remained quiet.

Paris—A generally heavy tone prevailed in the bourse during the late dealings. Rentes closed nearly a franc lower and domestic shares also declined. International issues held firm.

Liverpool—Wheat futures closed a penny higher on reports of insufficient rains in America and the Canadian northwests and unfavorable European crop advices. Cotton advanced on trade and local buying which absorbed light liquidation caused by more favorable crop reports.

NED BRANT—A Story of College Athletics

By Bob Zuppke
Famous Football Coach.

I GUESS YOU KNOW WHY I GOT YOU UP
IT'S RAINING HARD AND I JUST HEARD A TREE CRASH INTO THE RIVER!
SHOTGUN, AS RIVER PATROL YOU WILL SOUND THE SIREN IN PLENTY OF TIME
EACH OF THE 30 BOYS IN CAMP KNOWS WHAT TO DO WHEN HE HEARS IT, THANKS TO YOU, NED
RIMS AND I WILL PLACE THE FLARES ALONG THE RIVER BANK TO THE HOUSEBOAT, NED
FINE—JAKE AND I WILL TAKE CHARGE OF THE BOYS
THERE GOES THE SIREN! COME ON!
WITH YOU, NED!

APPLE MARY

By Martha Orr

TOO BAD, MARY. I JUST FOUND OUT THAT LOOTER WAS ABLE TO HAVE YOUR CASE CALLED FOR AN EARLY TRIAL, NEXT THURSDAY.
I HURRIED TO TELL YOU. WE DID ALL WE COULD, BUT HE'S SLICK, AND GOT THE BEST OF US.
IF WE ONLY HAD THAT MISSING PICTURE.
IN COUNCILMAN LOOTER'S OFFICE—
I HAD APPLE MARY'S TRIAL SET FOR NEXT THURSDAY, KLUMP. YOU BE ON HAND TO TESTIFY AGAINST HER CHARACTER.
YOU CAN COUNT ON ME, BOSS.
MARTHA ORR
IT BEATS ME, HOW YOU TRUST THAT GUY, LOOTER, DON'T FORGET HE WAS A COP.
AW, THEY KICKED HIM OFF THE FORCE. HE'D DO ANYTHING TO GET EVEN.

Mrs. Bowers' Funeral Held; Ill Six Months

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 9.—Funeral services were held today in Calvary M. E. Church for Mrs. George W. Bowers, who died Sunday after an illness of six months. Besides her husband she is survived by one son, Chester G. Bowers, of Washington, and three stepchildren, George R. Bowers, Middletown; Mrs. C. Fred Clark, West Palm Beach, Fla.; Mrs. Hugh Grubb, Hillsboro, Va.; three sisters, Mrs. Frank B. Grayson, Lakewood, Ohio; Mrs. Carroll Pierce, Alexandria, Va., and Mrs. D. T. Link, Hillsboro, Va. The body was removed to Hillsboro for burial.

Mrs. Mary E. Burton.
Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 9.—Funeral services were held this afternoon for Mrs. Mary E. Burton, 83, who died at her home in Falmouth Sunday after a long illness.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. John T. Harris, Falmouth; one sister, Mrs. Susan Perry, Fredericksburg; one brother, James Boutyard, Falmouth, and several half brothers and half sisters.

John Holmes Baxter.
Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., June 9.—Funeral services for John Holmes Baxter, 61, who died at Lynchburg Hospital yesterday, will be held here tomorrow morning. He was a native of Christiansburg, a son of the late John A. Baxter. He was a member of College Hill Baptist Church.

Mr. Baxter is survived by a sister, Miss Florence Baxter, of Lynchburg.

Miss Annie E. Leafe.
Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 9.—Funeral services will be held here, Thursday, for Miss Annie Ellen Leafe, 71, a native of England, who died at her home after a brief illness.

She was a deughater of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Leafe, moving to this country while a girl. The family was for many years actively identified with textile interests here.

She is survived by three brothers, Joseph W. Leafe, of Portsmouth, Va.; W. Leafe, of Massina, N. Y., and Ned Leafe, of England, in addition to a number of nieces and nephews.

Henry Biddle.
Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westernport, Md., June 9.—Funeral services were held today for Henry Biddle, 79, retired coal miner, at his home, 107 Cromer street. The Rev. Charles P. Schriner, pastor of Mount Calvary Lutheran Church, was in charge. Burial was in Philos Cemetery.

Mr. Biddle, a native of Baltimore, was a son of the late Charles and Sophia Biddle. He came to Westernport when but 12 years of age, and 54 years ago married Miss Sarah Opal. Until his retirement, he was employed by the Miller and Green Coal Co.

Besides his widow, he leaves seven children.

Emory Walker Rose.
Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 9.—Emory Walker Rose, 39, a nelectrician residing at St. Charles, Lee County, died yesterday at University Hospital, where he was brought for treatment ten days ago. The body was taken to Pennington Gap, where funeral and burial will take place.

Mr. Rose was a native of Wise County, son of Samuel S. and Melvina (Bevins) Rose. He is survived by his wife.

Mrs. Cora M. Johnston.
Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 9.—Burial rites for Mrs. Cora M. Johnston, widow of Edward Johnston, for years a well-known resident of the south side of the county, were held yesterday afternoon at the Garland burying ground, near North Garden, the service being conducted by the Rev. R. J. Mann, of the Baptist Church.

Mrs. Johnston died at her home after an extended illness. She was a native of Albemarle County, daughter of the late George and Sallie Jean (Harris) Marshall, and was 68 years of age. Two children survive, Mrs. Frank Harris and F. E. Johnston, both residents of North Garden.

Parley Failure, District Funds Up to Roosevelt

Conferees Objected.

Senator Thomas originally sought to have a commission of three experts named by the President, but the House conferees objecetd. Yesterday he proposed that the $50,000 authorization be given to the Budget Bureau for an investigation and report, but Blanton rejected the idea.

The chairman of the Senate subcommittee, on the other hand, flatly refused to be a party to any proposal that the Senate and House sub-committees on District appropriations or one member from each make the inventigation and report.

"That would be impossible," he commented.

Senator Thomas after the conference pointed out that the responsibility of maintaining the National Capital on an adequate scale rests with the administration in power. Consequently, he observed, the duty rests with the Democratic leaders and the President to see that the District government is provided sufficient funds for operating next year.

With only a continuing resolution, the District would have to stop all construction activities and capital improvements on July 1, and would accumulate a surplus of approximately $8,000,000 while its institutions suffered from lean appropriations and partially completed schools and hospitals deteriorated.

Item Facing Doom.

Items which would be lost, as set forth in the federation compilation, include purchase of land for District repair shop, $15,000; purchase and installation of traffic lights, $25,000; reimbursement of loan to Federal Emergency Relief Administration of Public Works, for sewage treatment plan and the adult tuberculosis sanatorium at Glenn Dale, Md., $1,000,000; Petworth Branch Library, $75,000; street paving and other works, including Chain Bridge and Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge, under the gasoline tax fund, $1,110,000; paving alleys and laying cement sidewalks, $150,000; reconstruction of a pier at the Municipal Market and Fish Wharf, $20,000.

Construction of sewers, $425,000; purchase of furniture and equipment for new schools, $163,000; purchase of fire-fighting apparatus, $92,000; construction of a new Police Court Building, $1,000,000; construction of additional buildings at the overcrowded District Workhouse at Occoquan, Va., and the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va., $135,000; construction of additional cottages and other improvements at the National Training School for Girls, $100,000; furniture and equipment for the adult tuberculosis sanatorium at Glenn Dale, Md., $83,000; continuing development of the Anacostia flats, $50,000; reimbursement of park debt under the Capper-Cramton act, $500,000; construction of water mains, $561,000, a total of $6,974,800.

Most Important.

These items, it was said, are "among the most important" and do not comprise a full report based on careful study.

The petition and statistics of the Federation are to be presented to every member of Congress as well as to the President, Vice President and Speaker, Lodge said.

To the Chief Executive and the respective heads of the Senate and House the petition will be presented by a committee composed of Mr. Lodge, Harry N. Stull and Mrs. George E. Corbin, vice presidents of the federation and L. A. Carruthers, chairman of the fiscal relations committee of the federation.

Commitment of the federation to a Federal appropriation of not less than $5,700,000 is to be set forth, but emphasis is to be laid on the importance of other factors involved, Lodge said.

West Virginia to Enact Social Security Plan.

Charleston, W. Va., June 9 (AP).—Gov. H. G. Kump called the Legislature today into special session June 15 to enact a State social security program.

The Governor also said the Legislature would consider an unemployment compensation system, appropriation of funds to construct, maintain and repair roads and bridges damaged by cold weather and floods.

3 Fined, Sentenced In Numbers Racket

By the Associated Press.

Charlottesville, Va., June 9.—Three alleged "numbers" sellers, two of whom are thought to be leaders in the local ring, were sentenced in Police Court today by Judge J. Callan Brooks as police dealt a sharp blow to the sale of lottery tickets in Charlottesville. All three of the men are colored.

Wyse Tompkins, 27, and Carrol Tonsler, 45, alleged leaders, each was fined $500 and given six months in jail, while T. Franklin, 23, was fined $100 and given a six-months suspended term. Tompkins and Tonsler noted appeals.

Police, who have been keeping a constant drive against the "numbers racket" in progress, think the local operators are directed from headquarters in Richmond, where recent raids netted a number of arrests.
